Outside seating OK downtown

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

After voting unanimously to allow outside seating and commercial use of sidewalks downtown, the Winchester Board of Selectmen took the next step and granted permission to one local business.

At its Aug. 3 meeting the board decided to adopt a list of guidelines for allowing businesses to use the sidewalks and review such requests on a case-by-case basis. Anticipating the decision, representatives from The Coffee Connection went before the board and asked to be granted a permit.

Selectmen Chairman Peter VanAken said in the past few weeks the board had been sensitized to the issue by calls from people both in support and opposition to the commercial use of the sidewalks. Therefore, he said, it would be best for the board to grant permission on a case-by-case basis.

"I appreciate the calls I got on both sides of the issue and would further urge the people who want to use the sidewalks to call us," he said.

Selectman Steve Powers reminded the board that commercial use of the downtown sidewalks has already taken place without the board having grant-

Health dept. hears noise complaints

Board of Health members recently kept the noise down between two parties who went before them to settle a noise complaint.

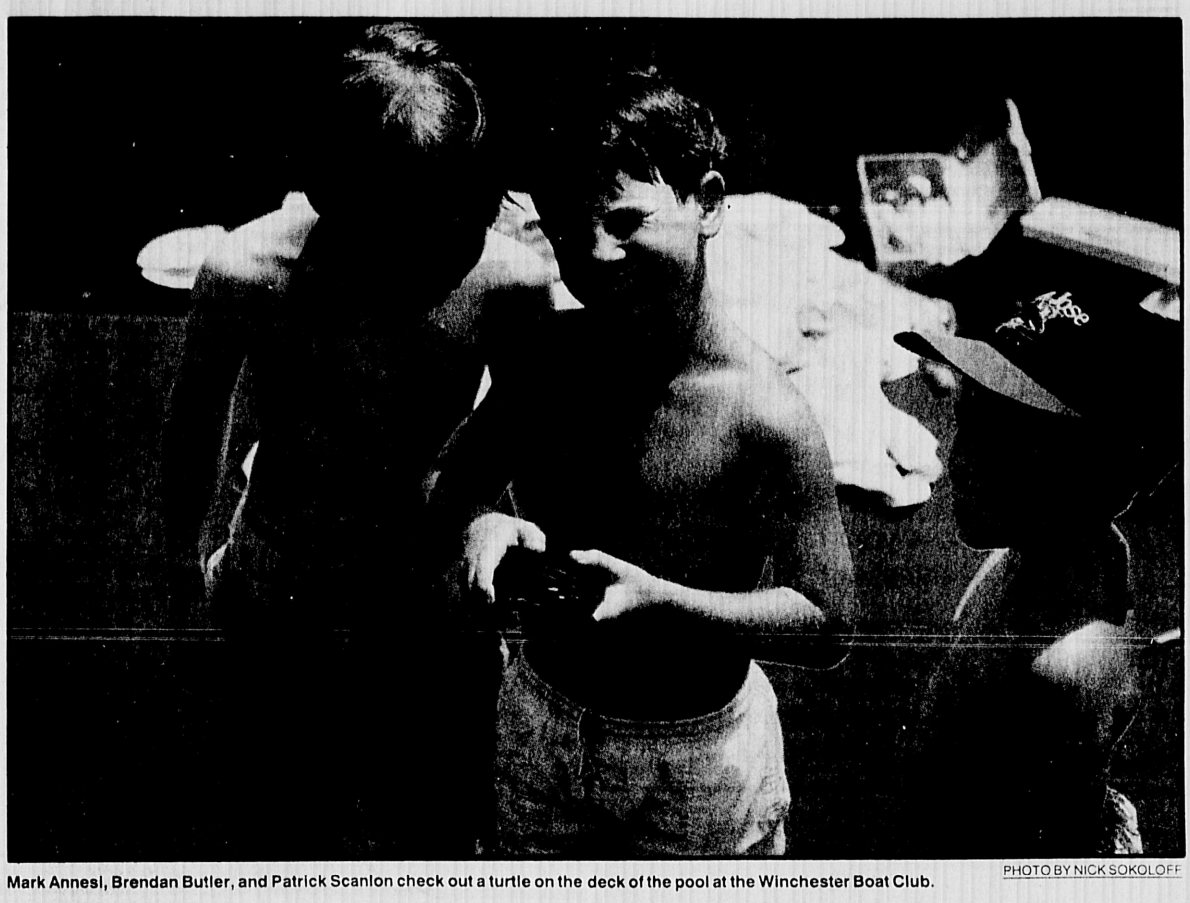

Jon Pier von Halle, a Winchester resident, presented a noise complaint to the board at its July 28 meeting on behalf of residents living near Tighe Trucking Company. Halle told the board that he and his neighbors were tired of being rattled out of bed at 2 a.m., on weekends.

"It's loud enough to wake us up even with the windows closed," he said.

John Tighe, vice president of Tighe Trucking, reported that his company sometimes has trucks leaving on runs at those hours, but not seven days a week. Most of the late night noise, he

Dedicated coaches mark youth soccer

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

Just what is the secret behind the success of the Winchester Youth Soccer program?

Though not quite as carefully guarded as the original formula for Coca-Cola, Winchester's success is rivaled by few in the state. Winchester was at the forefront of soccer excellence well before the famed "No. 1 team in the country" status ordained upon the 1990 girls high school varsity team.

While much of the credit has been directed toward Winchester High varsity girls coach Chris Scanlon, the town has been lucky enough to have a core of dedicated parents who are interested in more than simply watching little Susie kick a ball around a wide expanse of grass.

Bud Temple is a perfect example of a person who has gone above and beyond the normal call of duty of the typical athlete's parent. A married professional man with a full-time dental practice and two children, Temple took on the challenge of coaching more than six years ago.

Today, he is considered one of the top youth coaches in Massachusetts.

Temple, along with Bill Corkery, Sharon Dexter, Larry Frisoli and Alex Popp, is one of a group of coaching parents who have been laying the foundation for the success of future Sachemette squads. In the past three years, Temple has been the head or assistant coach for four state-champion winning girls teams.

In 1991, Temple was the assistant coach for the 12 and under team, which won the Division 1 state championship. In '92, he was the

MICHAEL SAYRE
RESIDENT WHO IS SKATING FROM LOS ANGELES TO BOSTON TO RAISE MONEY FOR CANCER RESEARCH

He's on a roll for cancer research

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

From sea to shining sea. That simple phrase from the song "America, the Beautiful" has a lot more meaning for Winchester's Michael Sayre today.

WINCHESTER ACHIEVERS

On Saturday, the 20-year-old Middlebury College student, along with fellow SCATE (Stop Cancer Across The Earth) members Ted Leach, Courtney Mather and Hieu Nguyen, will complete a 63-day, 3,300-mile cross-country in-line skate with a Victory for Cancer reception and celebration at Faneuil Hall in Boston.

In an effort to raise both awareness of and money for cancer research, the quartet departed from Los Angeles on June 5 on a two-month trans-continental trek. The team set an ambitious fund-raising goal of $500,000 for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Although their dollar expectations have fallen short thus far, the group hopes its primary goal of raising cancer awareness has been met.

In a phone interview from Darien, Conn., Monday, Sayre recounted the thrill of seeing and touching the Atlantic Ocean for the first time in over eight weeks.

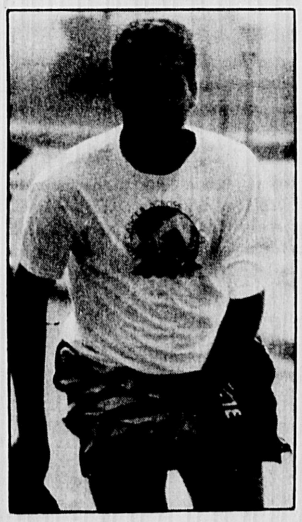

"I didn't realize the ocean would be the one thing I really missed," said Sayre. "I've had a permanent smile on my face ever since we hit New England."

The trip across the nation came with all sorts of surprises for the SCATE team, which had spent an exhaustive year preparing for the journey. There were roadblocks of all types. Dirt and gravel paths just seemed to end. Police officers insisted they acquire insurance and permits. Flood waters in the Midwest forced the team to skate along hazardous, wet roads.

Through it all, the team found that a grass-roots effort, talking with people in small towns where wheat, coal or corn was the the community lifeline, had the most profound effect.

"I'll never forget the people we met and the things we saw," said Sayre. "It was the most incredible experience of my life."

This Saturday, the town of Winchester, along with Boston and the rest of the state, will honor the four SCATE members with several ceremonies. At 9:30 a.m., Representative Paul Casey and Selectman Peter Van Aken will preside over a welcoming ceremony and final-leg sendoff from the Winchester Town Common.

The team will skate along Massachusetts Avenue through Arlington and Cambridge, arriving at Boston Garden at 11 a.m. A Bauer demo truck will be at the Garden offering in-line skates to anyone wanting to skate the final leg with the SCATE members.

At Faneuil Hall, Boston Bruin Steve Heinze, acting Boston Mayor Thomas Menino and a representative of Governor Weld's office will join Dana Farber physicians and young cancer patients in honoring the SCATE members. A silent auction of Bruins items and SCATE paraphernalia will be ongoing throughout the ceremony, which will be held in the patio area between the South Market and Central Market at Faneuil Hall.

Sayre reported that the team members were in great physical shape as they began their final week of skating. Sayre said his friend Kevin Guarnotta of Winchester was to meet the team in New Haven on Tuesday and skate the rest of the way with them.

While the group has been able to experience the country's landscape from a unique point of view, Sayre said he

Donations flooding in to Midwest

The Winchester community has currently raised approximately $1,600 dollars in its Midwest flood relief effort. Donations have ranged from $200 to $25, according to Winchester Co-operative Bank president Ed Goodwin.

Food donations have likewise been enthusiastic, both at Purity and at the fire station. Purity trucks will transport the food collected locally to Billerica where staff are now working on the logistics concerned with trucking the donations to the Midwest.

Local residents may yet have more opportunity to make a donation effort, as Carolyn O'Brien looks into organizing a benefit.

POLICE LOG

1:55 p.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Arthur Houllahan observed a car with expired registration at Church and Bacon Street. A computer check revealed the license plate of the car was reported stolen out of Boston. The officer stopped the car and spoke with the driver, a 25-year-old Reading man, who stated the car did not belong to him but to a 30-year-old Derry, N.H., man. According to reports, the officer contacted the owner who stated he did not know how the stolen plate got on his car.

■ Officer Steven Fields and Inspector Paul Deluca responded to a report of found property at a Main Street location. On the scene, the officers spoke with a 59-year-old Woburn man who stated that while he was looking through the trash for soda cans he discovered a gun and a wallet wrapped up in a red work rag. According to reports, the gun is a starter pistol and the wallet appears to have on it the impression of a badge.

Sunday, August 1

11:20 p.m.

■ Officer Thomas Romeo spoke with a Burlington woman who stated that she parked her car on level 5 at the hospital at 2:45 p.m., but when she returned at 11:15 p.m. it was gone. The officer reports no broken glass on the ground where the vehicle was stolen.

5:05 p.m.

■ Officer Thomas Groux responded to an Inverness Road residence to assist officer Kevin Mawn on a report of a sick raccoon. The animal appeared to be in a slow moving state and was in an area where children normally play. The raccoon was destroyed.

1:14 p.m.

■ Officer Steven Fields responded to a report of a motor vehicle accident involving four cars with people injured at Church and Bacon Street. At the scene, the officer spoke with a 67-year-old Medford woman who stated she was going north on Bacon Street when she struck the rear end of a vehicle operated by a 44-year-old Winchester man. The second vehicle was pushed forward and struck another car, operated by a 64-year-old Winchester man, who was attempting to make a left turn from Bacon Street. The last vehicle came to rest on the bumper of a car owned by a 73-year-old Medford man. Passengers from the second car and the third car involved in the accident were transported to Winchester hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Saturday, July 31

7:06 p.m.

■ Officers Peter Hersee and Jonathan Dean responded to a Coolidge Road residence on a report that people were attempting to gain entry into the house. At the scene, the officers spoke with a resident who said that she heard banging and scratching noises at the rear door of the home and when the family dog began barking she looked out the window and observed two males, both dressed in dark shirts and blue jeans, running through the back yard. Officer Dean and the police dog did a track into the woods where the suspects had fled, but found no suspects.

Friday, July 30

12:02 p.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Douglas Wilkinson observed a vehicle with expired registration pass his location. While issuing the citation, the officer observed the operator's license to have duplicate status. A status check revealed a warrant out for driver's arrest from the North Andover state police on motor vehicle violations and default charges. The driver, a 31-year-old Medford woman, was taken to the station where she was booked and then transported to the Woburn district court for arraignment.

Wednesday, July 28

10:10 a.m.

■ Officer Kurt Ellis responded to a report of a motor vehicle accident with people injured on Main Street. At the scene, the officer observed that a collision had taken place between a motorcycle and a car. The driver of the car, an 81-year-old Winchester man, was attempting a wide right turn when the driver of the motorcycle, a 19-year-old Winchester man, hit the car on the front right side. The driver of the motorcycle was transported to Winchester hospital for treatment of visible minor injuries.

Tuesday, July 27

10:51 p.m.

■ Officer Steven Fields responded to a Water Street residence on a dog complaint. At the scene, the officer spoke with a resident who stated that a UPS delivery man was bitten on the lower left hip by the family dog when he approached the house to make the delivery. The UPS man is reported to have gone to the hospital to be checked out. The dog is reported to be up to date on shots.

11:10 a.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Steven Fields was dispatched to a Main Street business on a report of a breaking and entering. On arrival, the officer spoke with an employee who stated that when she came in to work in the morning, she discovered a cash drawer open. Entry was apparently gained, according to reports, through the rear kitchen window.

Commuters' cars broken into at depot

The Wedgemere Depot parking lot was the scene recently of a number of thefts from motor vehicles.

At least four cars were either broken into or vandalized at the train station parking lot on Tuesday, July 27, and Wednesday, July 28, according to police reports. The incidents all occurred sometime between 7:15 a.m. and 8:45 p.m., leading police to suspect that cars owned by commuters were the primary targets, according to Lt. James Peirce.

The first larceny occurred between 6:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. July 27. A 39-year-old Winchester woman reported that someone broke into her blue Honda Civic and stole several credit cards. Police recovered some of the credit cards later in the parking lot, but one of the cards, a gas card, is still missing.

Three more incidents occurred sometime between 6:45 a.m. and 8:45 p.m. July 28. A 1990 Jetta, owned by a Winchester man, and a 1986 Jetta, owned by a Woburn woman, were vandalized in attempts to gain entry. In both cases the door handles of the cars were damaged, but nothing was reported stolen.

In the third incident, however, a stereo was stolen from a car owned by a Winchester woman. Entry was gained, according to reports, through the driver's side vent window. The door handle was also damaged.

Lt. James Peirce said the thefts could all have occurred within a few minutes and having a police car patrol the parking lot is no real deterrent.

"They're almost guaranteed the commuters are gone for a while," he said, explaining how the thieves will usually just wait until the police car is gone before they hit the parking lot.

Police have no suspects. The individuals could either be local, Peirce said, or people who just get off at the Wedgemere Depot, hit the cars in the parking lot and then get back on the train to Boston.

Winchester police will be increasing patrols of the parking lot.

Recreation Department considers move

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Winchester's Recreation Department may be in the business of providing fun for local children and adults, but without more space to operate no one will be laughing as the department loses more programs, according to director Lee Evans.

"Sometimes I feel like the Recreation Department is a traveling circus," Evans told the Board of Selectmen at its Aug. 3 meeting.

Evans said she was there to ask for more space. Specifically, she asked for space that would centralize the Recreation Department and give it a home base to work from.

"We need a home, a place to be where we're not always being bumped," she said.

Evans said that at the moment her department relies on getting space at any other town building it can, like the library, Lynch School or McCall School. She presented some hard facts and her opinions on them concerning the status of the Recreation Department.

She reported, for instance, that while in 1987 the Recreation Department offered 82 programs and served 12,000 people the numbers had increased last year to 500 programs serving 30,000 people.

Also, Evans said the Recreation Department is functioning at a cost that is $100,000 less than what it was operating on five years ago. As an example of that cost efficiency, she reported numbers on the tennis program.

In 1987, the cost of the tennis program was $25,000 and 250 lessons were given, while last year there was no cost and 600 lessons were given, she reported. She said, if anything, the Recreation Department saved the town $75,000 in the past three years on that program alone.

Evans asked the board whether it would consider allowing the Mystic School to be used for the new home of the Recreation Department. On a scale of 1 to 10 she rated the Mystic School building a 9 for that purpose.

The Mystic School building, however, has already been chosen as the site for an assisted living facility. Preliminary plans are under way to tear the building down and build the new facility.

Selectman Steve Powers said although the Mystic School may once have been a good place for the Recreation Department, that isn't the case any more because there is another purpose for the building that takes priority, housing for the elderly.

"And going from a 2 to a 5 would be an improvement," he said, referring to Evans' rating scale. She rated the current situation for the Recreation Department as a 2 and another possible home base, the Sanborn House, as a 5.

"At the Sanborn House, you'd have, at least, a home," Powers added.

Evans said the Sanborn House would not solve the Recreation Department's problem of finding a space large enough to accommodate gym classes and it is further not handicap accessible.

Selectmen Chairman Peter VanAken questioned whether the Recreation Department really needs to be centrally located. He said he believes housing for the elderly takes priority over the needs of the Recreation Department.

"The thing that makes Mystic attractive for you is the same thing that makes it attractive for housing. The fact of the matter is we also have quite a growth in the number of elderly in Winchester," VanAken said.

The Board of Selectmen will take the Recreation Department's need for space under advisement and is willing to work with Evans on straightening out the issue, VanAken concluded.

Shannon uses his two terms served to prepare for a third

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Sen. Charles Shannon (R-Winchester) may have recently come around the bend of his second term in office, but he's not slowing down near the finish line. He's speeding up.

Shannon, who said he just turned 50, laughs about whether he would still consider himself an Independent Republican Activist (IRA) and put the question in philosophical terms.

"I think you have to have the independence. When you're up there, it's not a party. People would love to believe it's parties, but I don't have that philosophy because I'm in a district 9 to 1 where Democrats vote for me because of my independence. I speak for them, I don't speak for the party," he said.

Shannon hopes that philosophy will carry him to a third term, for which he soon plans to start laying the groundwork.

"It takes quite a while to accomplish things," he said, adding that term limits would be a good idea if the legislation concerning them carried certain stipulations.

"It would be a good idea to bring the person who's won the election into the office and introduce them to what's been done to see if they want to carry it on. It's like a business. And people would be best served in that capacity," he said.

Throughout the past two terms and in his political career in general, Shannon said the biggest issues for him concern the MWRA. Shannon cited the "inept" workings of the legislature among the causes for dramatic increases in water rates.

Sen. Charles Shannon

"I think if the devaluation of property due to the MWRA really starts to hurt a community, due to the economic effects on the value, we may be in for some state funding for education," he said.

Shannon recently filed an amendment to strike out a section of the supplemental budget which enabled the Department of Environmental Protection, through a water surcharge, to make sure all cities and towns comply with the Federal Safe Water Drinking Act. But it failed.

"I feel a state agency shouldn't be getting money outside of the general revenue, so you can keep tabs on their growth," he said.

He recently filed another amendment, however, that was adopted. The legislation requires health care providers to report charges for services, actual payment for services and other information at the purchaser's request. The amendment is very consumer oriented, he explained, and will help people make better informed health care decisions.

Concerning education reform legislation in the past year, Shannon said that some people will be happy and some not.

"We did the best we could," he said.

The state has given more control to the local principals, he said, adding that tenure is gone but "just cause" is there to protect the teachers so they aren't left without a means or redress if an injustice has been committed against them.

Next year, Shannon reported, an approximate $185 million of funding for state education will be taken out of the state budget. The name of the game, he said, is where it will be taken from.

"Everyone is holding their hat out for the lottery as the savior, but how much can the poor give gambling before they are extremely lost and in debt?" he asked.

In Winchester, Shannon sees people looking at the budget and deciding whether the education personnel cost is too heavy. Most people are looking at salaries that teachers have, he said, without realizing some teachers have attained these salary over 30 years of work.

"But people are angry that children aren't passing the basic scores of education. And because money is a finite object, everything will be scrutinized," he said.

Shannon said he hopes, however, that people will use the new tools specified in Foundation Funding legislation to enhance education rather than destroy it by setting up "little fiefdoms of power."

"That's why parents have to be involved in children's education," he said. "The state shouldn't be the parent."

CLOSING COSTS DEDUCTIONS

QUESTION: I signed a lot of checks during the closing of the purchase of our home. Can you tell me which closing costs are deductible from my income tax?

ANSWER: Property taxes are usually pro-rated so that both the buyer and seller each pay the taxes for the portion of the year that each owns the property. Each may deduct this amount. Another deductible item is interest charged to the seller on the mortgage up to the date of closing. Also deductible as interest is the amount charged as points.

Fire insurance, FHA mortgage insurance, and charges for rent for occupancy before closing are not deductible.

MANY CLOSING COSTS ARE DEDUCTIBLE. Keep good records so as not to lose any.

Updated 'Babes in Toyland' is still classic fun

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

The recent Cooperative Theatre production of "Babes in Toyland" may have been slightly different than the original, but the good guys were still good and the bad guys still bad.

"The original version was very, very dated," said Lori Lerman, who wrote the script and musical adaptations of the original 1930's play.

The staff did use the original music, but just the melodies, not the words, Lerman said, because they were a bit too flowery and not exactly right for 90's kids. The words were drawn mostly from the the 1950's Walt Disney movie, she said. Lerman and her family watched the movie over and over to to get the words written down, which she summed up as a repetitive, but family, experience.

The movie ends in a big battle between the good and evil characters in the story, which was something else they had to rewrite because the stage at Lincoln School was too small for a similar battle, Lerman said.

For their ending, the concept of a machine that turns toys into people and people into toys, depending which way they go through it, was developed. Barnaby, the villain in the story, is turned into a toy in Lerman's script.

"We tend, when we write for the summer, to write for the students, tailor the script," she said, adding that the outcome isn't revealed until everyone involved gets a good sense for the characteristics of the actors.

Some of the funnier moments in the script, as indicated from the laughs of audience members, had to do with one of Barnaby's henchpersons, Hillary, played by Tia Napolitano.

Some of her lines bore resemblances to what we might have expected a more famous Hillary, namely the first lady, to say. In short, the character was prone to interject familiar slogans, like comments about health care, in the dialogue.

"We try to write a script for the kids and also for the adults," she said.

Lerman wrote the script last summer for "Beauty and the Beast" and has worked on various other scripts in the past. She has been playing the piano since she was five and taught the instrument for 15 years in Winchester.

Three of her children were involved in the production. Her two daughters, Amy and Debbie, were choreographers while her son, David, played Tom the Piper's Son in two of the four performances.

"It's a lot of fun to do it as a family," she said, adding that her husband didn't participate in the production, but was there in the audience cheering for each of the four performances.

David Lerman said his second "Babes in Toyland" show was his eighth performance in the Cooperative Theatre. He started his acting career last year in the theater's production of "Beauty and the Beast."

He loves acting and plans to stick with it as long as he can, he said, adding that the most enjoyable moment in the production was the end show because it is the culmination of all the hard work.

"It's great to go up before the audience and do everything you've learned in four weeks," he said.

David said although he had a bit of difficulty learning the lyrics to the songs, the lines of dialogue proved to be no problem. It was just a matter of sitting down and reading them a lot of times, he said.

Lerman said that both she and Catherine Alexander, the director, will miss the theater until it starts again next year. Preliminary plans have been discussed for expanding both the length and the number of people involved in the production next year, Lerman said.

"Five weeks is too short," she said.

Alexander said the show was the culmination of the whole Cooperative Theatre summer program. The students also write and perform skits, study dramatic scenes and perform weekly their work weekly.

Funds for the production were raised from students' tuition and the tickets for the shows. Tuition for four weeks cost $300 and a ticket to see "Babes in Toyland" cost $5. Alexander said those funds covered the production costs, barely.

She said she started the summer Cooperative Theatre because she couldn't accommodate all the students during the rest of the year.

Generally, Alexander said, the kids are given work on Mondays and perform it on Fridays at 11 a.m. Kids from grades two through eight performed in the plays and the final show show. There were 39 actors in "Babes in Toyland."

"We have an incredible range of experience," Alexander said.

She said her program is unique because it is the only local one with kids from outside Winchester participating. Some of the students come from Arlington, Medford, and one student from Wilmington. The most well attended performance of "Babes in Toyland" drew approximately 300 people, she said.

FOOT NOTES

by Joseph B. Gimbel, D.P.M.

COMMON MYTHS ABOUT FOOT INJURIES

During this season of increased activity and outdoor fun, it is especially important to be aware of a few basics in the area of foot and ankle injuries. One of the most common mistakes people make is to soak an injury in hot water. This actually increases swelling and pain by stimulating blood flow to the area. Always elevate the foot and apply ice wrapped in a cloth as soon as possible after injury, and then seek professional help. Contrary to popular belief, the fact that someone can still move a foot or even walk on it following an injury does NOT automatically mean it isn't broken. Toe fractures in particular are often ignored because people believe that treatment isn't necessary.

Athletically inclined or not, no one can afford to play games with persistent foot injuries, diseases and disorders. Podiatric problems demand the attention of a professional. Don't let podiatric problems keep you on the sidelines. We offer treatment of specific problems, as well as preventive care to keep you on your feet. At 677 Massachusetts Ave., Arlington, we also do workers comp and accident cases. PH: 641-0107. House call appointments available, & we do nursing home work.

P.S. The terms "fracture" and "break" may be used interchangeably when describing a broken bone.

FROM THE JENKS CENTER

Jenks Center presents 'Strangers in Good Company'

The video tape entitled "Strangers in Good Company" will be shown in the Jenks Room on Aug. 6 at 12:45 p.m. The film depicts what happens when eight women are stranded on a bus in the woods of Canada. Cynthia Scott, the creator of the film, has given voice to a segment of society more often than not associated with vulnerability and marginal existence. The result is proof that there are many things we never become too old for, including new friendships. The film is well worth the viewing — come and enjoy. There is no charge, no prior registration is required, and the air-conditioning at the center is great.

Ceramics classes back in swing

The ceramics classes, suspended during the month of July, resumed on Monday, Aug. 2, at 10 a.m., and will continue weekly hereafter. Newcomers are always welcome.

Mini-Organ and Educational Organ Program

Ralph Thorpe, educational director for East Coast Piano and Organ Company, will present a special senior citizen education program, with a recital of excerpts of great music and an outline of the methods of learning to play piano and organ as a new and different retirement hobby. The presentation will be in the Jenks Center Craft Room, Wednesday, Aug. 11, 10:30 a.m. There is no charge, — and no prior registration required. This is a WSA Education Committee program.

Vacancy on Council on Aging

The Winchester Council on Aging, which operates out of the Jenks Senior Center, has an opening on its board and welcomes applications. Letters of interest should be directed to Peter Van Aken, chairman of the Board of Selectmen. The Council on Aging is a town board consisting of 11 residents appointed by the Board of Selectmen for three-year rotating terms. It is concerned with long-range plans and policies for the benefit of all Winchester seniors. The C.O.A. is also responsible for interdepartmental collaboration within town and coordination with the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs and Minuteman Home Care. If any Winchester resident would like to know more about the workings of the council, feel free to call Barbara Ciampa, Administrator, at the center, 721-7136.

Come and try out the horseshoe pit

Seniors are reminded that the horseshoe pit is ready and all systems are "go." You are invited to join a team or, if you wish, spontaneous "pick up" games can be arranged. Horseshoes and the stakes are available at any time from the Jenks Center reception desk. All seniors are welcome to use the equipment and the court. One requirement: horseshoes and stakes must be returned after use lest they end up among the missing.

New members needed for Building and Grounds Committee

The Winchester Seniors Association Building and Grounds Committee, which is responsible for all maintenance actions in the Jenks Center as well as keeping the grounds attractive, has openings for new members. In carrying out these responsibilities, the committee supervises the work of two part-time custodians, and contracts for work as required. The committee meets monthly except in the summer. Any senior interested in participating in this important work is invited to call the chairman, Tony Nowlan, at 729-8998, for further information.

Festival was held. Each senior was asked to wear a favorite hat. John Null was Master of Ceremonies and, in his Bob Hope style of laid back humor, carried the program through a full agenda. Joe Doherty beautifully sang "Edelweiss." Joyce Minnehan, a retired nurse, informed the seniors about the appropriate hats to protect them from the sun. Jeanette Baird read "I Shall Wear Purple," a popular poem. There were games and puzzles and a short visit from a senior dressed in a 1920's woolen bathing suit (with obvious moth holes), carrying a beach ball and stating he was looking for Wedge Pond. This was Mert Ober looking trim and fit. An interesting trivia quiz about hats stumped some of the seniors. The program was climaxed by a hat parade with June Hall at the piano and Barbara Ciampa and John Null singing "In Your Summer Bonnet" as seniors displayed their hats.

The judges, Eleanor Matson and Leonor Rich, themselves adorned with charming hats, chose the following winners in the several categories: Most elegant lady's hat: Mary Campbell. Most floral hat: Mary Lavin. Most creative hat: Cassie Gountanis. Most comical hat: Joe Donlan. Most antique hat: Mary Burton. Most unusual hat: Kay Philbrick. Most colorful hat: Janice Heaton. Handsomest hat worn by a gentleman: Vincent Carroll. Most ethnic hat: John Null. Most practical hat: Mary Peterson.

The program was recorded by TV Committee members Frank Wilder and Mert Ober.

Winchester teacher participates in workshop at Tufts

Walter Soule, a science teacher at McCall Middle School, participated in an three-day workshop on space science and aerospace engineering during late June at Tufts University.

McCall was one of 70 science education professionals, most of them from middle and high schools across the United States, who attended conferences devoted to bringing sky-high concepts of the cosmos down to the classroom.

The conference was a cooperative program of the Massachusetts Space Grant Consortium and the Wright Center for Innovative Science Education at Tufts University.

Leonardi graduates from Fenn School

Michael Alexander Leonardi of High Street, Winchester, graduated from the Fenn School in Concord at ceremonies held June 11.

While at Fenn, Leonardi received honors for academic achievement and was on the yearbook staff. He was captain of the soccer team and was awarded letters in baseball, basketball, hockey and soccer.

He has been accepted to the sophomore class at Governor Dummer Academy in September.

Leonardi is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard K. Leonardi.

McCabe named to Emerson dean's list

Eileen M. McCabe, a writing, literature and publishing student at Emerson College, was named to the dean's list for the spring academic semester. Students receiving dean's list recognition must earn a minimum 3.45 grade point average for the semester.

Residents graduate from Newbury College

Winchester residents Maria Dellasala and Anne Cantillon received associate's degrees in applied science from Newbury College at the college's 30th commencement ceremony on May 23. Dellasala received her degree in opticianry, cum laude. Cantillon received her degree in physical therapist assistant, also cum laude.

Area students named to Bentley dean's list

Bentley College Undergraduate Dean H. Lee Schlorff has announced the names of residents who earned dean's list honors for outstanding academic achievement in the spring semester.

To be named to the dean's list, a student must have a grade point average of 3.3 or higher with no course grade below 2.0 during the term.

Winchester students named to the dean's list include Colleen Green, a senior majoring in marketing, Mark C. Hazel, a sophomore majoring in marketing, and Holly M. McAvey, majoring in economics-finance.

WINCHESTER KERNELS

Colonel William P. Winchester

729-1800

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

That important number immediately puts all of Winchester in touch with its fire department for all fire or medical emergencies.

Such wasn't always the case and, prior to the mid 1870s, a fast horse made all the difference between dousing an incipient fire and losing everything.

The first fire alarm telegraph in Winchester was activated with keys in each fire district. Each district was provided with three keys — and these in turn were placed in three houses in the immediate vicinity of the boxes.

It was commonly assumed that at least one of the three houses would be occupied during the urgency of an alarm. The locations of these keys were well known throughout the still predominately rural town of Winchester.

By 1877, the department could boast of one Hunneman Steam fire engine, one chemical engine, one hook-and-ladder carriage, one horse-hose carriage, four hand hose carriages (The existing Black Horse Hose carriage is one of these), one two-wheeled hose carriage and an ammunition wagon.

Each member of the hose companies was paid $15 per annum with the exception of the West Side Company which volunteered its services — but did not assist in calls outside of its district.

By 1885, Fire Chief C.T. Symmes admonished the town on the large number of its false alarms and suggested that citizens refrain from burning garden refuse after dark — as it was often impossible to distinguish the light of a simple bonfire from that of a burning building.

In 1885 an electrical connection was made between the firehouse on Winchester Place and the Loring and Avery Tannery at Main and Swanton streets. The sounding of the whistle atop the tannery announced a fairly accurate location of a suspected fire — and the watchman at the tannery received $1 from the town each time he detected a fire and sounded the whistle.

In 1889, four new boxes were cut into the telegraph system and the names of those who held the keys were published in the town journals.

Horses employed to draw the fire fighting equipment were the property of the highway department and oft times were in use when an alarm came in.

In one instance those horses were employed in grading Forest Street near the Stoneham line when an alarm of fire came in for a barn off Grove Street.

By the time the horses arrived at Central Fire Station, Bacon's barn had been reduced to cinders.

The ancient whistle atop the tannery on Swanton Street (later called Beggs and Cobb) survived 70 years until the present air horn was installed at Central Fire Station in 1958.

The last vestige of the fire service of the last century, it still sounds its clarion call across Winchester at the two 7:30 tests each day — and is a valid indicator of "no school" days during inclement winter weather.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 20 - Report No. 27
July 26-30, 1993

THE HOUSE AND SENATE — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on six roll calls and local representatives' votes on four roll calls from the week of July 26-30.

$12.3 MILLION WELFARE(H 5300) — House 118-32, Senate 24-8 overrode Gov. Weld's reduction of $12.3 million in funding for Emergency Assistance for the Elderly, Disabled and Children welfare program. The vote also restored eligibility for 18- to 21-year-old students and adults involved in vocational education programs.

Override supporters said Weld's cuts will hurt some 3,700 disabled people in training programs and full-time high school students who are homeless or are refugees from war-torn countries.

Override opponents said the cuts do not take away any benefits from any disabled person but simply require certain proof of the disability. They argued the program will still help the very needy but will also encourage part-time, able-bodied high school students to work a part-time job and learn to become self-sufficient.

A Yes vote is for restoring the $12.3 million. A No vote is against the $12.3 million).

Sen. Charles Shannon voted yes.

Rep. Paul Casey voted yes.

EX-PRISONERS(H 5300) — House 118-33, Senate 30-3 overrode Gov. Weld's veto of $400,000 in funding for an offenders' employment resource system.

Override supporters said this program helps ex-offenders become employed and reduces the number of repeat offenders.

Override opponents said the State cannot afford the $400,000 and argued convicts should be trained and educated while they are in prison and not when the are back out on the streets.

A Yes vote is for restoring the $400,000. A No vote is against the $400,000.

Shannon voted yes.

Casey voted yes.

SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET(S 1705) — Senate 33-0, gave near final approval to a $104 million fiscal 1993 supplemental budget.

Supporters said the package will close out the books on fiscal 1993 and provide money for hundreds of underfunded accounts. The House has passed a $250 million version of the budget and a House-Senate conference committee will now hammer out a compromise version.

A Yes vote is for the budget. A No vote is against it.

Shannon voted yes.

DEFENSE CONVERSION(S 1705) — Senate 18-16, rejected an amendment providing $3.5 million for a Massachusetts Technology Development Partnering Program.

Amendment supporters said this money will help the state's defense-related companies submit proposals for federal grants to help convert the companies' defense technologies to civilian ones.

Amendment opponents argued the money can be better spent on other programs to help conversion. They said the federal government has informed states that giving state grants to companies could jeopardize federal funding and be considered a sign that the companies are not financially

Writing more than a story

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

When a member of the local Senior Center asked me again this year to teach a writing course there, I knew just what it would mean: an hour of browsing among ideas and perceptions and memories with my 10 or 12 "students" and a general sense of feeling more alive than I did at almost any other time in my week.

At each session we would read aloud what class members had written in the previous weeks. In addition, to help clarify our thoughts, we used as an informal text "If You Want to Write," by one Brenda Ueland, who in her 93 years on the planet, produced over 6 million words herself.

In this book, Ms. Ueland says she learned that you should feel, when writing "like a child stringing beads in kindergarten — happy, absorbed, quietly putting one bead after another." "Don't try to be smarter than you are," she advises. "Don't write what you don't feel." "Gradually," she promises, "you will learn more and more to be free, to say all you think."

Van Gogh once asked, "Who will be in figure painting what Monet is in landscape? Who will paint lightheartedly the beautiful things and people here? This painter who is to come — I can't imagine him living in little cafes, working away with false teeth as I do." Ms. Ueland quotes this in her book. She urges us to leave behind all such self-doubt and write with light hearts ourselves. "Don't be afraid to put yourself in a bad light," she adds. "For the life in the words lies in the truth and freedom with which they are spoken." "Be a lion! Be a pirate!"

So we gave it a try.

One class member wrote of a dream he had in which, before playing piano for a large audience, he was visited by the great Chopin and given advice on technique; then walked out on the stage only to discover, that "both trousers and underwear were missing" from his concert attire. "I've never done this before!' he called out to those watching his panicked flight. 'I despise flashers!' "

Another described the delight she felt over what she dreamed she'd caused to grow in her living room: "The grass was beautiful, thick and light green," this piece began, "from the couch to the sliding doors to the porch, from the tall bookcases to the wall — one perfect inch high all over."

One student writing on "my elderly relative" described "a woman with a small face, fair skin, some wrinkles, a small nose and very blue eyes," then went on to talk of her own life: her excellent health, her frolicsome cat, the ritual of her daily bath. "As I comb my hair...I feel about 20," it goes on. "But when I look in the mirror, I don't see a 20-year-old, but an elderly woman with a small face, fair skin, some wrinkles..." Its theme: the strange alchemy of Time that changes us so utterly on the outside while leaving us the same within.

Time's alchemy spoke to us all in this class. One wrote of how he ran away nearly 90 years ago, saw a cow, was captured again by womenfolk, then given "cool milk from the cellar, a warm sponging, and clean sheets on which to dream of freedom." Others wrote of loons on a lake; of a girlhood propensity for tears; of a dear figure in a felt hat slowly dropping seeds along a furrow. Birthday meals, lovingly prepared. The "soothing substance" known as sand. A friend who died just lately on a ship in Hong Kong Harbor.

By course's end, together we had learned several things: that the best writing comes unselfconsciously. That it comes from the heart more than the mind. And that whatever love is or may be, neither time nor distance can mute its power.

The dream of indoor grass, for example, grew ominous when a neighbor hinted at trouble from the Housing Authority: "Suddenly there was a familiar arm around my shoulder," its author went on. "'Don't worry, we'll go there together!'" said a voice which the reader at once realizes is, for now at least, stilled.

So too, this, by a man describing his father: "I see his face, the long jaw, the wide nose...I see his hands." "I see his clothes," it goes on. "He's been gone nearly 50 years, but I know I will know him in an instant."

Thus does all writing speak of the beauty and mystery of our lives here. But much of the best of it speaks of love. And remembrance. And the steadfast heart.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Strife on the loose

To the editor:

I have become convinced that the beautiful pink or purple weed known as "loose-strife" that has, during the last decade or two, infested all of our local swampland and river or brook areas, driving out the local Joe-Pye Weed, fireweed, etc., will wind up putting all of our local tomato farmers out of business.

Why do I say that? Well, take my own efforts for instance. Most of my vines have never looked better, as far as the vines themselves are concerned. Four feet high, in 18-inch cages, the plants are about as healthy as plants can be, except for one thing: There is almost no fruit on the vines. Where the fruit should hang in clusters of four or five tomatoes on a stem, I find none at all, or at most, one or two.

So, you may ask, what has all this got to do with the beautiful loose-strife? In my opinion, it is all a matter of honey. Take a good look at a thriving tomato vine. Note the scrawny little, inconspicuous blossoms, sparsely scattered throughout the vine. I predict that you may find a blossom or two, but I doubt if you will be lucky enough to see a bee at work.

Now go down to the duck pond behind the library along the Parkway side or behind the fence on Skillings Drive across from the high school. Note the hundreds of flower heads on top of each upright stem and the thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of stems, all ending in six-inch flower heads, all right on top where the bees can find and get at them. In my opinion, that is where they are, and I believe that if you look closely enough, that is where you will find them.

It so happens that one of those immigrant weeds has made a home for itself right on my front lawn. I suppose I could chop it out, but what's the use? I am too old to fight, and after all, it is your problem not mine. I will still get all the tomatoes I can eat. I am afraid it is you who will go without!

Clarence Borggaard
Winchester

Heartfelt thank you

To the editor:

We would like to extend our sincere thanks to our neighbors and to Officers Houllahan and Fields.

For more than one hour on Monday morning, July 26, these caring people searched the neighborhood and surrounding woods for our missing 2½-year-old son, Kevin.

Fortunately, Kevin is safe and sound, and we want all involved to know how much we appreciate their efforts.

This proves to us, once again, what special people we have in our town.

Wedge Pond adds 'refreshing' change

To the editor:

Three cheers on Wedge Pond — one for the board of selectmen, town meeting members and recreation department staff who made it possible; one for the hardworking volunteers who invested their "sweat equity" to get the facility back in shape; and one for Clarence Borggaard for his indefatigable energy in keeping everyone's eye on the prize. Well done!

Being able to come home from a long day of work at the state's Department of Environmental Management and to take my 5- and 7-year-olds for a refreshing and relaxing swim at this wonderful and convenient facility adds a whole new dimension to life in Winchester during the hot summer months.

Our family recommends it to everyone in town.

Frederick W. Lyman
Washington Street

ON THE RECORD

Town Meeting member Ralph Johnson appeared before the Board of Health's recent meeting to publicly thank the board for its efforts in getting Wedge Pond open again. Johnson said his real reason for attending was to thank Board of Health director Joe Tabby for the effort he put forth. "He really went above and beyond his duty," Johnson said, summing up his perspective on Tabby's efforts. "I just wanted the public to know that," he said.

The Winchester Board of Selectmen was set to vote on Aug. 3 on whether to transfer $10,000 from the Housing Fund for the preparation of the Mystic School construction, but Werner Carlson, chairman of the Winchester Housing Authority, went before the board and asked it to wait until he's had a chance to meet with state representatives to find out how elderly housing is being handled in other towns. Carlson said he was planning a meeting with Sen. Charles Shannon (R-Winchester), Rep. Paul Casey (D-Winchester) and the state housing secretary to get the appropriate information. One of the questions facing the housing authority, Carlson said, is whether it wants to integrate other programs like day care within an assisted living facility for the elderly.

Town Manager Chadwick Maurer informed selectmen at their Aug. 3 meeting that preliminary proposals have come in from firms interested in designing the water treatment plant. He said the engineering firms, as required, will be qualified, competitive in their bidding and experienced in the construction of such facilities. Interviews of the firms should begin after Aug. 23, he said.

The Winchester/Arlington waste oil facility will be open between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 7. The opening of the facility was awaiting a decision in Arlington on whether that town would accept the responsibility for sharing the costs with Winchester. Volunteers will be trained to operate the facility, but this weekend Winchester officials will handle the waste oil, which requires a special hazardous waste permit.

AROUND TOWN

RECREATION NEWS

Junior Tennis Tournament to be held

One of the big events of the summer is the Junior Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Cambridgeport Bank. It will be held Aug. 16-20. The Recreation Department offers a week of two-hour sessions designed to prepare young tennis players for tournament competition. The programs will run Monday through Friday, Aug. 9-13, from 10 a.m., until noon.

Specifically, players will concentrate on court strategies and match play. In the event of rain, the program will meet at the Winchester Indoor Tennis Club, 41 East St. Call the recreation office to register.

Binding aids in flood relief

A big thank you goes out to Recreation Day Camps counselor, Amy Binding!

After learning of the disastrous flooding in the midwest, Amy handed out a notice to all campers asking for donations of water and non-perishable food to be brought into camp. Within three days, many generous, kind-hearted campers were arriving to camp with bags full of necessities to be sent out to the flood victims. At the end of the week Amy filled up her own car with box after box of donations and traveled to the Malden Stop and Shop.

A WBZ Flood Relief Truck had been parked in the parking lot accepting donations. Once the truck was filled, it was sent out to the flood areas to where it was most needed. Many midwesterners benefited from Amy and other Winchesters residents who wanted to help. They will never know the people who worked so hard to help them in their time of need.

Thank you Amy for all your efforts. We've noticed and we're proud to have you as part of our day camp staff.

The A-B-Cs of soup

Alphabet Soup — a recreational group for children, taught by Annette Kennedy, will be available this fall at the Winchester Recreation Department. Activities will include music, movement, creative experiences, listening, language, and self image.

Alphabet Soup is specifically designed for toilet-trained children who were age 2 on or before June 1, 1993, through age 3. Participants have a choice of Monday through Thursday, for a maximum of two days per week. If there is space available one week before the program starts, participants may add an extra day. For each day registered, there is a $12 materials fee payable to the instructor at the first class, and a down payment of $86 for each day registered is due at time of registration and the balance is due by Nov. 1. Classes will not meet the weeks of Nov. 22-26, Dec. 20-31, or Oct. 11 and Nov. 11. Instructor/student ratio is one-to-six.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 721-7125.

Co-ed volleyball

A co-ed volleyball team meets on Wednesdays, from 7 to 9 p.m., at Lynch School. Beginner and experienced players are invited to participate for a fee of $2 per person.

Get down!

The Winchester Recreation Department is to hold an adult workshop — Two Steppin' Out — led by Polly Melton.

This workshop teaches dance patterns that can be danced individually or in combination, based on "conversation," "promenade," and "cape" pattern variations. The emphasis will be on transitions between patterns and arm/body positioning and ad flow and style to the repertoire of the intermediate level dancer. Class will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 11, from 7 to 9 p.m., at Lynch School. Fee is $9 per person.

Shaping up

Focus on Fitness workout classes with instructors, Judy Whitney and Gail LaRocca, are available on Tuesdays and Fridays, 9-10 a.m., and Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 6 to 7 p.m., at the Ballet Arts Centre, 755 Main St, Winchester.

This workout is designed to meet the athletic needs of men, women and teenagers. Bring hand-weights, water and a towel or floor mat to class. Drop-in fee for a single class is $4.50. To register, or for more information, call the Winchester Recreation Department at 721-7125 or 721-7126. Babysitting is available.

More floral arranging classes scheduled

Because of the demand for Madeleine DiCicco's classes, the Community Education Department is adding several classes to the summer schedule. These classes will be held on Tuesday and/or Thursday evenings during July and August at the Lynch School.

DiCicco, a native of London, England, has been designing floral arrangements for the past 10 years, and has been teaching adult education classes for five years. Some of her designs are featured in the 1992 and in the upcoming 1993 edition of A Yankee Christmas by Sally Ryder Brady.

On Tuesday, Aug. 10, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., DiCicco and participants will create fresh sea lavender wreaths. The sea lavender used in class will be freshly picked. Participants will create two wreaths. One will be about eight, the other will be between 12 and 14 inches. Participants are reminded to bring wire cutter, glue gun, plenty of glue sticks and scissors to class. Materials fee of $28 is payable to instructor. Registration fee is $14; call 721-7125.

Police warn elderly of scam

Scams designed to bilk elderly residents out of their possessions or money might start happening in Winchester, according to Lt. James Peirce.

An increase has been reported in Lexington and Medford, and while no incidents have been reported in Winchester, police have reason to believe the thieves are moving from one area to another.

The scams include charging people for work that never gets done, or posing as water or electric meter readers to gain access to the house, where they steal "anything that isn't nailed down," Peirce said.

Typically, the people running such scams work in roving teams of two. Lexington reports have described the individuals as usually male. Women have been involved in incidents also, but less frequently, Peirce said.

"Historically, we have this happen about once a year," he said.

Peirce advises that residents stay aware of anyone who comes to their door trying either to sell something or check something inside the house. Legitimate meter readers have identification which should always be checked, he said.

"But don't hesitate to call the police and we'll come down and check them out," he said.

Last year, a similar band of individuals who ran scams hit the Winchester area, Peirce said. They were eventually discovered to be from Chicago families, he added.

Legislature addresses military-defense conversion

Winchester State Rep. Paul C. Casey has announced that the Legislature has included $2 million in the FY 94 budget to help convert industry's military-based production into peacetime needs. Casey said that he supported the appropriation for the conversion effort.

"Many companies in Massachusetts will feel the effects of the scaling back of the military currently under way. I feel we need to take a 'proactive' stance on this issue, and I'm glad others share my concern for the 100,000 jobs that may be lost over the next five years," said Casey.

Five offices across the state will be created with the funds to assist firms in transition from defense production. The program will be modeled after a similar effort in Pennsylvania. Casey noted that he hoped the federal government would use the benefits of lower post-Cold-War spending to match the state grant.

LIBRARY LINES

By Richard Welton
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Library's 'R.O.A.R Corps' is on patrol

As part of the R.O.A.R. (Reach Out And Read) program, the Winchester Public Library's R.O.A.R. Corps has been on patrol all summer. The R.O.A.R. Corps is a summer reading outreach corps for elementary-age children. It consists of students ages 12 to 14 who reach out to those children who do not come into the library during the summer months. Under the guidance of coordinator Marialice Curran, they read aloud at playgrounds, swim clubs, ballet lessons, anywhere that children gather. The R.O.A.R. Corps can be identified by T-shirts and book bags bearing the R.O.A.R. logo and a lion.

During the week of Aug. 9, they are scheduled to pay visits to Ginn Field on Monday through Friday, between 9 and 11 a.m., and again between 2 and 4 p.m. They will drop in at Wedge Pond on Tuesday and Thursday sometime between 2 and 4 p.m. On Thursday they will be at Purity Supreme at 10:15 a.m.

The program is being sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank. The bank is commemorating 100 years of service to the community.

Adam Storeygard of the Winchester Public Library's R.O.A.R. Corp. reads to a group of children outside the Winchester Hospital. The R.O.A.R. (Reach Out and Read) project is extending library services into the community. The R.O.A.R. Corp. reads to children in parks, playgrounds, and other places where children gather. The program is sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank.

Children's Museum to institute fee for users of library passes

The Winchester Public Library has important information for patrons who use the library's pass to the Children's Museum. The museum has decided to institute a fee for users of the pass. The Children's Museum now charges $1 for each person. The usual admission without the pass is $7, $6 for children ages 2-15 and seniors, $2 to 1-year-olds, and free to children under 1. Admission on Friday from 5 to 9 p.m., is $1, with or without a pass. Children under 1 are admitted free at all times.

This new policy is solely the decision of the Children's Museum. The library regrets any inconvenience to our patrons.

Children's room notes

Congratulations to the many summer readers who add to the library beanstalk with each book they read. Everyone in the Summer Reading Program can look forward to attending one of the special "Parties on the Green" on either Wednesday, Aug. 11, or Thursday, Aug. 12. To qualify, readers must complete their three fiction, three nonfiction and three Putting Green Game choices and sign up with one of the children's reference librarians as soon as possible. The parties will be held at Manchester Field behind McCall Middle School from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., with activities for all ages, plus a visit from the ice cream man.

Plans are under way for Camp R.O.A.R., the library sleep-over to be held from Thursday evening, Aug. 19, at 6:30 p.m., to Friday, Aug. 20, at 9 a.m. Children ages 6-8 will need to be accompanied by a parent, with anyone 9 or older staying independently. Snacks will be served on Thursday night, as well as a continental breakfast the following morning. Space is limited, so sign up in the Children's Room in person or by telephone.

Attention young horror fans: Don't forget the classic horror flicks (plus popcorn) on Tuesday, Aug. 10, at 6:30 p.m., in the Meeting Room.

For more information, call the Children's Room at 721-7140.

Now Open Friday & Saturday Til 10 P.M.

LOTTERY ADVERTISING(S 1705) — Senate 24-10, rejected an amendment deleting a section prohibiting the Lottery from conducting direct marketing ad campaigns to homes in any zip code areas where the median household income is less than $25,000 per year. The section also requires that all TV and radio lottery ads include the long odds of winning the lottery game advertised.

Amendment supporters said this section micro-manages the lottery and will eventually reduce revenues and local aid to cities and towns. They said these restrictions were never placed on former Dem. Treasurer Bob Crane and are aimed at hurting Rep. Treasurer Joe Malone.

Amendment opponents said these restrictions will simply prevent ads from being targeted to the poorest communities. They argued the deceptive ads encourage gambling by those who can least afford it.

A Yes vote is against the restrictions. A No vote is for the restrictions.

Shannon voted yes.

PRIVATIZE(H 5345) — House 116-35, gave near final approval to its own version of the bill restricting the Weld administration's ability to privatize state services. The measure permits privatization only if it is proven that a private contractor will deliver equal services for less money. It also requires private vendors to pay its workers the same wages and health benefits which were being paid to state workers prior to privatization.

Supporters said the bill is a balanced one which insures that any privatization saves money and still protects workers.

Opponents said the bill will make it difficult for the Weld administration to continue its privatization efforts designed to save millions of dollars. The Senate has passed a different version of the bill and the measure now goes to a conference committee.

A Yes vote is for the bill. A No vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

Board hears noise complaints

said, comes from other companies' trucks which unload their cargo at Tighe for distribution.

"Sometimes at night, not weekends, trucks pull into our lot and wait until we open, leaving their engines running," he said.

Board members listened quietly as the discussion turned from the problems to to the solutions. Tighe suggested that his company could put up a fence to keep those late night trucks out of its lot and thus, hopefully, out of earshot of the neighboring residents.

Susan Busher, another resident disturbed by the noise of the trucks, expressed an interest in that idea. She reported the noise becomes a problem when more that one truck engine is idling.

"The noise starts to build up," she said, adding that the noise is a "terrible" detriment to the sleep in the neighborhood.

Jim Sharkey, Tighe Trucking warehouse supervisor, said that Tighe trucks have no need to idle and were not made to idle the way long-haul trucks which carry refrigerated loads do.

To facilitate more discussion of the solution, Board member Randall Swartz asked Sharkey whether the supervisors could jot down the times they get noise complaints in logs, so the neighbors and Tighe personnel can get more of an idea about when the noise was taking place.

"Then, at least, there would be some policing," Swartz said.

Swartz also asked if there had been any effort on the part of Tighe Trucking to see whether planting trees and bushes would protect the houses from noise.

Tighe said they had a consultant from Patterson Associates, a company that has done sound-proofing work in the Logan Airport area, look at the situation. The consultant gave no guarantee that a fence, trees or bushes could cut down the noise because of the layout of the buildings, Tighe said.

Board member Dorothea Sopper concluded the discussions by stating that Tighe Trucking should get back to the board with a date it can put up the fence to keep trucks from other companies out of the Tighe lot.

"And you will give your employees sensitivity training," she said, referring to the log books.

Outside seating approved

ed permission, adding that he felt more comfortable now that the board has the control to monitor the situation.

"If it's going to improve business, it's going to improve everyone's business," he said.

Jessaca Jacobson, director of operations for The Coffee Connection, told the board whether they put out three or four tables on the sidewalk they are simply happy to have outside seating.

"I feel confident that we can comply with all the regulations," she said.

The fee for outside use of the sidewalks will be $100, which would allow a business to use the sidewalks on a seasonal basis rather than yearly. Also, permit applicants must obtain liability insurance in the amount of $100,000 that names Winchester as an insured party.

The board will follow several guidelines in granting the permits with which the businesses will have to comply:

- Commercial use will be subject to the prior safety approval of the police and fire departments.
- A minimum clearance of five feet must be maintained back from the curb and between any other permanent object on the sidewalk.
- Permit holders may only use the space immediately in front of their own establishment.
- All objects placed on the sidewalk shall be removed when the establishment is closed, except, at the permit holder's own risk, those that are firmly secured.
- The permit holders will be responsible for adequate trash receptacles for their own activities and will dispose of the trash in a timely manner.
- Food preparation and serving alcohol will not be permitted outside and litter spills must be cleaned up promptly.

Additionally, the board reserves the right to cancel any or all permits if a failure to observe any of the guidelines is observed. The fees collected from the granting of permits will be used for general maintenance of the downtown business district, such as trash pick-ups, repair or purchase of benches.

General common sense, both on the part of the board and on the part of the permit holders, will be hoped for in the permitting process, VanAken said, adding that they've only had one application so far and the idea itself is still in a somewhat experimental stage.

Tompkins stars pitch in to win

Sullivan 'immense' in key win

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

The adage that there's no substitute for quality pitching has been reaffirmed many times over the past 100 or so years, but this year's Lou Tompkins 15-16-year-old All-Star team seems bent on testing the theory once again.

LOU TOMPKINS BASEBALL

Coach Joe Doto's summer league stars, many of whom will contend for starting positions at Winchester High School next spring, offered a textbook example of that old cliche in a pair of games at Manchester Field over the weekend.

On Saturday, first-place Framingham, riding a 6-0 second-round record and a 15-1 overall mark, came to town. The Flyers had been averaging nearly 10 runs per game and Winchester, which had slumped to 1-5 in the second round after earning a gold medal in the first-round playoffs, had seemingly forgotten how to hit.

So how does one explain Winchester's 4-2 victory? Pitching.

Behind a dazzling five-hit, 12-strikeout performance from lefty Andy Sullivan, Winchester vaulted back into contention for the fourth and final playoff spot at the second-round trophy weekend, scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday. Coupled with a 9-8 win Sunday over Cambridge, the victory gave the Sachems a 3-5 record. A win either Tuesday against Arlington or Thursday against Sudbury would assure the locals of a slot in the trophy round.

Doto called Sullivan's performance the best pitching show he'd seen all summer.

"That was, without a doubt, the pitching performance of the season thus far," said Doto. "Here's a kid who's just 15, pitching against maybe the best team in the area, and against kids who are all one level ahead of him, and he shuts them down. He was immense."

Sullivan didn't limit his excellence to the mound, however, as he knocked in what proved to be the game-winning run with a two-out, two-strike, first-inning double that plated Rodrigo Serrano and Jarrod Galante, whom both drew two-out walks. Sullivan caught a hanging curveball from Framingham ace Mike Donahue and ripped it down the right-field line for the two-run two-bagger. Catcher Mike McGreenery followed with a solid double to right-center, and Winchester had a three-run first.

On the mound, Sullivan mixed a sharp breaking ball with a popping fastball to pick up a dozen strikeouts. He allowed a fluke unearned run in the first as a routine grounder to short turned into a three-base misadventure before Framingham's Jason Greive ripped a clean RBI single. He worked out of a two-out jam in the second by inducing a comebacker, and worked a 1-2-3 third.

Sullivan was at his best in the fourth, however, when a pair of singles and a wild pitch put runners on second and third with no outs. Needing a strikeout or a popup to keep the Flyers at bay, Sullivan got both. He struck out Joel Katzen on a blazing high fastball, then got Steve Nanni to pop to Galante at third. He escaped the messy situation by getting Brian Elliott to ground to shortstop on a 3-2 pitch.

Tiring in the afternoon heat, Sullivan used a pair of defensive gems to get out of the sixth. After walking the leadoff hitter, Sullivan sandwiched a pair of strikeouts around a line single to right-center by Matt Iaricci. A successful double steal cut Winchester's lead to 3-2. Nanni then ripped the ball into right-center, where center fielder Mike Millerick charged it and uncorked a tremendous throw toward home. Iaricci, who was headed for the plate, saw the strike to McGreenery and beat a hasty retreat to third.

Elliott then hit a ball up the middle that hit the pitchers rubber and bounded nearly 30 feet into the air. Shortstop Chris Germain caught it behind second and threw a missile to an outstretched Serrano at first to nip Elliott and end the treat.

Matt Elio's clutch two-out hit in the seventh scored pinch runner Chad d'Entremont with an insurance run.

"There are must wins and then there are must wins," said a relieved Doto. "This was a must win."

Sunday afternoon, Winchester built a 9-1 lead over Cambridge, but needed a fielding gem from d'Entremont to pull out a 9-8 win.

Winchester breezed to the early lead as pitchers Jamie Doto and Kevin Caruso used up their allotted innings for the week, working through the fifth. But the relentless Cambridge Nine came back, and Winchester was clinging to a 9-7 edge with runners on first and second and one out in the top of the seventh.

With Paul McGowan on in relief of Bill Shields, d'Entremont made a spectacular over-the-shoulder catch on a short fly to right. Cambridge managed one more run, but McGowan picked up the save.

McGreenery, who was 2 for 3 with a walk, a double, a triple and three RBI, was the Sachems' hitting star. Doto, who pitched three innings, struck out four and gave up one run, and Caruso, who faced six batters in two innings and struck out three, proved why the Sachems are considered one of the best pitching teams in the league.

"I think I've found my ace reliever in Kevin," said Doto of Caruso, who'll be a junior at Belmont Hill School. "We have such good starting pitching, and to have Kevin come in and throw heat with that big curve of his as well could really make it tough on other teams."

Though Winchester will lose several players to various preseason high school camps and vacations over the next two weeks, Doto is confident the Sachems will put a winning team on the diamond.

"Pitching can really make a difference," said Doto. "If these guys throw like they are capable of throwing, we could be in good shape."

NewPro stars hit streak, strike gold

Sweep of East Cambridge vaults Bambino squad to trophy weekend

The NewPro 12-year-old All-Stars captured the gold medal at the Bay State League Trophy Weekend, beating Marblehead 12-4 in the semifinal and Framingham 11-1 in the final. NewPro qualified for the Trophy weekend with a pair of must-wins over East Cambridge, 5-2 and 13-1 in a mercy-rule shortened contest.

The Trophy Weekend victory now guarantees Winchester at least the No. 3 seed in the league championship tournament.

Against Framingham in the gold medal game, Winchester fell behind 1-0 in the bottom of the first when Framingham loaded the bases without out a hit and tallied on a fielder's choice. The lead didn't stand up for long because Winchester took a 4-1 lead in the second on several Framingham miscues combined with Jay Higgins' single, Matt McGowan's double and singles by Jason Lanzillo and J.A. Koslowski.

> 'I think we went through a period of post-state tournament depression. Everyone's hopes were so high after last year. We're finally hitting like we're capable of. I think we've finally come back to where we should be.'

> NEWPRO MANAGER

McGowan and the NewPro squad settled down and kept Framingham at bay the rest of the way. Meanwhile, Justin Barauskas homered in the third to make it 5-1. In the fourth, Winchester's Brian Curry reached on an error, moved to second on Lanzillo's sacrifice and scored on Koslowski's double for the 6-1 lead.

Chad Carroll relieved McGowan and continued the solid pitching, mowing down the Framingham hitters. In the sixth, Winchester unleashed its powerful offense, scoring five runs when Mike Ciaurro doubled, Lanzillo squared to bunt and poked a single through the moving Framingham defense, Koslowski doubled, Tom DiCarlo was hit by a pitch, Capone doubled and Barauskas reached on an error. Carroll retired Framingham 1-2-3 in the sixth and Winchester had a gold medal.

"I think we went through a period of post-state tournament depression," said Nutile. "Everyone's hopes were so high after last year. We're finally hitting like we're capable of. I think we've finally come back to where we should be."

One last high school all-star game for Oliver

WHS star to play scholastic finale in soccer coaches' annual classic

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

Recent WHS grad Shaun Oliver has been selected as one of 18 players from a group of over 300 high school all-stars to participate in the Eastern Mass. Soccer Coaches Association All-Star Soccer Classic, which will be held at Boston University's Nickerson Field on Friday, Aug. 6 at 7 p.m.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

The Brandeis University-bound Oliver, who was named to several postseason all-star teams after a brilliant Sachem career, will try to make music with his feet one more time before heading to Waltham to join fellow Winchester residents Vandy French and brother Kris Oliver as a member of the Judges.

Admission to the annual North against South battle is $5 for adults and $3 for students. Any student wearing a M.Y.S.A. affiliated team shirt will be admitted for $1.

Winchester's Bryan Juwa helped the Mass Bay Marlins swim team successfully defend its New England Long Course Age Group swimming championship in a meet at Harvard July 29-Aug. 1.

Juwa posted career-best times in each of the five individual events he competed in. He also achieved national age group "A" times in each race. His 200-meter breaststroke time was the fourth fastest time recorded by a 13-year-old. He also swam the breaststroke leg of the Marlins' second-place medley relay team.

The Marlins have won all four major New England titles since being formed last year.

Matt Fuller, fresh from an outstanding showing at the National Clay Courts championships in Louisville, Ky., ripped through his opponents to easily capture the USTA New England Hard Court 18-under title last week in Danvers. Fuller defeated J.D. Hall of Lynnfield 6-2, 6-1 in the July 28 final.

Fuller, who is headed to Hanover, N.H., in September to play for the Big Green at Dartmouth College, has two major tournaments remaining on his summer slate. The Sachem graduate is in South Carolina for the Team Intersectional Hard Courts tournament this week, where he is a member of Team New England. He will then go straight to Kalamazoo, Mich., for the National Hard Courts Championships, which begin this Saturday.

SIX LEGENDS?

On Thursday, Aug. 5, SportsView, the biweekly call-in sports cablecast which originates from the Channel 19 studios at Winchester High School, will celebrate its fifth anniversary with an extended 90-minute live show, beginning at 7 p.m. on TV-19. Above, co-hosts Jon London, Greg Moynihan and Dale Smith (left to right) pose with replicas of Boston sports legends Jim Rice, Kevin McHale and Phil Esposito at the New England Sports Museum in Cambridge. Among the scheduled guests for the anniversary show is Channel 5 sports anchor Mike Lynch, a Winchester resident who has been featured on the show in the past. The show will be the last for original SportsView host London, who will be leaving to pursue a burgeoning career as color commentator for Harvard University football. Ken Coleman, London's co-host at Harvard, is expected to make a special appearance in what promises to be one of the most memorable SportsViews to date.

Summer stars still sizzling

Local select squads stay as hot as the weather

The Rotary Club 10-year-old All-Stars, the Dugout Sports 11-year-old All-Stars and the 13-14-year-old All-Stars, Winchester's select summer baseball teams, were all in action last week, and all stayed hot in their chase for post-season titles.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

The Rotary squad won its opener in the Bay State League second round, the Dugout team captured second place in the B Division of the Bay State Tournament of Champions and the 13-14 All-Stars improved to 6-2 and remained in control in its division by going 2-2 in recent games.

Winchester 16
North Cambridge 6

The Rotary 10-year-old All-Star team traveled to North Cambridge on Saturday and defeated the hosts 16-6 to open the second round of the Bay State League. Winchester pounded out 14 hits as Eric Axon had three hits and four RBI, and Luke Killion had four hits and three RBI.

Tim Armstrong and David Notartomaso, the top of the Winchester order, set the table all day for the All-Stars, combining to score seven runs. James Kearney and Rugo Santini each had multiple-hit games and reliever Andrew Marder picked up the save for victorious starter David Sullivan.

East Cambridge 6
Winchester 3

The Dugout 11-year-old All-Stars fell short 6-3 in a hard-played final of the Bay State Tournament of Champions second round on Sunday at West Side Field. Dugout takes home the runner-up trophy in the B division, placing second among 26 teams that qualified for the tourney.

Robby Nagle pitched valiantly, going the distance and allowing five singles. Paul Koslowski was the only Winchester batter who could hit the tough East Cambridge pitching. Koslowski delivered both Winchester hits.

Winchester 6
Arlington 4

The Dugout 11-year-old All-Stars advanced to the final round of the Bay State Tournament of Champions with a solid 6-4 win over Arlington on Saturday. The All-Stars got excellent pitching from Brian Sullivan, who scattered six singles over six innings for the complete-game victory.

Tied 3-3 after four innings, David Rodrigues got the key Winchester hit in the top of the fifth, belting a sharp two-run double to left-center field, driving in the game-winner. Nagle's spectacular diving catch of a sinking line drive to right field in the bottom of the frame killed any potential Arlington rally.

Koslowski had two hits and scored Winchester's insurance run in the sixth. Nagle, Matt Malatesta and Sullivan had one hit each.

Marblehead 12
Winchester 2

The Dugout All-Stars traveled to Marblehead July 29 to complete a home-and-home series. Marblehead held a 3-2 lead going into the fifth when the floodgates opened and Marblehead sent 15 players to the plate, resulting in nine runs.

Timely Marblehead hits combined with Winchester's poor defensive play contributed to the hosts' victory. The All-Stars got four hits in the contest, two each by Brian Sullivan and Billy Wolfe.

Marblehead 15
Winchester 3

The Dugout All-Stars took on the reigning New England Bambino champion Marblehead squad on July 27 and fell 15-3 to the high-powered visitors in a four-inning contest.

Marblehead jumped out to six-run lead in the first inning, followed by a seven-run third inning. Winchester's lack of hitting and defense contributed to the rout. The All-Stars' only hit was Wolfe's third-inning double.

Woburn 3

The Winchester 13-14-year-old All-Stars beat Woburn at Leland Field behind the strong complete-game pitching of Bob Roscillo and timely hitting.

The Sachems jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first when Jona Zissi, Roscillo and DeSimone reached and scored on RBI singles by DeSimone and Darrell Interess. After Woburn answered with two runs in the bottom of the frame, Winchester regained its three-run bulge when Roscillo tripled home Jeff Davis and Mike Provenzano. Sean Rafferty added an insurance tally in the fourth.

Savin Hill 7
Winchester 1

The Winchester 13-14-year-old All-Stars traveled to Savin Hill only to be victimized by what Winchester manager Ed Interess called "the best pitching performance we'll see all summer."

Greg McGrath held the Sachems in check, allowing only a bunt single to Brian Fitzgerald through the first six innings, fanning 10. In the seventh, Winchester managed to salvage some offense when Mark Campbell dumped a leadoff single to right field, moved to second when Bill Bunting was hit by a pitch, and scored on Provenzano's single.

Framingham 0

The 13-14-year-old Sachems found their homecoming to Manchester Field much to their liking as they scored early and often while Fitzgerald, Interess and Brad Murphy shared the pitching duties. Fitzgerald also homered down the left-field line and DeSimone stroked a double to the gap in right-center to drive in two when it was still close.

Mark Sullivan and Interess also notched two hits apiece. Winchester turned double plays in the third and fourth innings. The gem was an around-the-horn double play started by DeSimone at third, going to Jeff Davis at second for the pivot and Dan Notartomaso at first for the stretch.

Natick 9
Winchester 7

Winchester's Fitzgerald surrendered no earned runs but the defense made one blunder in each of the first four frames to allow Natick to mount a 9-2 advantage.

When Notartomaso was inserted at second base in the fifth, he was immediately tested with three grounders and he retired each batter to help settle the defense, which played flawlessly the rest of the way.

Winchester's comeback was fueled by a double and a triple by Fitzgerald, a single and a double by Mark Sullivan, and singles by Zissi and Bunting. Winchester left the bases loaded with the tying run on second and the potential winning run on first.

as its semifinal opponent. Undefeated in Bay State League play, Marblehead's only losses this season came in the Bambino State Tournament when it fell 2-1 to Raynham and 13-12 to Winchester.

Marblehead ace Nate Saraceno was rested and waiting for Winchester, but NewPro jumped all over host Marblehead and Saraceno in the first. Koslowski led with a sharp single, DiCarlo reached on an error and Barauskas homered to left to make it 3-0.

Marblehead cut it to 3-1, greeting Winchester starter Jeff Capone with two singles and an RBI fielder's choice. Winchester burst ahead 7-1 in the third on a pair of singles and a pair of two-run homers. DiCarlo drove in Koslowski with his blast to deep left, and Chad Carroll knocked in Barauskas with his towering shot to center.

"DiCarlo's homer was a line drive that hit the light tower," said NewPro manager Bob Nutile. "But Carroll's shot was incredible. It cleared the light tower. I haven't seen a 12-year-old's ball hit that far in years."

In the fourth, Winchester added two more when Lanzillo and Koslowski both walked, DiCarlo singled and Capone was hit by a pitch before Marblehead replaced Saraceno with Liam Ryan. Barauskas greeted Ryan with a single to up the NewPro lead to 9-1.

Marblehead closed the gap to 9-2 on a homer and added two more runs on no hits in the fifth when NewPro's defense weakened. But Winchester got back the three runs in the sixth when DiCarlo homered off the light pole in right, Barauskas reached on an error and Carroll homered over the light pole in right for the 12-4 final.

DiCarlo homers spark NewPro

In NewPro's second of two must-win games against East Cambridge, Barauskas drew the pitching assignment. Winchester went up 3-0 in the top of the first when Koslowski singled off the fence, Matt Hurley reached on a fielder's choice, Capone was hit by a pitch and DiCarlo, Barauskas and Curry all hit RBI singles.

Winchester added a run in the third when DiCarlo doubled and scored on Jay Higgins' single to make it 4-0. NewPro upped its margin to 8-0 when Colin Barden led off with a single, Matt McGowan reached on a fielder's choice, Koslowski singled and Capone and DiCarlo belted back-to-back homers.

Winchester exploded again in the fifth. Barden, McGowan and Koslowski each singled, Jonathan Nakamoto walked and DiCarlo hit his second homer of the night to expand the lead to 13-0.

Barauskas (3 innings) and Curry (2 innings) kept East Cambridge silent for the first four innings. Cambridge mustered a run in the fifth, but it wasn't enough to stave off the mercy rule.

McGowan 1-hitter silences Cambridge

The NewPro All-Stars began their Trophy Weekend rally with a 5-2 win over host East Cambridge.

McGowan took the mound for the NewPro, and the plan was to use him for three innings, then put in a reliever. McGowan walked two in the first and gave up a long double that drove in both runners, but Winchester fought back to take a 3-2 lead on Koslowski's double, DiCarlo's single and Barauskas' homer.

The coaching staff could sense an end to the season-long offensive drought, and the three runs proved to be enough for McGowan, who looked strong and didn't yield another hit for the remainder of his complete-game six-inning stint.

Capone homered in the fifth followed by Carroll's double and Curry's single to push the advantage to 5-2.

Sachem softball stumbles

The Winchester Senior Sachems softball team fell 5-4 to a strong Masconomet squad and earned a tie with Andover last week in Middle-Essex League play.

GIRLS SOFTBALL

In a game filled with spectacular fielding plays and aggressive baserunning by both teams on July 26, Masco jumped out to a 2-0 lead and threatened to blow the game open in the third. But with a runner on second, Winchester third baseman Kristen McKinley began a razzle-dazzle play which ended with a runner safe at first on a close call, but the runner from second out trying to reach third.

Winchester cut the score to 4-3 entering the seventh, and tied the score in the top of the frame after some heads-up baserunning by Katie Daley. Daley led the inning with a walk, stole second, moved to third on a sacrifice bunt by Jannine Allen, and scored on a passed ball.

Masco scored the game-winner in the bottom of the seventh, however, scoring in much the same fashion as Winchester had tied it. An error, a sacrifice and a passed ball with one out gave Masco the win.

Winchester's Allen allowed just four hits while striking out and walking three in 6⅓ innings on the hill.

It looked like a walkathon in Andover on July 28 as Winchester received 17 walks and managed eight hits to score 13 runs. But Andover took advantage of four errors, a half-dozen walks and five well-timed hits to score 13 of its own. Winchester was led by Cindy Mouzakis (3 hits) and Corinne Imperatore (2).

Winchester's Michael Sayre (front) and fellow SCATE members Courtney Mather and Ted Leach, will complete a 63-day, 3,300-mile cross-country in-line skate Saturday morning at Faneuil Hall in Boston. The group left Los Angeles on June 5 in an effort to raise awareness of cancer and to raise $500,000 for the Jimmy Fund.

was ecstatic to be back home in New England.

"We're all psyched to finally be back on the East Coast," he said. "Sometimes you don't realize how beautiful the small towns of New England are."

With just a few days and a couple hundred miles remaining before the wheels come off and the blisters begin to heal, Sayre was eager to see his friends in Winchester.

"I just can't wait to see everybody from Winchester," said Sayre. "I hope a lot of people take us up on the offer of skating from the Garden to Faneuil Hall along with us. That would make a wonderful end to a great trip for us."

SCATE will continue to accept donations to the Jimmy Fund even after the trip officially comes to a close on Saturday at noon. Contributions may be mailed to SCATE, 61 Silver St., Greenfield, Mass. 01301.

Temple dedicated to local youth soccer

head coach of the same team, which also captured the Division 1 crown. Last spring, he and Corkery were co-coaches of an outstanding 14-and under combined all-star team, which became the first single-community club to earn the state crown in the prestigious National Challenge Cup League, a state-wide league which features mostly regional and district all-star teams.

Temple, the father of 11-year-old Natalie and 13-year-old Leah, doesn't think he's done anything special. He simply feels that he has been lucky enough to have a daughter who is included in a tremendously athletic group of 13- and 14-year-old Winchester girls.

"I certainly don't take any credit for the girls' success," said Temple. "I haven't done anything different than a lot of other dedicated parents. The only difference is that I've benefited from being involved with an extremely athletic group of girls."

Others, however, feel Temple is being too modest.

"The thing that's unique about Bud is his extraordinary commitment to the girls," said Jim Noonan, the commissioner of the girls program for the Winchester Soccer Club (WSC). "He's all the way up to his 'C' coaches' license, which most people only get if they are making a living at (coaching)."

Noonan, whom Temple will succeed as girls commissioner in October, noted two specific reasons for Temple's success.

"First, he does his coaching during practice," said Noonan. "He lets the girls play during the game and makes mental notes for practice. Second, he lets everyone play all the positions. Consequentially, he has a group of girls who are capable of playing several different positions, so if someone is hurt or unable to make a game, the team doesn't suffer."

Scanlon, in his position as director of coaching for the WSC, agreed that Temple has been a tremendous asset to the town's players.

"He's found a love in soccer," said Scanlon. "He's made the investment that goes far beyond that of the average parent. He's dedicated himself as much as anyone I've seen in my 16 years of involvement with youth soccer."

In his reserved way, however, Temple insists that the focus of any publicity should be on the players, a group he feels could ultimately challenge the success of the other great teams in WHS history. He stated that the reason he has been so vigilant in his pursuit of his coaching licenses (Temple has invested over 100 hours of his own time in classrooms earning his stripes) is his desire to stay "one step ahead" of the girls he's coaching.

"It's a constant quest to stay ahead of them," said Temple. "I never want the kids to go further down the road and say 'we could have been better soccer players if Mr. Temple had taught us differently.'"

SPORTS BRIEFS

Junior tennis tourney sign-ups

The Seventh Annual Town Tennis Tournament, sponsored by Cambridgeport Bank, will be held the week of Aug. 16. The tournament is open to all girls and boys, ages 15 and under, who live in Winchester. Players are allowed to play in two events.

Entry forms, which may be picked up at the Packer Courts or at the Recreation Department, must be turned in at the court by Wednesday, Aug. 11 at 5 p.m.

Summer stars still sizzling

Local select squads stay as hot as the weather

The Rotary Club 10-year-old All-Stars, the Dugout Sports 11-year-old All-Stars and the 13-14-year-old All-Stars, Winchester's select summer baseball teams, were all in action last week, and all stayed hot in their chase for post-season titles.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

The Rotary squad won its opener in the Bay State League second round, the Dugout team captured second place in the B Division of the Bay State Tournament of Champions and the 13-14 All-Stars improved to 6-2 and remained in control in its division by going 2-2 in recent games.

Winchester 16
North Cambridge 6

The Rotary 10-year-old All-Star team traveled to North Cambridge on Saturday and defeated the hosts 16-6 to open the second round of the Bay State League. Winchester pounded out 14 hits as Eric Axon had three hits and four RBI, and Luke Killion had four hits and three RBI.

Tim Armstrong and David Notartomaso, the top of the Winchester order, set the table all day for the All-Stars, combining to score seven runs. James Kearney and Rugo Santini each had multiple-hit games and reliever Andrew Marder picked up the save for victorious starter David Sullivan.

East Cambridge 6
Winchester 3

The Dugout 11-year-old All-Stars fell short 6-3 in a hard-played final of the Bay State Tournament of Champions second round on Sunday at West Side Field. Dugout takes home the runner-up trophy in the B division, placing second among 26 teams that qualified for the tourney.

Robby Nagle pitched valiantly, going the distance and allowing five singles. Paul Koslowski was the only Winchester batter who could hit the tough East Cambridge pitching. Koslowski delivered both Winchester hits.

Winchester 6
Arlington 4

The Dugout 11-year-old All-Stars advanced to the final round of the Bay State Tournament of Champions with a solid 6-4 win over Arlington on Saturday. The All-Stars got excellent pitching from Brian Sullivan, who scattered six singles over six innings for the complete-game victory.

Tied 3-3 after four innings, David Rodrigues got the key Winchester hit in the top of the fifth, belting a sharp two-run double to left-center field, driving in the game-winner. Nagle's spectacular diving catch of a sinking line drive to right field in the bottom of the frame killed any potential Arlington rally.

Koslowski had two hits and scored Winchester's insurance run in the sixth. Nagle, Matt Malatesta and Sullivan had one hit each.

Marblehead 12
Winchester 2

The Dugout All-Stars traveled to Marblehead July 29 to complete a home-and-home series. Marblehead held a 3-2 lead going into the fifth when the floodgates opened and Marblehead sent 15 players to the plate, resulting in nine runs.

Timely Marblehead hits combined with Winchester's poor defensive play contributed to the hosts' victory. The All-Stars got four hits in the contest, two each by Brian Sullivan and Billy Wolfe.

Marblehead 15
Winchester 3

The Dugout All-Stars took on the reigning New England Bambino champion Marblehead squad on July 27 and fell 15-3 to the high-powered visitors in a four-inning contest.

Marblehead jumped out to six-run lead in the first inning, followed by a seven-run third inning. Winchester's lack of hitting and defense contributed to the rout. The All-Stars' only hit was Wolfe's third-inning double.

Woburn 3

The Winchester 13-14-year-old All-Stars beat Woburn at Leland Field behind the strong complete-game pitching of Bob Roscillo and timely hitting.

The Sachems jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first when Jona Zissi, Roscillo and DeSimone reached and scored on RBI singles by DeSimone and Darrell Interess. After Woburn answered with two runs in the bottom of the frame, Winchester regained its three-run bulge when Roscillo tripled home Jeff Davis and Mike Provenzano. Sean Rafferty added an insurance tally in the fourth.

Winchester 1

The Winchester 13-14-year-old All-Stars traveled to Savin Hill only to be victimized by what Winchester manager Ed Interess called "the best pitching performance we'll see all summer."

Greg McGrath held the Sachems in check, allowing only a bunt single to Brian Fitzgerald through the first six innings, fanning 10. In the seventh, Winchester managed to salvage some offense when Mark Campbell dumped a leadoff single to right field, moved to second when Bill Bunting was hit by a pitch, and scored on Provenzano's single.

Framingham 0

The 13-14-year-old Sachems found their homecoming to Manchester Field much to their liking as they scored early and often while Fitzgerald, Interess and Brad Murphy shared the pitching duties. Fitzgerald also homered down the left-field line and DeSimone stroked a double to the gap in right-center to drive in two when it was still close.

Mark Sullivan and Interess also notched two hits apiece. Winchester turned double plays in the third and fourth innings. The gem was an around-the-horn double play started by DeSimone at third, going to Jeff Davis at second for the pivot and Dan Notartomaso at first for the stretch.

Natick 9
Winchester 7

Winchester's Fitzgerald surrendered no earned runs but the defense made one blunder in each of the first four frames to allow Natick to mount a 9-2 advantage.

When Notartomaso was inserted at second base in the fifth, he was immediately tested with three grounders and he retired each batter to help settle the defense, which played flawlessly the rest of the way.

Winchester's comeback was fueled by a double and a triple by Fitzgerald, a single and a double by Mark Sullivan, and singles by Zissi and Bunting. Winchester left the bases loaded with the tying run on second and the potential winning run on first.

Sachem softball stumbles

The Winchester Senior Sachems softball team fell 5-4 to a strong Masconomet squad and earned a tie with Andover last week in Middle-Essex League play.

GIRLS SOFTBALL

In a game filled with spectacular fielding plays and aggressive baserunning by both teams on July 26, Masco jumped out to a 2-0 lead and threatened to blow the game open in the third. But with a runner on second, Winchester third baseman Kristen McKinley began a razzle-dazzle play which ended with a runner safe at first on a close call, but the runner from second out trying to reach third.

Winchester cut the score to 4-3 entering the seventh, and tied the score in the top of the frame after some heads-up baserunning by Katie Daley. Daley led the inning with a walk, stole second, moved to third on a sacrifice bunt by Jannine Allen, and scored on a passed ball.

Masco scored the game-winner in the bottom of the seventh, however, scoring in much the same fashion as Winchester had tied it. An error, a sacrifice and a passed ball with one out gave Masco the win.

Winchester's Allen allowed just four hits while striking out and walking three in 6⅓ innings on the hill.

It looked like a walkathon in Andover on July 28 as Winchester received 17 walks and managed eight hits to score 13 runs. But Andover took advantage of four errors, a half-dozen walks and five well-timed hits to score 13 of its own. Winchester was led by Cindy Mouzakis (3 hits) and Corinne Imperatore (2).

Winchester's Michael Sayre (front) and fellow SCATE members Courtney Mather and Ted Leach, will complete a 63-day, 3,300-mile cross-country in-line skate Saturday morning at Faneuil Hall in Boston. The group left Los Angeles on June 5 in an effort to raise awareness of cancer and to raise $500,000 for the Jimmy Fund.

was ecstatic to be back home in New England.

"We're all psyched to finally be back on the East Coast," he said. "Sometimes you don't realize how beautiful the small towns of New England are."

With just a few days and a couple hundred miles remaining before the wheels come off and the blisters begin to heal, Sayre was eager to see his friends in Winchester.

"I just can't wait to see everybody from Winchester," said Sayre. "I hope a lot of people take us up on the offer of skating from the Garden to Faneuil Hall along with us. That would make a wonderful end to a great trip for us."

SCATE will continue to accept donations to the Jimmy Fund even after the trip officially comes to a close on Saturday at noon. Contributions may be mailed to SCATE, 61 Silver St., Greenfield, Mass. 01301.

Temple dedicated to local youth soccer

head coach of the same team, which also captured the Division 1 crown. Last spring, he and Corkery were co-coaches of an outstanding 14-and under combined all-star team, which became the first single-community club to earn the state crown in the prestigious National Challenge Cup League, a state-wide league which features mostly regional and district all-star teams.

Temple, the father of 11-year-old Natalie and 13-year-old Leah, doesn't think he's done anything special. He simply feels that he has been lucky enough to have a daughter who is included in a tremendously athletic group of 13- and 14-year-old Winchester girls.

"I certainly don't take any credit for the girls' success," said Temple. "I haven't done anything different than a lot of other dedicated parents. The only difference is that I've benefited from being involved with an extremely athletic group of girls."

Others, however, feel Temple is being too modest.

"The thing that's unique about Bud is his extraordinary commitment to the girls," said Jim Noonan, the commissioner of the girls program for the Winchester Soccer Club (WSC). "He's all the way up to his 'C' coaches' license, which most people only get if they are making a living at (coaching)."

Noonan, whom Temple will succeed as girls commissioner in October, noted two specific reasons for Temple's success.

"First, he does his coaching during practice," said Noonan. "He lets the girls play during the game and makes mental notes for practice. Second, he lets everyone play all the positions. Consequentially, he has a group of girls who are capable of playing several different positions, so if someone is hurt or unable to make a game, the team doesn't suffer."

Scanlon, in his position as director of coaching for the WSC, agreed that Temple has been a tremendous asset to the town's players.

"He's found a love in soccer," said Scanlon. "He's made the investment that goes far beyond that of the average parent. He's dedicated himself as much as anyone I've seen in my 16 years of involvement with youth soccer."

In his reserved way, however, Temple insists that the focus of any publicity should be on the players, a group he feels could ultimately challenge the success of the other great teams in WHS history. He stated that the reason he has been so vigilant in his pursuit of his coaching licenses (Temple has invested over 100 hours of his own time in classrooms earning his stripes) is his desire to stay "one step ahead" of the girls he's coaching.

"It's a constant quest to stay ahead of them," said Temple. "I never want the kids to go further down the road and say 'we could have been better soccer players if Mr. Temple had taught us differently.' "

SPORTS BRIEFS

Junior tennis tourney sign-ups

The Seventh Annual Town Tennis Tournament, sponsored by Cambridgeport Bank, will be held the week of Aug. 16. The tournament is open to all girls and boys, ages 15 and under, who live in Winchester. Players are allowed to play in two events.

Entry forms, which may be picked up at the Packer Courts or at the Recreation Department, must be turned in at the court by Wednesday, Aug. 11 at 5 p.m.

For further information, contact tournament chair Joe Tozza at 729-2825.

WHS fall sports exams

In order to participate in fall sports at Winchester High School, all students must have a physical examination by their own physician, dated no earlier than May 1, 1993. A record of the examination must be given to the coach on the first day of practice, Monday, Aug. 30.

Weekly summer fun runs

The Irish American Track Club is sponsoring a series of weekly summer fun runs on Thursdays. The 2.5-mile course starts and finishes at McDonald Park (near Wellington Station at the intersection of Routes 16 and 28) in Medford. Race time is 6:30 p.m. each Thursday until Aug. 26. Call 395-5565 for more information.

Baseball team seeks players

A baseball team in Newton is seeking players age 17-25. Practices are held each Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at the West Newton Common on Elm St. Coaches and volunteers are also needed. For more information, contact Henry at 891-0621.

Austin runs soccer camp

The Winchester Soccer Academy summer program is in full swing at Manchester Field. Winchester High assistant girls soccer coach and Spirit Select Club boys coach C. Paul Austin, a former member of the USAF overseas soccer team, is the academy director.

Two sessions remain in the summer schedule. Players ages 13-15 take the field Aug. 2-13, from 6-8 p.m. Monday through Friday. Players 14 and over are eligible to attend the final session, Aug. 16-27, from 5-7 p.m.

The program features individual skill attention, conditioning drills and controlled scrimmages. Tuition is $85.

For further information, call 935-5076.

(To have items published in Sports Briefs, please send information to Sports Editor, The Winchester Star, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester, 01890. Items can also be dropped off at the same location weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 729-6100 with any questions or comments.)

COMING EVENTS

WHAT'S GOING ON IN YOUR AREA IN THE COMING WEEKS

Jumelage meeting

There will be a Jumelage meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 11, at 7:30 p.m. at Aberjona Room, Town Hall.

New members welcome to come by and learn about Winchester's Sister City, St. Germaine-en-Laye.

Cool stepping despite summer heat

Focus on Fitness will continue during the summer with a vigorous complete schedule in an air-conditioned studio, Ballet Arts Centre, 750 Main St. Morning and evening classes also offer babysitting. Step classes are scheduled for 6 to 7 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Tuesday and Friday mornings. The morning start time has been changed to 9:10 a.m. to allow moms and dads to drop the kids off at camp and still have time to work out with Judy Whitney and Gail LaRocca. Classes will begin on July 5 and run for seven weeks. Beat the heat and still burn calories.

To register for an unlimited number of classes for $58, contact Winchester Recreation at 721-7126.

Drop-in fee is $4.50 per class.

The reunion committee looks forward to seeing all of the class members this coming October.

Parent to Parent's first Friday forum

How do we help our children meet their responsibilities without ending up in an angry battle? What can we do when we are concerned about our child's or adolescent's friendships? What are some effective ways of dealing with sibling conflicts?

Parent to Parent's first Friday Forum is a series of brown bag lunch meetings for parents interested in discussing questions like these. The summer meetings will be from noon to 1:30 p.m. on the first Friday of each month, August 6 and September 3. All meetings will be held in the Winchester Public Safety Building (Police Station).

This series is an opportunity to network with other parents and discuss issues of common interest. The topics under discussion each month will vary, depending upon the interests of the participants.

Dr. Hillary Turkewitz, a clinical psychologist who has been conducting parenting groups for Parent to Parent for four years, will be facilitating the discussions.

This series is offered free of charge. Funding has been provided by the En Ka Society and the Parents' Associations.

Free summer fitness at The Energy Connection

Summer is the perfect time to start a healthy and fit lifestyle. With less structure and stress, anyone can begin to enjoy the benefits of exercise. This summer, The Energy Connection is helping new participants set up a realistic program of diet and exercise, and as a special summer offer, new students are invited to attend an unlimited number of classes for their first week absolutely free.

Eight "drop-in" classes are offered weekly, including Saturday mornings. Morning classes are at the Crawford Church, and evening classes are at the Jenks Senior Citizens Center. All classes are moderate enough for the beginner exerciser, and anyone can attend at anytime.

A variety of programs are available, including step Reebok, muscle conditioning, and Jacki Sorensen's Aerobic Workout. This gives everyone the chance to cross-train or pick their favorite kind of exercise.

Step Reebok classes are Mondays and Fridays at 8:45 a.m., and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. Aerobic workouts are Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m., and Saturdays at 8:30 a.m. The very popular muscle conditioning class is offered Wednesdays at 8:45 a.m. All weekday morning classes have babysitting.

For more information on The Energy Connection programs, call Marie Dacey at 729-7268.

AIDS Action seeks volunteers for Buddy Program

The Buddy Program of the AIDS Action Committee is looking for volunteers to provide emotional and practical support to clients on a one-to-one basis. Interested persons older than 24 are invited to attend an orientation to learn about the Buddy Program and how to apply.

Orientations are held monthly at 7:30 p.m., on the fourth Tuesday of each month on the fourth floor of the AIDS Action offices at 131 Clarendon St. For more information call 437-6200, Ext. 450.

Career transition

A career transition networking and support group meets every Thursday, except the second of each month, at St. Eulalia's Church, 50 Ridge St. The meetings are held 7 to 9 p.m. in the church's conference room and are open and free. For more information call 729-8220.

WHS Class of 1944 to hold reunion

Winchester High School Class of 1944 has begun plans for a 50th anniversary reunion to be held in the fall of 1994. Any member of the class, graduate or otherwise, who would like to be notified of final details but who may have reason to believe his or her current address is not on file with reunion organizers, is asked to send address information at this time to Joan Hanson Blake, 45 Pine Ridge Road, Reading, 01867.

Register now for fall at the Winchester Community Music School

The Winchester Community Music School is currently registering students for lessons and classes beginning next Sept. The school offers classical and popular music for all levels of experience and all ages, from pre-school to senior citizens.

Lessons are available in banjo, baritone, electric bass, bassoon, cello, clarinet, flute, french horn, guitar, electric keyboard, oboe, percussion, recorder, saxophone, special needs, trombone, trumpet, tuba, viola, violin, and voice.

WCMS offers classes in music and movement for ages 3-7, music theory, composition, and music appreciation. A new community education course, Guided Tour to Musical Masterpieces, is planned for fall. Small ensembles of similar or mixed instruments are also available, and WCMS maintains a list of adults interested in forming chamber music groups. For information and a 1993-94 brochure, call 721-2950.

Kidstock Youth Theater students will give two free performances of their production of comical who-dun-it production "The Castle Caper." The shows go on Aug. 6. Call 729-5KID for more information.

Business Directory

Where do local people turn when they need to have their favorite painting professionally framed?...or their home painted?...or have their washing machine running like new again? If those people live in the suburban Boston area, chances are, they turn to Harte-Hanks Newspapers' Business Directory. It's one of the most effective, complete, reference tools in the area. And people use it. That's why advertisers use it week after week.

It's an opportunity for smaller companies to advertise on a consistent basis, at a cost that's very attractive. And we've found that, even when the small companies grow into larger companies, they stay on the page. Promoting their services. Building their business. Generating profits.

If you're a small businessman who needs advertising exposure at a cost that's easy to manage, contact our Display Classified Advertising department at (617) 487-7225 or (508) 820-7095 for more information. Small space. . . big results. . .

Birchwood Adult Community is a planned housing project designed for Empty Nesters 55 years of age or older. Birchwood is located in the quaint rural community of Northboro, Massachusetts. Single family one story homes are built on lots that range in size from 7,000 to 12,000 square feet. Homes with garages will vary from two bedrooms and one or two baths to three bedrooms with two baths. Homes are stick built on site with amenities such as: vaulted and cathedral ceiling; fully appliances kitchens, front porches, decks and screened porches.

Homes are priced from $113,900 to $129,900 in Phase I. In Phase II prices range from $129,900 to $149,900. There are eight different home models to choose from.

A recreation building centrally located in the Birchwood Adult Community will provide residents with a meeting place, a private library for reading, a kitchen and a large function room for all types of gatherings.

A fitness trail from the recreation center to the Assaset River will provide a private area to walk and spend quiet time at the picnic area along the river. Residents at Birchwood own their homes and have 100% easement rights to the lot that their homes are built on. There is a $50 per month Association Fee which pays for snow plowing, street lights and insurance.

To the reader:

In this day and age of changing technology and the supposed decline in reading habits, we are out to prove that local community journalism is alive and well. The Arlington Advocate, the Belmont Citizen-Herald and the Winchester Star are devoted exclusively to reporting your news. No other publications devote as much time, energy or space to showing you what's going on in your town and in your neighborhood.

The Advocate, Citizen-Herald and Star are bringing even more community news and analysis this year. And we are continuing to improve our newspapers, to make the papers easier on the eye, while giving even more information with the use of charts and graphics.

Where else can you get the town news, sports, features, lively opinion, plus births, engagements, weddings, school news, real estate listings, business news, coming events, and much more?

Feel at home right away. Join your neighbors who read the Advocate, the Citizen-Herald and the Star. It's the best way to get to know your community.

And we hope you'll be in touch with us by calling with your news and ideas.

WINCHESTER

It was the land of the Pawtuckets, a place of dense forests, rolling hills and most of all, fresh water lakes. The white setlers called it Waterfield.

In the early 17th century, plague and civil war wiped out most of the Pawtuckets, including the great chief, Nanepashemet. His widow, Squaw Sachem, took control of much of the Pawtucket territory. Known as the friendly Indian Queen of Mystic, she sold a good deal of land to the early colonists for, as the deed says, "twenty-and one coats, nineteen fathoms of wampum and three bushels of corn."

She kept a large plot of land on the west bank of the Mystic Lakes for herself and, on the area now occupied by the Winchester Country Club, built her wigwam. According to one account, she died by drowning in a running spring in 1650.

The settlers set out to clear all of the former Pawtucket territory and soon turned the shaggy forests into farms. Waterfield's first courageous pioneers were Edward Converse, Ezekiel Richardson, Rev. Zachariah Symmes and Captain Edward Johnson. Converse built the first house in the settlement, near present-day Converse Place. Symmes built a house on land that would become Manchester Field. His farm was on the spot Rangeley would occupy two centuries later.

Most notable among the early property owners was a Rev. John Harvard who, although leaving a substantial mark in Cambridge, died shortly after obtaining his land in Waterfield.

Since most of the first settlers came from Woburn, Waterfield was soon called South Woburn. The little settlement was far from an independent, self-governing township: As late as 1831, a large part of what we know as Winchester belonged to Medford and West Cambridge, or Arlington.

The early settlers of South Woburn were rigid Puritans whose two major occupations were working and praying. Fortunately, there was plenty of work - clearing the forests and rocky fields, fighting off the winter and occasionally the Indians. On Sunday there was a mass exodus to the church in Woburn, where the isolated farmers came together, worshiped and discussed the only politics there was at the time - church politics.

It is not surprising then that roads in the early settlement led to one of two places, to the church or to the grist mill. In 1647, much of the present-day Cross Street was laid out to facilitate the Richardson's weekly jaunt to church in Woburn. Another road called Richardson's Row, now Washington Street, was the only way for farmers at the northeastern end of town to get to Converse's grist mill in the center.

Somewhat of a legend was the old Black Horse Tavern. Built in 1728 on the east side of Main Street at the corner of Black Horse Terrace, the tavern was a favorite place for meetings, dances and neighborhood gatherings. It was one of the only places for farmers to meet in South Woburn and discuss current events. For a time, it gave its name to the settlement around it, Black Horse Village. During the Revolutionary War, the patriots of the Committee of Safety and Supplies supposedly scheduled a meeting at the tavern for April 19, 1775, but found themselves occupied elsewhere.

Military companies used to assemble and disband at the familiar two-story structure. Since stages made regular stops at the Black Horse, it became the favorite spot for travelers and farmers on their way to market.

The Black Horse Tavern closed its doors as a commercial establishment in 1835 and was a residence until, falling into shambles, it was destroyed 57 years later.

While the hapless tavern faded, the shoe and tanning industry began to flourish in the two Woburns. In the 1830s, there were 35 little shoe shops in South Woburn

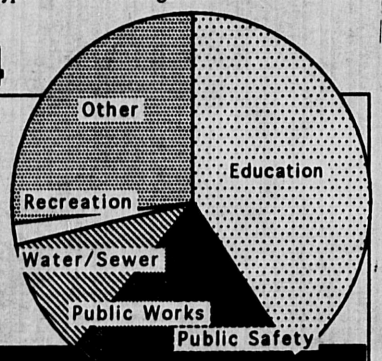

The area was not know as Winchester until 1850. Perhaps the most remarkable thing about the man who gave his name to the town was that he was not from Winchester. In fact, he at no time played a part in the history of the town.

Col. Winchester was flattered by the town's naming itself after him, and sent selectmen a generous donation of $3,000. The money was used to build Wildwood Cemetery. Col. Winchester died of typhoid fever at the age of 49 before he had the opportunity to visit the town.

AROUND WINCHESTER

Toward a greater understanding: Jumelage

By Stephane Grand-Chavin

When the idea of an international sister city in the United States was conceived, Winchester was not at the top of St. Germain's list. What has taken place since that time, has catapulted the small town of Winchester and St. Germain-en-Laye to new heights of understanding and friendship, say officials.

Winchester has had a French sister city, Saint-Germain-en-Laye, since 1990. A city of 41,000 residents located 12 miles outside of Paris, St. Germain has many historical links; it is the city in which Louis XIV was born. The National Museum of Antiquities is in the main castle of St. Germain and is the only museum in France which houses pre-historic displays. St. Germain, the birthplace of Claude Debussy, also opened a museum for the composer.

The St. Germain mayor, Michel Pericard, wanted to twin the city in France with a bigger American city on the eastern seaboard of the United States like Washington D.C., Philadelphia or Boston. But after he had done a thorough search for a sister-city by an agency the choices were narrowed down to Winchester and Arlington, Va., Winchester was finally chosen.

While Arlington was very similar in size, it "didn't quite correspond to the character of our town," Pericard said. "Above all, it was the personality of a lady who came to the task of joining the two cities," he added, referring to selectman Judith Muggia, who was instrumental in setting up the relationship.

The vote by the Winchester Board of Selectmen to accept St. Germain as a sister city was unanimous. The officials of both cities worked to prepare the Jumelage or twinning and in December, 1990, a group of 20 representatives of Winchester traveled to St. Germain for the official Sister City ceremony.

A friendship pact was signed by Judith Muggia, the Jumelage Committee president, and Michel Pericard during the Dec. 8 ceremony and a delegation from France arrived in Winchester in June, 1991.

The newly established Sister City relationship had to open up avenues for educational, cultural and economic exchanges. Educational exchanges were launched.

Pericard had said the relationship should be "youth-oriented." Before the Jumelage, Winchester High School had an exchange with the Claude Debussy High School in St-Germain. With the Jumelage, Peggy Schleicher organized an exchange for ten-year old children and then 60 children of Lynch Elementary School interested in the project exchanged drawings and letters with French kids of the St. Erembert Elementary School. For older children, direct exchanges have taken place.

In addition, the Jumelage organized a baseball team exchange. Suzie Vrostos, the professional artist, promoted cultural and art exchanges.

In June 1991, the Winchester High school Special Octets, under Director of Music Lynne Rahmeier, journeyed to St-Germain to participate in a music festival. She arranged also with the French artist Jacqueline Poisson-Pleau an art exchange.

In May 1993, American guest artists exhibited in St-Germain and Paris and later, 22 French artists, painters and sculptors did an exhibition in Winchester and Cambridge. An other art exchange called "les nouveaux romantiques" will take place in May 1994.

Two musical exchanges were organized and the third one is for October. In addition, the composer and director Stefan Andre went to Paris with the American music ensemble.

As regards the economics and business exchanges, Winchester businesses hosted sister city interns. In July 1993 five interns were located at several businesses in Winchester and then local firms (Cooperative Bank, Savings bank, Continental Cablevision, Winchester Star, Recreation Department, French Library of Boston) are making yet another important part of the exchange program possible and successful. Other economic projects are planned.

The French proposed a business and a banking exchange and next fall, Judith Muggia will meet the executive director of Massachusetts Business Round the Table, Alan MacDonald, who is interested in some relationships between banks from Boston and French banks. The Jumelage will probably sponsor this exchange.

According to Judie Muggia, the Jumelage is "exciting but expensive" and then local programs are arranged. The members of the association sometimes join together in a restaurant, or a resident cooks French food at home for the other members. In last March, the association had French movies from the French Library in Boston and viewed, for example, Cyrano de Bergerac with Gerard Depardieu.

In July 1993, the association had 250 members and almost 100 people from Winchester had visited St-Germain. The Jumelage is also growing and was honored in 1992 by the first prize of the Sister Cities International. The Jumelage is a good thing to promote international relationships and understanding between people through different programs.

Stephane Grand-Chavin worked at the Winchester Star as an intern and is from St. Germain-en-Laye.

Town manager and superintendent issue welcome

Dear Winchester residents:

Welcome to the the town of Winchester. I hope your move into our community will be a positive experience and that you will truly enjoy Winchester with its many amenities, fine municipal services, and its dedicated citizens. Winchester has had a long tradition of citizen involvement in town government. Whether or not you have been involved in government or in community activities where you previously lived, we urge you to participate in Winchester's government. We have committees and activities in need of volunteers.

Policy is set in the town by a five-member elected board of selectmen. The chairman is Peter T. VanAken. The Board of Selectmen meet in public session on Mondays at 7:45 p.m. at Town Hall on Mt. Vernon Street. The citizens of Winchester are also represented by Town Meeting members who meet for scheduled sessions in the spring and fall. The Town Moderator is John Sullivan. Feel free to call the offices listed or visit to obtain information or register your concerns regarding municipal services. Best wishes and good luck!

Town Manager

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer (l) and Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald attend a recent function at the Lincoln Elementary School.

Dear Winchester residents:

The Winchester Public Schools will welcome nearly three thousand students when school resumes in September. Of that number, approximately three hundred will be attending our schools for the first time. To them, and to their parents, we extend a special welcome. The school department maintains high expectations for its staff and student body. We are proud of our educational program and the achievements of our students. The five member school committee , currently chaired by Ms. Jerilyn Heinold, establishes policy for the department and works closely with the administration on the financial plan for the district. As a result of the support given to the schools by the citizens of the community we are able to maintain optimal class sizes, offer special services to those students requiring them, enrich our offerings with music and art education, and provide a strong preschool early childhood education program.

As your superintendent, I extend an invitation to each of you to visit our schools to witness first hand the strengths of our system. Make an effort to attend a high school sporting event or a play or concert at any one of our schools.

Join with others in supporting the Winchester Foundation for Educational Excellence, the Sports Foundation, or the various "Friends of" groups that are active in the town. We look forward to the continued involvement of Winchester residents in the public school system and hope that people new to the community will become involved. Together we can make a difference.

Robert D. Fitzgerald
Superintendent of Schools

Winchester offers comfortable living

The town of Winchester combines easy access to Boston with a suburban lifestyle. The town is 10 miles northwest of Boston.

The area known as Winchester was created in 1850 from parts of Medford, Woburn and West Cambridge (now Arlington) and was named after Col. William E. Winchester, a Watertown resident. The Winchester area was originally settled in 1630 and was successively called Waterfield, Woburngates, South Woburn and Blackhorse Village.

Today Winchester is a tree-lined bedroom community just a 13-minute train ride from downtown Boston. It encompasses 21,000 people and six square miles.

Winchester's population is white-collar and highly educated. Of those who work, almost half are managers or professionals. Many work in Boston because of the convenient access provided by the Boston-to-Lowell train. The train has passed through Winchester since the inception of the Boston-to-Lowell route in 1835.

Winchester is conservative by Massachusetts standards. Roughly 40 percent of the town's registered voters are Democrats, while 26 percent of the town's registered voters are Republicans. The remaining one third are Independent. Town government takes the form of representative town meeting.

People of Irish ancestry outnumber other ethnic groups in Winchester, comprising 30 percent of the population. People of Italian descent represent some 26 percent, while the people of English ancestry are approximately 18 percent of the total.

Winchester is heavily residential as more than three-quarters of the dwellings in town are single-family units. Approximately half the dwellings in town were built in 1950 or earlier.

Winchester has comparatively little industry, but a considerable service economy. On the retail side, Winchester has undergone considerable revitalization in recent years.

Every spring, the community comes together in the picturesque center of the town for Town Day. Several merchants, clubs, organizations, and political campaigns set up booths all over town to give out samples, show off their products, or in many cases to hold raffles. In addition to the booths, there is the annual fishing derby at Wedge Pond, a kite flying contest, and pony rides. The festivities are capped off by a fireworks show. For any further information on Town Day, contact the Chamber of Commerce at 729-8870.

Winchester is the sister city of Saint-Germain-en-Laye, France. The two towns set up the sister city relationship or "Jumelage" in 1990 to open up avenues for cultural, educational and economical exchanges. A city of 41,000 residents, Saint-Germain is located 12 miles outside Paris.

Among the different elected and appointed boards and commissions offered in Winchester are Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Board of Assessors, Conservation Commission, Council on Aging, Board of Health, Historical Commission, Housing Authority, Personnel Board, Planning Board, and Retirement Board.

The town of Winchester offers numerous clubs and organizations for its citizens in a range of variety of interests.

For those who want to get involved in politics, there is the Democratic Town Committee, Republican Town Committee, Women's Republican Club, and League of Women Voters.

For children, there is the Children's Theater, Boy Scouts of America and Girl Scouts.

Winchester has many churches and an active religious community.

The First Congregational Church overlooks the town common and other churches that are located throughout the community. Activities held during the year are published in the Star in a church directory in the second section of the paper along with other church news.

Jenks Center is community focus, home to Seniors Assoc. and COA

Winchester's Jenks Senior Center is the focal point for senior activities in town. It houses the non-profit Winchester Seniors Association and the town department of the Council on Aging. Over 100 different activities and programs take place during the course of the year.

Educational, social and recreational programs abound at the Center. Among the activities are the exercise programs, square dancing, line and ballroom dancing, bridge glee club, bingo, ceramics, calligraphy, crafts and stitchery, recorder lessons, foreign language classes, bowling league, yoga and creativity, art group, monthly day trips, overnight travel trips, horseshoes, and creative writing.

There are groups like the Men's Discussion Group which meet twice a month, the Parkinson's Support Group, and the Italian Culture Group which meets monthly. On Wednesday afternoon, Games Day presents a variety of challenges to keep seniors active.

Various committees of the Winchester Seniors Association direct these activities. These committees include: Information and Referral, Transportation, Housing and Financial Counseling, Health Benefits Counseling, Tax Assistance, Newsletter, Education, Health, Recreation and Building and Grounds. Other opportunities for senior volunteer service include the Library, Finance, Publicity, TV Production, Hospitality, and Computer Committees which always welcome new senior interest.

The Council on Aging, An 11-member body appointed by the selectmen, sponsors various programs and outreach services by professional staff. The Council on Aging, together with the School Department and the Recreation Department of the town, coordinates programs with the young people of Winchester, fostering understanding between elders and youth.

There is a senior van available three times a week to take seniors to the center for activities. as well as to local shopping and medical appointments. The three times a week hot lunch program "Eating Together" provides an opportunity for a modest cost meal and socialization for seniors who may be alone at home. The Council sponsors pre-retirement seminars and senior issues forums on needs and concerns of elder residents such as Housing Options, the Health Care Proxy, and Tax Exemptions and Deferrals.

Various health programs are available at the Center. The twice monthly Keep Well Clinic monitors weight, blood pressure, and nutrition and, in conjunction with the health department, a flu and pneumococcous vaccination clinic, as well as various screenings and health education programs sponsored by the Jenks Center's Health Committee, in cooperation with the Winchester Hospital.

The library collection

The Winchester Public Library has a collection of more than 112,000 books and 221 magazine subscriptions available for public use. It also circulates videocassettes, audiocassettes (both musical and spoken-word) and compact discs.

The Minuteman Library Network(MLN)

The Winchester Public Library is a member of the Minuteman Library Network. A Winchester borrower's card is good at all MLN public libraries: Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Concord, Framingham, Lincoln, Medfield, Medford, Medway, Natick, Needham, Norwood, Somerville, Sudbury, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland, Wellesley, Weston and Westwood. Cardholders may also request books from Framingham State College and Lasell College. Dedham, Holliston, Maynard and Newbury College will soon join this network.

On-line access to the network's database is available through home computers (see the public access catalog below).

Obtaining a borrower's card

Registering for a Winchester Public Library borrower's card is easy, takes only a few minutes and costs nothing. With a Winchester library card, people can borrow books and other materials from all of the libraries in the Minuteman Library Network. Those who do not have a library card and are residents of Winchester need a document to verify their address to register. Those who live in Massachusetts but outside of the Minuteman Library Network can show their hometown library card and an ID to verify address and the library will register those people as borrowers. Anyone who has an MLN library card from another city or town is welcome to use it here.

The reference collection

The reference collection covers an array of subject areas including business information, consumer information, encyclopedias, higher education information, job search resources, legal information, literary criticism, maps and atlases, and medical information.

Local information

The Winchester Collection consists of copies of the town charter and bylaws, agendas and minutes of town committees, town reports, the inventory of houses built prior to 1917 and materials about Winchester history. The current list of residents is kept at the reference desk, along with the high school yearbooks.

Interlibrary loan

Winchester residents have access not only to books owned by the Winchester Library, but to books held by all the other Minuteman Libraries. Books can also be requested from the Boston Public Library. To place an interlibrary loan request, see the reference librarian for assistance.

Telephone reference

The reference staff will answer short reference questions over the phone.

Book reserves

Patrons can reserve books and magazines which the Winchester Library owns, but are circulating. To place a reserve on a book, ask at the Reference Desk.

Fax service

This service enables the library to access magazine articles in the collection of the Boston Public Library. This service is available at the Reference Desk. The fax service is for library use only.

The public access catalog

The Winchester Public Library's catalog is the automated Public Access Catalog. These "PACs" provide patrons with information not only about Winchester materials, but materials in all of the libraries in the Minuteman Network. PACs can be searched by author, title or subject. They provide information about what materials are held, where a particular item is kept, if the item is checked out and when it is due. Those who would like instruction in using the PAC can ask at the Reference Desk. The PAC is also accessible to home computers through a modem. For information on dial-up access, ask at the Reference Desk.

Museum passes

The Winchester Public Library circulates museum passes for a variety of area museums. They are available to patrons who are residents of Winchester and circulate for one day. A valid Winchester Public Library borrower's card is required. Patrons may reserve the passes by contacting the Reference Desk either in person or over the phone. To reserve a pass over the phone or for more information, call the Reference Desk at 721-7171.

The museum passes have been purchased with funds provided by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library and the Winchester Home and Garden Club.

Children's services

The Children's Department serves children from birth through age 11, their parents, caregivers and other interested patrons. The following services are offered regularly:

- Story times (ages 2 to 6)
- Special programs (ages 2 to 11)
- Summer Reading Program (ages 3 to 11)

Programs, which are sponsored by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library, are free of charge and open to Winchester residents only.

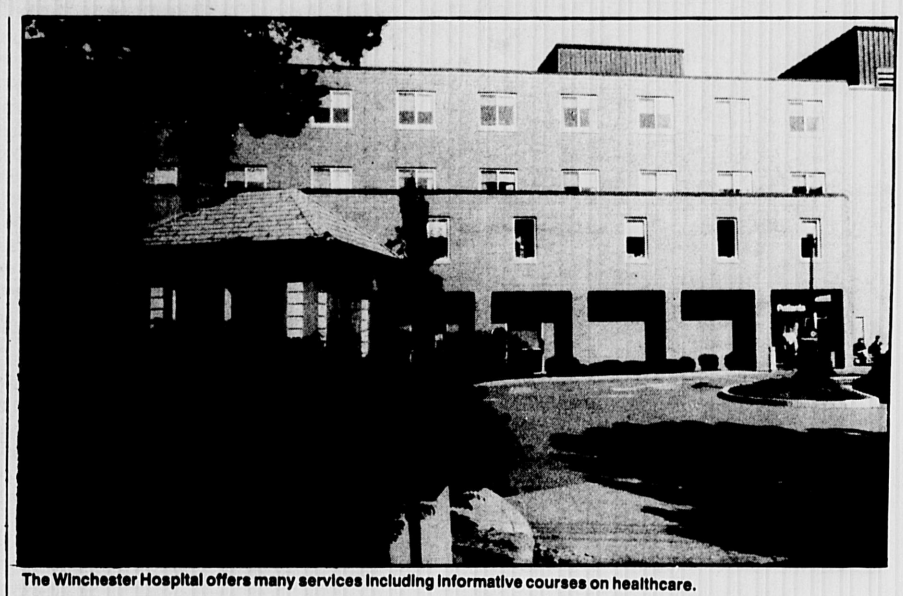

The Children's Room has a coin-operated in-house Apple IIc computer with software and a filmstrip projector for use in the building. A story line (721-7140) is in operation when the Children's Room is closed.

The department contains books and audiovisual materials for children, as well as a collection for parents and teachers. The children's librarians welcome any reference questions and are available to assist with the selection of material.

Young adult

The Young Adult Area is on the balcony over the lobby. Set up for young adults in grades six through eight, the area holds young adult hardback fiction, a paperback collection, magazines and a space to study.

Young adult non-fiction is interfiled with the adult non-fiction. Class visits and tours by school classes are encouraged.

The Winchester Hospital offers many services including informative courses on healthcare.

Hospital is among Boston's best

Residents of Winchester and 15 surrounding communities put their confidence in Winchester Hospital's highly-trained physician, nursing and support staff. Located at 41 Highland Avenue in Winchester, the hospital offers a full range of inpatient and outpatient diagnostic, medical and surgical services, around-the-clock laboratory and support facilities, The Childbirth Center and Level II nursery. Volunteers have been part of the Winchester Hospital family since the hospital was established in 1891. Over the years, the Winton Club and Friends of the Winchester Hospital have contributed immeasurably to the hospital's ability to provide the highest quality medical care in a comfortable friendly atmosphere.

Specialty services are available such as the new Sleep Disorders Center which provides diagnosis and treatment for sleep-related disorders. The Oncology Center located off campus at Baldwin Park II in Woburn, offers a warm patient-friendly environment with easy access and ample parking. And a new and expanded roster of health education classes has attracted a growing number of local residents.

Twenty-four hour emergency care is available in the hospital's Emergency Department (ED). The ED now offers "Express Emergency Services," a good alternative for patients who do not have a personal physician or cannot reach their regular physician. Upon arriving in the ED, patients are evaluated by a triage nurse who assesses the urgency of their condition. If the problem isn't complex or life-threatening, patients can be treated in the hospital's new Express area which is staffed separately by an emergency physician.

Winchester Hospital's community care network includes The Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center located at 550 Salem St. in Wilmington. The center is a state-of-the-art community health facility that offers a full range of the highest quality medical services including internal medicine, obstetrics/gynecology and pediatric/adolescent medicine. In the Walk-In/Urgent Care Center, patients are seen promptly by physicians who specialize in emergency medicine and are affiliated with Winchester Hospital.

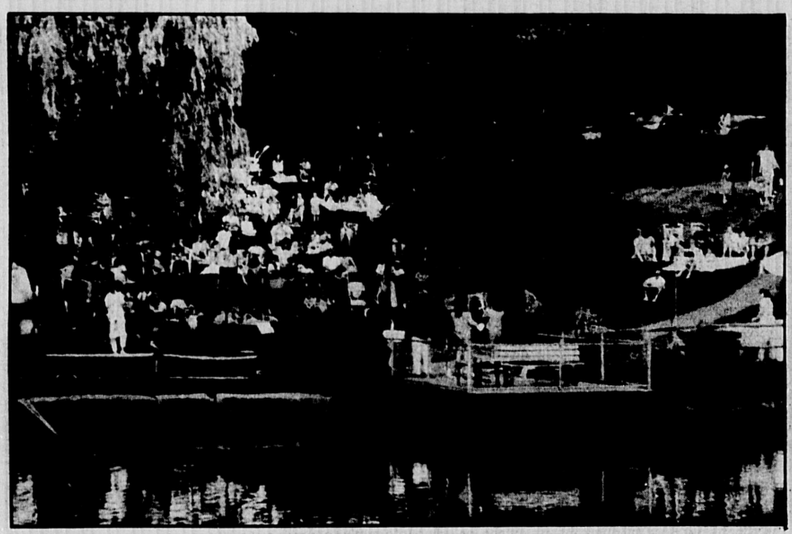

The Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center which opened in the fall of 1991, is located at 21 Warren Avenue in Woburn. As an extension of the hospital's Health Education Department the center offers a broad spectrum of preventative health education designed to help the young and old alike manage their healthcare needs.

Affiliated with Winchester Hospital, the Winchester Imaging Center at Baldwin Park II in Woburn is the only freestanding multi-modality center in Massachusetts, outside of Boston. The Imaging Center offers computed tomography (CT scanning) fluoroscopy, mammography, and two modalities that don't even use radiation — magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) and ultrasound. Opening this fall at 23 Warren Avenue in Woburn, Suburban Surgicare is a multi-speciality surgery center offering state-of-the-art facilities and high quality anesthesia, radiology, and pathology services.

Lastly, Winchester Hospital recently broke ground for a 31,520 square foot medical building in Reading. The new facility will include physician offices and other clinic support services.

Winchester Hospital's 300 physicians represent all medical specialities. Many are affiliated with some of Boston's finest teaching hospitals. The hospital is driven by a value system that cares about quality and value, treats its patients with respect and focuses on continuity of care.

The annual Mill Pond concerts, sponsored by the Recreation Department are a source of family entertainment that never fails to draw a crowd.

Griffin Center is focus of photography

Those who have already visited the Arthur Griffin Center know it is a perfect place for spending some wonderful quiet time, alone or with family, with friends or with out-of-town guests.

For those who have yet to visit the Center, summer is a perfect time to see what you have been missing. The current exhibition at the Center, brings to the Center and the community, a prestigious and exquisite collection of wildlife photographs, 81 award winning shots from the largest photography competition in the world. Sponsored by British Gas and organised by BBC Wildlife Magazine and Natural History Museum, London, the 1992 competition attracted more than 10,000 photographs from 40 nations.

The quality of the competition and the photographers, both amateur and professional, is evident in every image and every category. Included in the exhibit are bold animal portraits,several categories depicting animal behavior, surreal images from the "Form and Composition" category, moving images from "Primates in Peril", a category appearing for the first time in '92. There are also 10 wonderful photographs taken by children, selected from more than 800 submissions. Some of the photographs are hung at an eye level for young people who are both spellbound and moved by the photos.

And there are other intriguing and provocative categories and images that make for a compelling exhibition for adults and children. A catalog of the exhibit is available. For sports enthusiasts the Center is currently exhibiting 3 photographs of 19 year old Ted Williams, taken by Arthur Griffin more than 50 years ago. These are the first color photos ever taken of Williams. The Center is also adding almost weekly to its public viewing of Griffin's early work as a photojournalist and, every 4 weeks, the selection of his landscape photography is changed in what is known as the library. For the summer exhibition the Center is charging a fee to defray the costs of the wildlife exhibition: Members of the Center $2.00;Non Members $4.00; Seniors $3.00;Children 18 and under are admitted free of charge.

This might be a good time to consider becoming a member of the Center. Arthur Griffin turns 90 in September and many special events are being planned in conjunction with his birthday and with the first anniversary of the Center.

Recreation programs include many leisure time activities

Winchester residents who are looking for relatively inexpensive fun should tune into programs offered by the Department of Recreation and Community Services and other community groups. A broad-based program of leisure, educational and recreational activities are available through the Recreation Department located in the Lynch School.

The activities, which cover the various age groups in Winchester, are physical, social and cultural in nature. The department also runs the Community Education Program, formally known as the Adult Education Program operated by the School Department. Plans are under way for the fall term programs, which begins the week of Sept. 13. The department produces five seasonal brochures annually. Brochures are mailed to past participants.To get on mailing list, call the Recreation Office at 721-7125. A "Foliage Frolic"day of "leaf peeping"in the Berkshires, and holiday day trips to both Newport and New York City are some of the adult trips that await you this fall. The Ninth Annual Ski Swap will be held on Saturday, Nov. 13 at the Lynch School.

Residents are invited to bring down ski and skate equipment to sell at the sale. New equipment is also available. A portion of the proceeds benefit the department. Some of the classes awaiting interested adults this fall are:Keyboarding, Fresh Flower Arranging, Mutual Funds, Macintosh Computer classes, Dance, Aerobic and STEP classes plus much more. For teens, the Youth Center game room, located in the auditorium wing of McCall Middle School, is the place to be after school.

The Youth Center is generally open Monday through Thursday afternoons from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m. On release days the center will be open from 11:30-2:30 p.m. Call the Center at 721-0840 for more information. Children can look forward to Creative Dance classes, More Alphabet soup pre-school classes, Karate, Soccer for Kindergartners, Non-competitive Sports programs for children in grates K-4, Drama Workshop and much more. Special Events for children include the Fifth Annual Halloween Happening is planned for Saturday, October 30th. There will also be a trip out to visit the ever growing Spookyworld in Berlin, MA on Saturday, Oct. 23.

Numerous classes and workshops await children from age 1 through elementary school. There are two programs available for children with special needs:the Clubhouse Integrated After School Program and "Celebrate"- a collaborative recreation program. An updated fall brochure listing specific information can be obtained by calling Drew Bilillies at 275-0023. Watch The Winchester Star for updates on all the programs offered by the department. A brochure outlining the full schedule will be available the last week in August. For further information, visit the department at 154 Horn Pond Brook Road (Lynch School) or call 721-7125.Parent-to-parent is a group that provides Winchester parents with the opportunity for information and support. Parents-to -parents is coordinated by Hillary Turkewitz.The Winchester Community Music School is accepting registrations for lessons beginning in September. Lessons are offered for ages three through senior citizens in "Music and Movement", brass, string and wind instruments, voice, guitar, electric keyboard, recorder, music theory, jazz improvisation, music for the special needs, and more. For information, call Corie Nichols at 721-2950.

The Boy Scouts of America, Minuteman Council, has local troops for young boys. For more information, call Scott Harvey at 438-9500.The Girl Scouts, Patriot Trail Council also has local troops. For information call the Waltham office at 893-6113. A Children's Theater program is also offered in town. Under the direction of Cathy Alexander, theater programs are available for students in grades 4-8 interested in dancing and musical theater. Please call 729-0224 for more information. The Chamber of Commerce sponsors a variety of events throughout the year. From the annual holiday tree lighting program to monthly meetings for professional business women, the Chamber provides an important service to the town. For more information on Chamber events call 729-8870. Aerobic Workout Classes are available for interested individuals at several locations in town.

ARLINGTON

The original name of Arlington was Menotomy, which means "swift-running water;" the name was a tribute to the area's lively brooks and rivers. Much of the town's natural beauty, which attracted Arlington's early trades of farming and milling still remains, although the town is mostly residential now.

Despite being overshadowed in some versions of America's history, Arlington played an important part in the Revolutionary War (the most men lost on the first day of the war were lost at the site of the Jason Russell House — now a museum — in Arlington Center). It is also the birth place of Samuel Wilson, better known as Uncle Sam.

Wilson ran a meat-packing operation in Troy, N.Y., which supplied the meat for the American army. But the use of the initials "U.S." for United States was so new at the time that one of the packers took them to signify "Uncle Sam," which was Wilson's nickname. The story spread until the name Uncle Sam came to signify the federal government.

Spy Pond is perhaps the town's most beautiful natural resource. A spring-fed pond, it was carved out by the great glaciers of the ice age. Some people say that in places it reaches a depth of more than 250 feet. The pond offers good sailing and windsurfing and along the shoreline, peaceful walking and thinking-about-nothing, especially on a cloudy, misty day.

The origin of the pond's name is unclear. Some believe the name came from its role in the Revolutionary War. However, the name was recorded long before that war was fought.

Situated seven miles northwest of Boston, Arlington is a special blend of town and suburban life. With a population of nearly 45,000 people living in an area about six square miles, Arlington is one of the most densely populated municipalities in Massachusetts. Yet Arlington strives to maintain the sense of community normally seen in a much smaller town.

There are parades on most major holidays, fireworks for Town Day. The annual Town Day (this year on Sept. 18) includes games, food, crafts, live music, dancing and more.

Here are some of the highlights of Arlington's history: In the early 17th century, Tahattawan, the Squaw Sachem, who was the widow of the chief of the tribe that lived in this area, controlled most of what is Middlesex County today. In 1638, she sold it to the colonial government for about 10 pounds and a guarantee of a coat every winter for the rest of her life.

Most people are familiar with the events of April 19, 1775, but not many realize that the heaviest fighting and the bloodiest skirmishes were not in Lexington and Concord, but here in Menotomy.

Until 1807, this area was part of Cambridge. It became the town of West Cambridge, later to become Arlington. During the 17th century, the town was noted for market gardening, greenhouses and the famous ice houses of Spy Pond, whose workers, in the days before refrigeration, cut blocks of ice for shipment around the world.

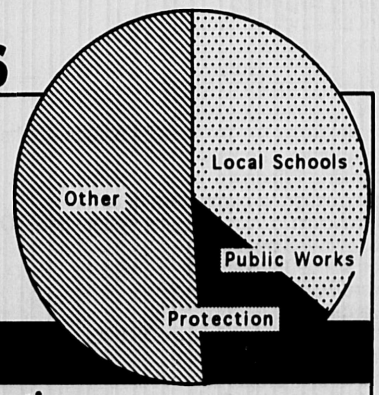

The Schwamb Mill, built in 1860 on the site of an older grist mill, is the oldest picture- and mirror-frame maker in the United States. It is a working museum, open to the public, for tours and classes by appointment, and sales.

In the last 100 years, with the advent of trolley cars and the automobile, the town gained easier access to the city and began its change from a farming town to a residential town for commuters. Today, commuting to Boston is relatively easy from Arlington via public transportation. The Red Line Subway runs all the way out to East Arlington at Alewife, making for a quick, convenient commute to downtown Boston. Driving can be a different story because the major highways to Boston are heavily traveled and slow during rush hour. For some residents, cycling is a healthy, inexpensive alternative. Cyclists can pick up the bike path along the old railroad corridor in town.

Arlington certainly is more than a bedroom community. It offers a great deal both in its natural resources and its commitment to the quality of life for the people who live here.

Selectmen, 28 boards manage town affairs

Arlington is governed by a five-member Board of Selectmen and by a 252-member elected Town Meeting.

In addition there are about 28 boards and committees that oversee and govern town affairs.

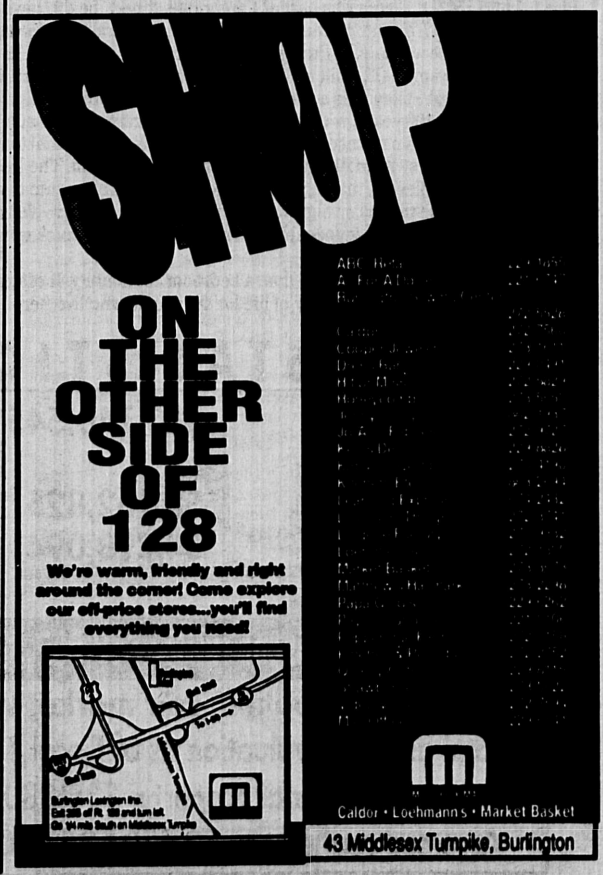

The Board of Selectmen, the Board of Assessors, the School Committee and the Housing Authority are chosen by the voters in annual town elections. (One commissioner on the Housing Authority is appointed by the governor.)

The Board of Selectmen chooses members for the Zoning Board of Appeals, Board of Registrar of Voters, Arlington Arts Council, Historic District Commission, Fair Housing Advisory Committee and the Council on Alcohol and Drug Education.

The current members of the Board of Selectmen are: Kathleen Dias, Stephen Gilligan, Kevin Greeley, Franklin Hurd, and Charles Lyons.

The Town Manager, Donald R. Marquis, with approval of the selectmen, appoints the members of the Redevelopment Board, Board of Health, Historical Commission, Library Trustees, Park and Recreation Committee, Board of Youth Services, Affirmative Action Advisory Committee, Council on Aging, Conservation Commission, Cemetery Commissioners, Trust Fund Commissioners, Board of Examiners and Constables. (One member of the Redevelopment is appointed by the governor.)

All meeting notices are posted prior to the meeting dates on the bulletin board next to the clerk's office on the second floor of town hall.

Some of the regular meetings include:

■ Selectmen meet every Monday (less frequently in the summer) at 7:15 p.m. in the selectmen's board room, second floor, town hall. There are five members of the Board of Selectmen, who sit as the town's policy making board. The board also serves as the town's water commissioners, licensing board, Board of Survey and Board of Public Works.

■ School Committee meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month in school committee room, sixth floor, Arlington High School. The nine-member committee has a number of subcommittees which work on policy, budgets and planning for the committee.

■ The Board of Assessors meets every Monday throughout the year at 7 p.m. in the assessor's room, first floor of town hall. The three-member board is responsible for reviewing the property values in town so that a tax rate can be set and property taxes may be collected. The board also hears all appeals for those who believe their property has been assessed unfairly.

■ Conservation Commission members gather on the first and third Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the planning department meeting room, first floor, town all annex. The commission's schedule sometimes changes depending on the projects and petitions before the board. All issues and projects in a specified proximity of a wetland are within the commission's jurisdiction.

■ The Zoning Board of Appeals meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 7:45 p.m. in the hearing room, second floor, town hall. The three-member board (there are two associates) hears petitions for projects that need exemptions from the town's zoning bylaws.

■ The Housing Authority meets on the second Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in the board room at 4 Winslow St. The five commissioners serve as landlords and overseers of more than 800 public housing units in the town.

■ Redevelopment Board members meet on Mondays when needed at 8 p.m. in the planning department meeting room, town hall annex. The board serves as landlords for several town buildings previously used as schools. All major building projects are subject to the board's review.

3 THINGS TO CONSIDER BEFORE YOU BUY A NEW HOME.

1. How much house can you afford?
At Boston Federal, we've taken all the guesswork out of buying a new home. With our mortgage prequalification program, you can now go house hunting knowing exactly how much house you can afford. So, when you see the house of your dreams, you can make an offer right on the spot.

2. Which mortgage is best for you?
We recognize how important it is to have a mortgage to meet your needs. That's why Boston Federal offers a variety of mortgages which give you the options of fixed or variable rates, terms from 5 to 30 years, and mortgages with points or no points. And, for first-time home buyers, we have special programs with lower down payments, lower closing costs and better qualifying ratios. So, no matter what your needs, we can help you find a mortgage to meet them.

3. Think about your lender.
You don't need just a loan. You need someone who will stay with you every step of the way. Our mortgage specialists are experienced in all phases of the home buying process and are always available to answer your questions. We'll even come to your home to answer your questions. Service, that's why we've been making home buyers' and home financers' dreams come true for over 100 years. Call us today so we can help make your dreams come true.

Minuteman Trail connects town to neighbors

By E.H. Stockstill
ADVOCATE STAFF WRITER

In the last year, the Minuteman Trail has put its unique stamp on Arlington, even though old Menotomy is only one-third of the pathway's home. And the path has not only connected the town to its neighbors, but also made it a part of a greater goal: the alternate transportation.

Let's not fool ourselves, though. The Minuteman Trail isn't just for bicyclists. It never really has been, in fact.

"All different kinds of users are out there," said Bill Taylor, with the Bicycle Coalition of Massachusetts. "I think it's a wonderful facility that will live up to and exceed everyone's expectations once it's finished."

"We are all psyched" about its completion, he said.

After years of planning, research and construction, the town last October officially dedicated the Minuteman Trail during the annual Town Day.

The trail became the nation's 500th in a series of "rail-to-trail" conversions that have made use of abandoned rail lines and turned them into pedestrian or bicycle ways.

The Minuteman Trail starts in East Arlington just this side of the Alewife MBTA station and goes through Arlington, Lexington, and Bedford to a distance of 11.2 miles.

Though the trail has been in heavy use this summer, there is one more layer of paving to be added before the surface is completed. Final work on the pathway is slated for completion this month, and a ribbon-cutting ceremony will follow.

Then the fun can really begin.

"It seems what people want is more options," said Taylor. "It's going to be an interesting shift in the next several years. The movement is in that direction, and we want to keep it moving in that direction."

Planning and Community Development Director Alan McClennen Jr. and other town officials have taken great interest in the promotion and upkeep of the trail, and community activists have also taken part in the effort.

Laura Zuke, the Arlington coordinator for the group Friends of the Minuteman Trail, has tried to increase awareness on the issues of safety and courtesy on the trail and to make it more user-friendly.

"That's the main thing. My interest has been to educate and resolve any user conflicts," said Zuke, who added that the more people using the trail the better. "I kind of like it for all uses myself."

No longer a commuter trail, it has become a community trail, she said.

Zuke and others are now trying to drum up support for a special "adopt-a-section" trail cleanup up project. At Town Day last year, at least 150 signatures were collected from people interested in participating in the project.

In addition, Zuke has helped organize monthly rides on the Minuteman Trail in conjunction with the Appalachian Mountain Club. The American Youth Hostels organization may also soon pitch in. All interested can contact Zuke at a 643-2336.

Other proposals have included:

- A Minuteman Trail newsletter;
- Support for combating hate graffiti on the trail.

Also, the state's "bike bill," now in House Ways and Means Committee, would, if passed, allocate 1 percent, or $5 million, from gas tax revenues for bicycle and other alternate transportation projects via the state Highway Department.

A statue and tribute to Samuel Wilson, who became known as "Uncle Sam," stands at the center of town, near the intersection of Mass. Ave. and Mystic Street.

Town is birthplace of Uncle Sam

For most people the name Samuel Wilson may not ring a bell. Yet his name in its familiar form is known to nearly everyone. He is known as commonly depicted: a lanky, white-whiskered gentleman in tailored red, white and blue. He has come to symbolize the United States government, personified as a stern but upright Uncle.

That "Uncle Sam" once existed as Samuel Wilson, an ordinary working fellow hardly akin to his image in political cartoons and enlistment posters, is a little-known fact. But it is Wilson, born in Menotomy (later West Cambridge and finally Arlington) on Sept. 13, 1776, who is linked with the character of Uncle Sam.

One story of the birth of the Uncle Sam nickname was published on May 12, 1830, in the New York Gazette by an eyewitness to the event. He relates that on the occasion just mentioned, one of the workmen asked his mates why the wooden casks and barrels were branded with the cryptic initials "US" (for the letters "US" to stand for "United States" were almost entirely new to them). The response he got was that it must stand for Uncle Sam — alluding then to Uncle Sam Wilson, the man who packed the provisions into the barrels.

The recruiting drum later led many of these workmen who were present at the first instance of the connection between Uncle Sam, the initials "US" and the United States government, into the battlefield to face the enemy and eat the provisions they had so recently put in order. The joke followed them, and before the end of the first campaign it appeared in print.

Town Day set for Sept. 18

Arlington's annual Town Day grew out of celebrations marking Uncle Sam's birthday.

This year the town day date has been moved ahead slightly to Sept. 17 and 18.

Organizers are planning a traditional Town Day event this year. An old-fashioned "family picnic" will be held on Friday, Sept. 17, at Spy Pond Field. A fireworks display is set for that night.

As usual, the town's main streets will be packed on Saturday with informational booths and vendors. The event has succeeded in the past in bringing community members and neighbors out into the public realm — where they can experience a return of that small-town feeling that is a part of Arlington's heritage.

ABOUT ARLINGTON

The perfect place to cool off? Head down to the 'Res'

Town's beach is popular spot

By Kim Kadehjian
SPECIAL TO THE ADVOCATE

A view of the Reservoir beach on a cool, deserted day. During the summer, the beach averages 700 visitors a day.

It's 95 degrees, hot and humid. The sun is blazing down and there is no breeze to be found. It's one of those days where your fan is just not going to do the trick. It's a sweltering situation, and it looks like people must take shelter. Is there any hope?

In Arlington there is relief just around the corner: the Arlington Reservoir, just off Lowell Street, is one of the town's most popular places to cool off.

Sabine Baboin, an Arlington resident, says she "takes cover" at the Res almost everyday. "We enjoy it while we can, it's safe for the kids, and there is lots of things to do." Also Ross Perry, another Arlington resident, has been spotted "hiding out" down the Res on his days off from work lounging in a chair reading a book. "It's a nice and quiet spot at the right time of the day" he said.

Originally, the reservoir was an important source of water for the town. It was formed by building a dam in the 1800s across North Brook, a tributary of Sucker Brook, and by diverting Munroe's and Fessenden's Brooks from their path through the Great Meadows into North Brook to flow into the reservoir.

Although the Reservoir has been used for swimming as long as anyone in the town can remember, it has gone through quite a few changes over the years. The first renovation of the swimming area was finished in 1983, consisting of the implant of a earthen berm, which was used as a wall to completely close off the water from the old res from the new area. An underground pump was planted to fill up the swimming area with clean water, and with the added filters and the chlorine, the Arlington Reservoir became a perfect environment for swimming.

In 1989, the filters were replaced with modern versions, and today the reservoir, completely filtered and chlorinated, is monitored and tested daily by the maintenance staff, and weekly by the State for chloroform and bacteria.

Kevin Brooks, the waterfront Director, who in the past had been a lifeguard at the Res, and has come back to his current position, says there is a significant difference in the Res. He notices the crowds are much larger than ever before. "The test counts are always 0 and 0, and we have a great family beach here," he said. "We have a little something for everyone; sand, sun and shade." He added that the Res is the only place you can catch a breeze even on those days where there really isn't one.

The landscape of the Reservoir has made quite a difference to a lot of the patrons. Trees and bushes were planted on the berm in 1983, which gave it that added scenery that everyone seems to enjoy. Wendy, an out-of-towner, says she comes to the Res at least twice a week. She commented, "It's a natural setting, like upper New Hampshire, so our urban kids can feel like their away from the city."

The Arlington Reservoir opened June 23, and always closes the Sunday before Labor day. "It's a good family area," says Debbie Hayes, director of the Arlington Recreation Department. The water is five feet at its deepest, and there are seven lifeguards on at peak times. There is a playground, concession stand and bath-houses for the convenience of the patrons. "The daily attendance as of now is 700, but as weather is the controlling factor we estimate at least 500 to 600 for an end of the year figure." Swimming lessons are also available for pre-beginners and beginners. Hayes also said, "We usually average about 120 kids for lessons each summer, and the program is under the Red Cross program."

The cost for a Reservoir seasonal pass is $20 for an adult, and $15 for children and senior citizens. A daily pass can be purchased for $3 on the weekdays, and $4 on weekends and holidays. The hours in June and July are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., and in August from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

So, next time you're looking for a cool getaway, shut off that useless fan, pack up your cooler, and escape those 90 degree, hot and humid days at the Arlington Reservoir.

A look at what to do around town

There is a lot to do in Arlington that does not ring up big-city expenses, and there are many activities that are free.

While some believe most of Arlington looks like Mass. Ave., there is more to it than the straight-through driver might guess. For those who are willing to venture to the side streets and look beyond the main drag, they will find a rich tapestry of neighborhoods and activities.

Arlington's history cannot be ignored. From the Jason Russell House and Smith Museum at the corner of Jason Street and Mass. Avenue to the Jefferson Cutter House, now occupying a prime spot in the town common, there are historic buildings open to tours.

The Jefferson Cutter House is open weekdays and some weekends and often has shows of the work of local artists. The house is open to the public, although donations are accepted.

The Jason Russell House and adjacent museum are also open to the public and the hours, which change in the summer and winter, are posted outside the museum. The cost to tour the site is minimal.

Also, the Whittemore-Robbins house on the town complex in the Center is open several times a year for touring. One of the truly great old homes in town, the house also contains much period furniture. The house is usually opened for public viewing during Town Day in September.

Further west, just off Mass. Ave. on Mill Lane, is the Old Schwamb Mill, one of the nation's foremost producers of oval frames. The mill, which is in regular use daily, is open to the public. However, large groups or school groups should make arrangements to tour ahead of time.

The town has an abundance of recreation and youth programs and, of course, there are numerous parks that are free and open to the public.

In recent years, arts organizations have been gaining popularity. The largest is the Arlington Center for the Arts, 41 Foster St. (in the former Gibbs Junior High School), which offers classes for children and adults and camps for children during vacation times. The Center also runs a number of special events and series that cost under $10 throughout the year.

From October to May, the Center runs a Cultural and Literary Series. Last year's series was comprised of writers, musicians and performers from Arlington and beyond.

The Center holds two festivals during the year. This year in May the fifth annual Heart of the Arts Festival was held, a full day with literary series, music series, open artists' studios, a craft fair, art workshops, food and more. The event is free to all. In December the Center also has a holiday fair which includes a craft fair, open artists' studios, food and a carol sing-along. There is a $1 admission fee to this event.

For information about specific times and dates or about any event, or to be added to the mailing list, call 648-6220.

■ Arlington's rich history includes a thriving arts community. Perhaps the best known Arlington artist is the late Cyrus Dallin, whose work, such as the Menotomy Indian Hunter statue on town hall grounds, holds great local significance. Dallin was also known throughout the world. Among his better known pieces are the Appeal to the Great Spirit outside of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and the Paul Revere statue near the Old North Church in the North End.

BELMONT

Settlement in the area that now includes Belmont began in the summer of 1630, when Sir Richard Saltonstall and approximately 40 families separated from the first settlers of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and moved inland to start an agricultural community. Originally called Pequosette after the local Indian tribe, the name of the new town soon changed to Watertown. In 1638, by order of the General Court, Watertown paid the Pequosette Indians the sum of 13 pounds, 7 shillings and 6 pence for the land.

The original settlement spread inland extensively, into the present towns of Watertown, Waltham, Weston, Lincoln, parts of Cambridge, and Belmont. Watertown became the most populous town in the Bay Colony. In 1738, Waltham seceded from Watertown, and the future Belmont was now part of three towns. A stone marker on Belmont Hill still indicates where Waltham, Watertown and West Cambridge once met.

The Belmont area did not escape the events of April 19, 1775. Richardson's Tavern on Belmont Street, and Mentomy Common at the corner of Brighton and Pleasant streets, served as training posts for local Minutemen. When the British retreated through Menotomy Center (now Arlington), they set fire to houses and plundered the neighborhood. They met resistance from the local Minutemen and residents — the first British prisoners of the war and supplies were captured on Pleasant Street.

Belmont incorporated in 1859 after many years of feuding between Waltham, West Cambridge and Watertown. It had a population of 1,175, of whom 170 were registered voters and 325 were schoolchildren. The new town was a widespread collection of fruit farms and market gardens.

The first church was built in 1857, approximately on the site of the present Post Office on Concord Avenue. The first school, Central Grammar School, was established in 1864. In 1880 Belmont lost the Fresh Pond area to Cambridge. In 1882 the Town Hall was built at the geographical center of Belmont.

Troduce from Belmont farms was sold at Faneuil Hall market. Specialties included celery, tomatoes, cucumbers, berries and small fruits. In fact, "Belmont" became a term of distinction indicating quality and large size.

In the 1900s, the large numbers of artists, authors, educators, physicians, and scientists moving to the town doubled its population. As a result, the farming community disappeared. Belmont today is almost entirely residential.

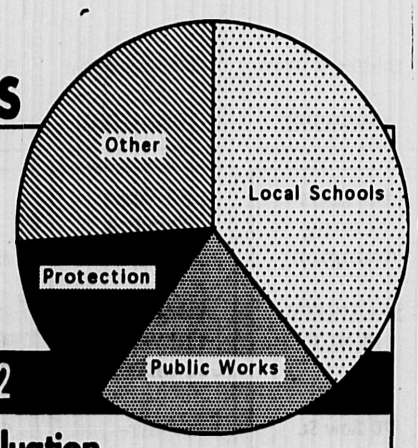

During the mid-1960s, a committee was formed to study the possibility of preserving some of the older homes and landmarks in the face of continued commercial development. This led to the creation of The Belmont Historical Commission in 1968, and the subsequent establishment of Belmont's Historic District in 1975. The district includes a long section of Pleasant Street, protecting many historical homes, the majority of which date back to the 19th century.

Welcome from the Board of Selectmen

Open letter from Board Chairman Walter Flewelling

As chairman of the Board of Selectmen, I am pleased to extend a warm welcome to our new residents. The Board of Selectmen is elected by the citizens of the town to serve three-year terms. Collectively we become the chief governing board for the town. In addition to myself, Anne Taubes Warner and William Monahan are members of the board.

The Board of Selectmen meets regularly on Monday nights at 7:30 p.m., at the Town Hall. The meetings are open to the public and we invite you to attend.

As citizens, you are represented not only by the Board, but also by Town Meeting members that are elected within the town's eight precincts.

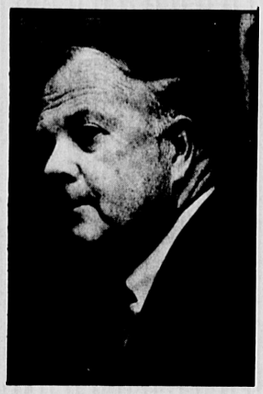

Belmont has long had a reputation for being well governed, providing a high level of services and offering an excellent school system. Town government culminates each year with the Annual Town Meeting, held on the third Monday in April.

Belmont has long had a reputation for being well governed, providing a high level of services and offering an excellent school system.

It is at Town Meeting that your Town Meeting members vote on the articles created by the Selectmen that set the policy and budgetary matters for the next fiscal year. Town Meeting is an excellent example of democracy and everyone should participate.

The Board of Selectmen hope you enjoy living in the Town of Homes and become involved in maintaining the high quality of life we have come to enjoy.

"You're taking me where?"

If making a dental appointment for your baby is a surprising idea, remember that most serious injuries to children's teeth happen before the age of three, and that any injury to "baby" teeth may cause infection, pain or damage to the forming permanent teeth. That's just one reason why the first dental appointment should be soon after most of your child's primary teeth have appeared. Our office will not only correct existing problems, but also help you prevent new ones from developing through a program of oral hygiene, good nutrition and regular preventive visits. Want to know more? Give us a call– we'll help you discover why going to the dentist is definitely for babies!

AROUND BELMONT

Belmont: the Town of Homes

Perched on steep hills just beyond the Boston-Cambridge metropolis, Belmont is a commuter-oriented suburb that provides a retreat for its residents at the end of a long work day in the city.

Many of Belmont's 27,000 residents take pride in calling their hometown a "bedroom community," and they want to keep it that way.

Highly residential, 20th century Belmont has virtually no industry, although it built its 19th-century economy by retrieving winter ice from Little Pond and its neighbor, Spy Pond in Arlington.

Today, a large percentage of Belmont residents work in Boston or Cambridge or in the Route 128 high-tech area. There is also a high concentration of elderly residents.

Belmont's small retail businesses are confined to four commercial centers, three of which are along or near Trapelo Road: Waverley Square, Cushing Square and Harvard Lawn.

Belmont, which had been termed a "land-poor" town, has very little land left on which new housing can be built.

CHUNG MOO DOE
Chong Su Nim Iron Kim style™

My name is Peter Spagna. I am a 56 year old retired Police Officer. I joined Chung Moo Doe a little over two years ago. At that time I was a pain-riddled, grouchy old grandfather at the age of 53. It was the first time in my life that I felt like I was getting old. Today I am very happy, pain free, and feel like I am "40" again.

I feel as though I have to pass this information on to others because I know what happens to middle aged people. I hear them every day telling of their pain and suffering, but when I mention Chung Moo Doe Martial Arts, they just don't want to hear it. After maintaining my weightloss of almost 50 pounds and having such good checkups, my doctor finally asked about my training. This was quite an accomplishment considering how he always ignored me before.

Chung Moo training has worked very well for me. I have cured my arthritis and have eliminated my everyday aches, pains and problems ranging from impotence to my very state of mind, allowing me to do things in retirement I have always dreamed of doing. Before Chung Moo I used to take up to 12 Nitro Glycerin pills a day. Since Chung Moo I haven't had to take any and I have cut my doctors visits by 75%. Instead of spending the remainder of my life with pain, taking pills and seeing doctors, I am having fun playing golf, gardening and enjoying my grandchildren.

The knowledge passed on to me from Chong Su Nim through his highly trained Instructors has allowed me to take control of my life again both physically and mentally. It has helped me in handling my everyday problems and I also have renewed confidence and self respect. The only thing that would make me happier than I am today is to be in a position to help others train and experience the pleasure of feeling well and healthy. I know through my Chung Moo training I can accomplish these goals I have set for myself. I have already accomplished a few of these goals by helping my son open a Chung Moo Doe school last year. I have also recently tested for my 1st Degree.

It's all at the library

By James Loewenstein
SPECIAL TO THE CITIZEN-HERALD

The public library in Belmont, which includes the main library on Concord Avenue and two branches, has something to offer to all residents, young and old, readers and movie-watchers.

For instance, the Belmont public library offers several summer programs for children, including two film series, weekly storytelling in Chenery Park, and a special incentive program to get youngsters to read.

To promote reading, youngsters who read three books are rewarded with a small gift at the children's room in the main branch. The incentive program is part of a summer reading club for children, which has hundreds of members and which always welcomes new participants.

On Tuesday mornings in the summer, there is storytelling by a children's librarian in Chenery Park, where the librarian also conducts craft-making related to the story.

There are also two summer film series, one for preschoolers through grade one and another for grades two through six.

In addition, in the children's room there are discount coupons available for summer admission to many museums in the state, as well as to an amusement park, a fair, a cruise in Boston Harbor, and other places.

Programs for adults begin in the fall, including the once-a-month Belmont Lecture Series, which tends to be given by Belmont residents who are often outstanding in their field.

On the first Wednesday of each month, volunteers give oral book reviews to interested adult listeners. The book reviews are held at noon and you can bring a brown bag lunch.

For toddlers and preschoolers, there will be story hours which will include games, puppets, crafts and sing-a-longs. Story hours will beheld at all branches in the fall.

Local folksinger Julie Goetze performs for children twice a month in the various branches.

The winter book club for children, which is also designed to promote reading, will have a medieval theme this year and the members of the club will have workshops in heraldry, armor and stained glass making. The program begins in November.

Movies are always shown during vacations.

The Belmont Public Library is a member of the Minuteman Library Network, which is a consortium of 28 public and academic libraries. Belmont residents have access to materials in all these libraries. Belmont patrons may borrow directly from these libraries or request that the items be sent to the Belmont library through a delivery service.

If a book, video or other item is not owned by the Belmont Public Library, you can use one of the library's computer terminals to find out which of the other libraries owns it. The computer can even tell you if the item has been checked out or not from one of the other libraries.

Belmont residents have access to more than 1,100 journals and periodicals in the Minuteman libraries. Articles can be obtained form other libraries by fax or inter-library loan.

The Belmont Public Library has compact discs and phonograph records and a video collection, which includes feature films and documentaries. There are also books on cassette, large print books, foreign language books and language cassettes. Also available are CD-ROM software, a collection of business reference materials and a law collection. The library also has a career center. In addition, you can borrow art reproductions and a Polaroid camera.

The Benton and Waverly branches have a range of available materials, but the bulk of the library's collection is at the main branch.

The library also offers free passes to a number of local museums, including the museum of Fine Arts, the Children's Museum of Boston and the New England Aquarium.

The Children's Room, located at the main branch, has not only books, but stories and music on cassette, videos, puppets, puzzles and games. The youngsters can use an Apple computer, which has software to teach subjects such as spelling, history and geography. Other software can introduce a child to using a computer.

The library has two meeting rooms which organizations in town are welcome to use.

A library van provides books and other materials requested by homebound patrons.

A reference librarian provides a telephone reference service to the public at 489-2845.

AROUND BELMONT

Welcome to the Belmont schools

An open letter from School Superintendent Peter Holland

I am pleased to welcome you to the Belmont Public Schools, which serve over 3,000 youngsters in the Town of Belmont. Belmont takes pride in its traditions, its government, and its schools. The schools reflect that pride and are recognized for serving a community with high expectations for academic success, social development and diverse extracurricular activities.

There are six schools in Belmont. The four elementary schools serve students from kindergarten through grade 5: Burbank, Butler, Wellington and Winn Brook. Chenery Middle School is home for students from grade 6 through 8, and Belmont High School houses students in grades 9 through 12.

Teachers, parents and students share high academic expectations for student progress and provide the support needed to reach these expectations. The strong academic tone of the Belmont Public Schools is reflected in the SAT scores of students, results from the Massachusetts Educational Assessment Program, and the colleges and universities that graduates of the Belmont Public Schools attend.

The Belmont Public Schools offer several noteworthy programs. The METCO program brings 120 youngsters from Boston to Belmont for their regular education programs. The DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program is a collaborative effort between the Belmont Police Department and the schools, and involves police officers and teachers working together with fifth grade students on drug abuse prevention techniques.

Belmont also hosts a Saturday music program for students at the elementary level. This very successful program supports th : outstanding levels of music performance at the Middle and High Schools. Belmont offers Kindergarten Extended Day and After School Care programs at each of the four elementary schools.

In 1993-94, the Chenery Middle School and Belmont High School will host students from the Ecole Bilingue in Arlington in a program accredited by the French National Curriculum Commission.

Many programs at schools

The Middle School and High School both provide an active community service program.

Excellent school systems require parent involvement, participation, and strong financial support from the community. The Belmont community has positively supported the efforts and initiatives of the Belmont Public Schools, including the debt exclusion for the renovation of the Winn Brook School and Burbank School.

In 1990, the town passed an override which provided additional support for town and school services. Despite the defeat of the April 1993 debt exclusion for the renovation of the Chenery Middle School and town infrastructure needs, town officials and citizens are collaborating on the Financial Task Force to address these capital needs in a timely manner.

Thank you for entrusting your children to the Belmont Public Schools. On behalf of the School Committee, teachers, administrators and other support staff in the Belmont Public Schools, I express my commitment to fulfill your confidence in our schools.

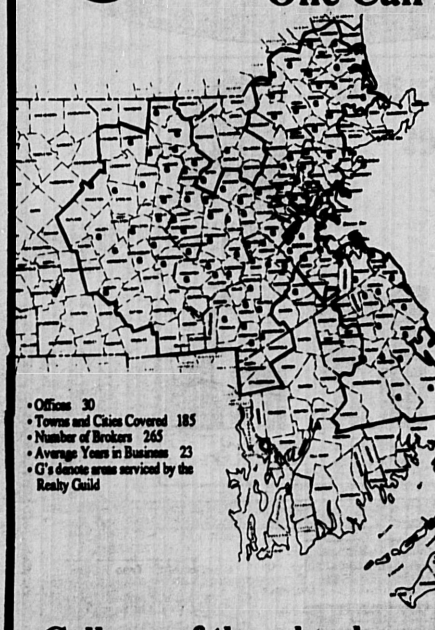

For more information on programs and activities contact the administration offices at 484-4180.

AROUND BELMONT

Serving Belmont's seniors

The Belmont Council on Aging, located on the lower level of Town Hall, is committed to the independence and the well-being of Belmont's population over age 60.

In an attempt to provide quality of life for elders, many services are offered by the COA. These include:

Transportation

The COA has its own vehicles to provide elders with transportation for medical and business appointments within Belmont, and medical appointments only, to some contiguous towns. Two shopping trips are offered weekly, with "Belderbus" transportation to Star Market, and twice monthly to the Watertown/Arsenal Malls. For all transportation, advance reservations are a must.

Nutrition

Each weekday, lunch is served at a nutrition site in Belmont (during school vacations, in Arlington) and rides are provided by request. The COA provides Meals on Wheels for people who are in need of them, and with a doctor's certification, therapeutic diets will be adhered to.

Programs

Recreational, cultural, educational and social programs are offered throughout the year. These include holiday observances, Boston Symphony events, aerobic swimming, line dancing, bridge (lessons and games), painting, current events, poetry, widowed support group, and walking club, among many others. Entitlement and resource programs, a health fair, insurance seminars and government informational programs are sponsored throughout the year.

Confidential concerns

Personal concerns and problems of any nature may be addressed by the COA's social work counselor, able to help or to refer for the appropriate information. As part of an aging network, there is available a myriad of resources, from assistance with health, to housing, financial, personal relationships and other concerns; these should be addressed confidentially before they become major problems. The COA has state-trained SHINE (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders) counselors who can give explanations of options and what the terminology means regarding insurance questions; they neither sell nor give advice.

In-home services

The in-home service offered by the COA is able to provide homemaker and/or home-health aides to meet the needs of Belmont elders. These qualified people are screened and their references checked by the COA, then matched to the needs of a Belmont elder who employs them directly.

General information

The COA staff and COA board members are committed to the well-being of the town's aging population; the COA office is located on the lower level of Town Hall (right off the parking lot) and has information people who are ready and willing to find answers to questions and solutions to problems. Call 489-8205 Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Recreation Department provides fun and games

By Belmont Recreation Dept.
SPECIAL TO THE CITIZEN-HERALD

The Belmont Recreation Department provides plenty of opportunities for the town's residents. The department's programs are selected, organized and staffed with the objective of satisfying the diverse interests of Belmont residents.

The department offers public programs for all ages, maintains public playgrounds and recreation facilities, sponsors special events and assists community groups in recreational activities.

The Recreation Department sponsors three indoor facilities: the Higginbottom Pool in Belmont High School, the Mel Wenner Field house, also inside the high school, and the public skating facility on Concord Avenue.

Swimming

The Higginbottom Pool offers kids a chance to frolic about and to learn how to swim, while it gives adults a chance to relax or do laps after a hard day on the job.

Special times are set aside Monday through Thursday evenings and on weekends for family and adult-only swim sessions. In addition, the department sponsors swim lessons for children, adults and special needs residents.

Kids who have reached the intermediate level can participate on either swim team for kids, one for 1-year-olds and under, and one for 11-year-olds and older.

During the summer, the outdoor Underwood Pool provides the same services.

Field house activities

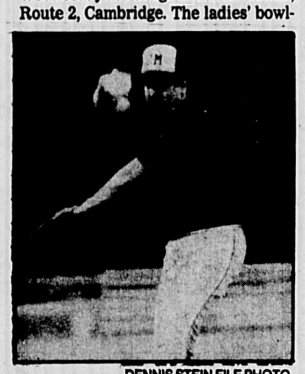

The Wenner Field house opens to the public in late October and remains open until late April. The facilities may be used for individual activities or department-sponsored programs Monday through Thursday.

The program schedule includes fitness and aerobics classes as well as volleyball and a men's basketball league. Family nights are held on the first Thursday of every month. Children are not allowed to use the field house on any other night. Special field house events include handball, paddleball, volleyball, badminton, track, a basketball league and use of the weight room.

The men's basketball league meets each Tuesday, and coed volleyball on Thursdays. The weight room is open Monday through Thursday and offers a universal weight machine.

Fitness and aerobic classes are held in the upper gym on Monday and Wednesday evenings and are taught by a certified aerobics and fitness specialist. The department also sponsors women's jazz-aerobics on Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

There is also the Belmont Ladies Bowling League which meets on Wednesday mornings at Lanes Games, Route 2, Cambridge. The ladies' bowling league runs from September to May.

Golf lessons are also available at the field house from March to April. Practice golf balls and mats are utilized to create conditions similar to those of a real golf course indoors.

Children's programs

Children's programs at the field house include Belmont Youth Basketball Association and gymnastics. The Belmont Youth Basketball Association (BYBA) is a league for boys and girls. A comprehensive program of instruction and competition featuring many different leagues for grades three through eight highlights this program. BYBA graduates have gone on to make Belmont High School basketball one of the most successful in the Middlesex League.

Basic instruction is given in all types of gymnastics for children ages 6 and up on Saturdays in the upper gym at the field house from March to April.

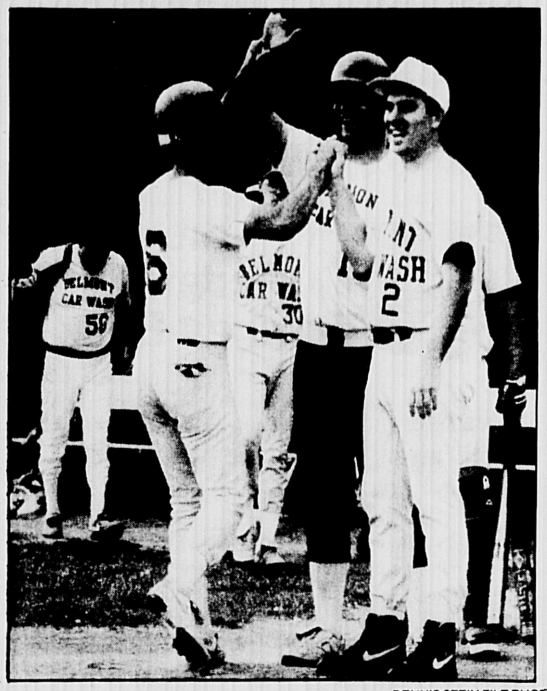

Other children's activities include the springtime Pee-Wee T-Ball and Conley League baseball and softball programs. Pee-Wee T-Ball is an instructional program for boys and girls ages 6 and 7, held in the early evening hours twice a week. Batting special balls from tees is utilized to teach the basic fundamentals of hitting.

Conley League baseball and softball is designed for children who do not play in the Little League and provides an opportunity for every child age 12 to play ball. No players sit on the bench in this league. The teams meet weeknights beginning at 6 p.m. at various playgrounds.

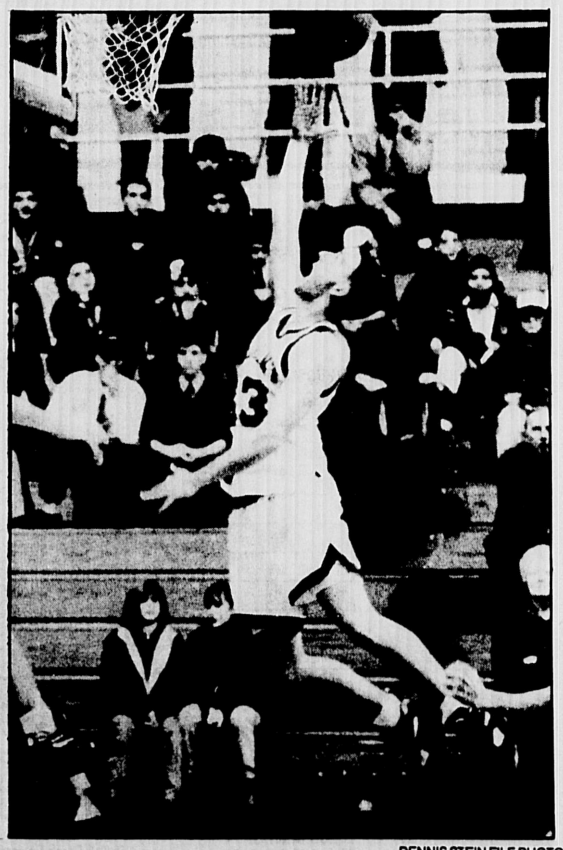

Skating

The Belmont Skating Rink gives children and adults a chance to skate, play hockey or figure skate. The facility is open every day with special times set aside for public skating, preschool and adult skating, skating and figure skating lessons and all levels of hockey for both boys and girls. It is open November through March.

The skating lesson levels include preschool, children's beginner, children's advanced beginner, children's figure skating and adult. The hockey programs include beginner's, elementary boys, girls middle school and high school, junior high and adult. The Belmont Skating Rink is also available at certain hours of the week for rental.

Other programs

Other activities in Belmont include adult tennis instruction offered on various weekday mornings in the fall and spring at the indoor tennis facility on Concord Avenue. The facility is also available for recreational use free of charge during the day and for a small fee at night. Outdoor courts are also available for use and are located at Belmont High (10 courts), Grove Street (four courts), Pequosette Field (four courts), Washington Street (four courts), and Winn Brook (four courts). Reservations are requested.

The Belmont Recreation Department also offers programs for seniors and special needs residents. Guided tours to places of interest each month from March through November are held for the seniors. An annual holiday party is held in December. Special overnight group vacation tours are provided throughout the year.

The Recreation Department sponsors the S.P.O.R.T. (Special Programs Organized for Recreation Time). S.P.O.R T. programs are open to all special needs people in Belmont.

The passport to all these activities is the School Year Membership Tag, which can be purchased at the Recreation Department at the Town Hall Annex. Most of the programs require a small fee in addition to the membership tags. The cost of the memberships varies, with senior citizens receiving them free of charge.

The following youth organizations are run privately in the town: Little League; Babe Ruth Baseball; Police Athletic League (PAL); Ranger Youth Hockey; Senior Baseball, Youth Basketball, and Youth Soccer. Further information on who to contact for further details on any of these programs can be obtained by calling the Recreation office at 489-8245.

DEALER PROFILE

Framingham Chrysler Plymouth MetroWest Oldsmobile

Location: 1199 Worcester Road, Framingham

History: Owner John Fashjian got his start in the automobile business in the early '70s as a Datsun salesperson in Worcester. But Fashjian wanted to get out on his own, and soon opened his own used car business in Worcester, then, in 1978, purchased Framingham Chrysler Plymouth. In April of 1992, he expanded to pick up Oldsmobile products, and, to further improve, opened a new Chrysler Plymouth showroom this May.

Framingham Chrysler Plymouth has "adapted to the changes in the market" over the past 15 years, says General Manager Jim Horgas. "We're now very much concerned with treating the customer right." In alignment with this goal, this dealership works hard to change the public's perception of car dealerships, says Horgas. "We're very dedicated to raising the level of integrity in the automobile business."

Types of Cars Sold: Chrysler, Plymouth and Oldsmobile cars are sold, as well as "a little bit of everything" in the way of used cars, says Horgas. This dealership also leases all makes and models of cars.

Specialties: What sets this dealership apart from its competitors, says Horgas,is "that we have a management team here. These are professional people that love their job and are dedicated to raising the integrity of this business to a higher level."

Service: The service department at Framingham Chrysler Plymouth and Metrowest Oldsmobile is staffed by factory certified technicians who are "all A-rated mechanics," notes Horgas. The service department is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

These pliers put the squeeze on most jobs

OWNER AUTO KNOW

By Don Chaiken

As we pointed out in the last column, for every auto repair or maintenance task you might tackle, there is an appropriate tool. While some tasks can be successfully completed using a similar or even improvised tool, the correct implement, used properly, makes the job go easier, more quickly and more safely.

In the last "Owners Auto Know", we looked at the variety of wrenches. In this column we'll examine a basic, common – and commonly misused tool – the plier.

Pliers come in a variety of shapes, sizes and configurations. They are extremely versatile and the various iterations of this tool perform a myriad of jobs. But the one thing any pair of pliers is not and was not designed to be is a wrench. Many do-it-yourselfers and many professionals who should know better needlessly and irrevocably round, chew and destroy the hex heads of countless bolts and nuts by trying to loosen or tighten them with a pair of pliers instead of the correct size wrench.

The basic jobs for which pliers were created are holding, squeezing and cutting.

When most of us think of a pair of pliers, we probably picture slipjoint pliers. These have an elongated hole or slot in one of the jaws which allows the jaw to be used in two positions, with different size jaw openings.

A variation on the basic slipjoint pliers is the arcjoint, often called "water-pump" pliers. Instead of a pivot pin in one handle, arcjoint pliers have a curved rail. The other handle has a series of curved slots. This setup allows the arcjoint pliers to open to a number of different sizes, increasing its versatility over the simple slipjoint variety.

The versatility of these two tools is extensive. Use them to stretch a linkage spring into place. Use these pliers to squeeze open a wire-type hose clamp. Or they can be used to grasp a dirty or rusty component while you clean it against a wire wheel or dip it in parts-cleaning solution. Use these pliers to hold a chisel while you hammer on it. Or to pull worn brake pads out of the brake calipers. These pliers can also hold a wire while you solder it, or to gently squeeze a loose wire connector tight.

To protect wire insulation or the finish of trim pieces which you may need to grasp with pliers, wrap the jaws of the pliers with some electrical tape first. But do not use these pliers to tighten or loosen bolts or nuts.

However, if you are faced with what once was a hex-head fastener that is now rusted or rounded or otherwise so damaged that no wrench can grip it, you may opt to try turning the bolt or nut with locking pliers. These have a screw adjustment to accurately vary the width of the jaw opening and a heavy spring to clamp the jaws tight when closed. Your other alternative is to drill out or cut through the fastener, so the locking pliers will do no more damage than the other methods. Obviously, the bolt or nut must be thrown away once removed anyway.

But do not use a locking pliers to remove or tighten bolts or nuts that a wrench will fit on. Once you use locking pliers on a hex-head fastener, you will always have to use locking pliers on it – chances are a wrench will no longer fit.

When you have to remove or install studs – headless bolts – don't do it with locking pliers. Either use a special stud wrench or thread two nuts on the stud. Use two wrenches to jam the nuts together and then use one wrench on the top nut to tighten the stud, the bottom nut to loosen. Once you're done, loosen the nuts and remove them. Locking pliers will damage the shank or the threads of the stud.

Pliers....are extremely versatile and the various iterations of this tool perform a myriad of jobs. But the one thing any pair of pliers is not and was not designed to be is a wrench.

Other common pliers are the needle-nose pliers for grasping smaller parts, like retaining clips. Another is the cutting pliers which can clip through wire, springs, nylon straps and other tough materials.

As you grow more proficient, you may want to investigate the crimping pliers to strip the insulation from wire without damaging the wire inside and to securely attach solderless connectors. Another useful plier is the hose-clamp pliers which have small grooves designed to hold the ends of spring-wire type hose clamps.

Retaining-ring pliers are for removing circlips and retaining rings. These have jaws designed to grasp the ends of clips and various retaining rings so you can remove the rings without damaging the ring or the component it is on. Some retaining-ring pliers have interchangeable tips to accommodate the various types of retaining rings in use. And some of these pliers are meant to squeeze the rings closed, others are meant to spread the ring open, depending on the application.

Next, we'll wrap up the basic tools by looking at the wide variety of screwdrivers.

The new convertible is easy to operate and easy to like

I kept doing it again and again. In fact, the 1994 BMW 325i convertible top is so easy to operate, I'd even do it at traffic lights.

KEANE ON WHEELS

By Tom Keane

If the top was up, I'd put it down; if it was down, I'd put it up. All I had to do was turn a lever near the top of the windshield and hold my finger on a button. This activated a system that began by simultaneously cranking all four windows down. Then, with a little shove, the top raised while a cover was opening. The top folded itself behind the rear seat and the cover closed. Finally, all four windows returned to the raised position. The entire operation took about 20 seconds.

Therefore, at the next traffic light, I'd take another 20 seconds to reverse the procedure. The part I liked best was the final pull on the lever. It not only clamps the top to the window, the same motion seals the top to the rear. Call me a showoff, but I couldn't help myself. I enjoyed watching the expressions on other drivers' faces as they watched in awe. And gawk they should, the BMW 325i has an excellent top up/down operation.

This convertible compliments the BMW 3-Series that also features the 325I Sedan and 325i Coupe. Even without the structural support of a hard top, the convertible has a solid, rigid body. With the top up, it is hard to distinguish the difference in noise level between the rag top and a metal top. There are no body shakes or vibrations; it has a solid ride. The reasons for its rigidity are thicker floor stampings and extra heavy cross-member supports both front and rear. The A-pillars are reinforced for rollover strength.

A good automobile must fit like a suit

Auto Weekly features Ask the Auto Doctor, a question and answer column by car specialist Junior Damato. Damato's column will be featured twice a month.

Damato, an ASE Master Automotive Technician with 25 years experience, owns and operates a seven-bay garage in Boston His talents are twofold: repairing cars and verbalizing problems. As a result, Damato has a nationally syndicated "Auto Talk" radio show broadcast six hours every week. Damato can be heard on WHDH in Boston Sundays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

ASK THE AUTO DOCTOR

By Junior Damato

Dear Doctor: In regards to a recent column to another reader about a Volvo, you said that they are very durable cars and built to last. I own a Volvo and it has been anything but that.

Here are a few of the problems: The air conditioner is undersize; the PCV system clogs up and causes a build up of pressure in the crankcase, which leads to oil leaks. The brake pads wear out in 15,000 miles and the lists goes on. When I complain to Volvo, the answer I get is that Volvos are high-maintenance cars. I truly hate my Volvo.

Philip C.

Dear Philip: Thank you for taking the time to write to me regarding your feelings about your Volvo. To me, Volvo cars are very crude, and lack a lot of options and power that I personally like. I am very demanding when it comes to car ownership; I want the car to fit me like a suit. Volvos have always been built for safety, not speed. At least, that was the case until a couple years ago. I have sent your letter to the Volvo corporation and will go on record and say that Volvos are not for everyone. However, I do like the new front-wheel drive Volvo 850; this car would suit me fine.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1984 Ford Thunderbird with a 5-liter, 302 V-8 engine that has electronic fuel injection. My problem is that the ERG valve gets stuck in the partially open position from carbon deposit. When this happens, the car tends to stall when coming to a stop. Is there a way to prevent this from reoccurring?

James K.

Dear James: This is a common problem in a lot of Ford products. It is caused by a lot of partially loose pieces of carbon in the combustion chamber and the valve pockets in the cylinder head. You have two choices: either pull the cylinder head off and have a machine shop disassemble and clean it, or try to use a top engine cleaner. I would try the latter. General Motors sells a very good cleaner, and most Cadillac dealers have it in their parts department. This chemical, however, should be used only by a professional technician.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1981 BMW 320i with 117,000 miles on it. The car is in great shape. I live in Colorado and the high altitude causes a strange problem. I drive down our hill once a day, and the first trip down, the car does not have any smoke coming out of the tail pipe.

I coast most of the way in second gear. When I travel down the hill a second time, there will be a lot of blue colored smoke come out of the tailpipe once I reach level ground and start to accelerate. The smoke is worse in hot weather. I have found that if I shut the car off and wait for about ten minutes, no smoke will come out of the tailpipe. The engine uses very little oil. This may sound like a small problem to you but it is very aggravating to me. I read your column every week and will await your answer.

Marlene F.

Dear Marlene: For some unknown reason, it sounds like oil is collecting in the cylinder head while you are driving down hill. Once you start to accelerate, oil rushes from the front of the cylinder head to the rear. During this time, oil finds its way into the cylinder and is burned.

Loose valve guides and worn seals are the most common cause of this problem. Make sure that the oil is not over filled. Check the spark plugs for oil fouling, and check the PCV system. I would also suggest trying a high-performance multi-weight oil 20/40 for the summer months. The other choice would be engine disassembly to check for worn engine parts.

Dear Auto Doctor: I own a 1990 Dodge Shadow with 9,300 miles on it. The car went dead. I had a local garage give it a jump start and then I drove it to the garage to see what was wrong. The mechanic hooked my car up to a large machine and found that the battery would not hold a load under a load test, and the alternator was not putting out enough charging amps. The battery cost $90 and an alternator with a built-in regulator cost $240. Total for the labor was $130 plus $27.60 tax for a grand total of $487.60.

Check the spark plugs for oil fouling, and check the PCV system.

My question is, shouldn't this be covered by Dodge? Is this a high cost for the repair, and is it in any way an emission problem?

Andrew V.

Dear Andrew: If you check your warranty, you will find that everything is covered for 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever occurs first. The powertrain warranty takes effect upon the expiration of the 12/12,000 new car warranty. The cost of the battery is a bit high, but the alternator, labor and diagnostic charges are fair.

You're never too old for a safe cradle.

This one happens to be quite beefy. We call it a spaceframe. It has some 3,000 structural welds. And "crumple zones" that help dissipate the energy of a crash before it reaches the passenger compartment. A fact that helps Moms and Dads sleep more comfortably, too.

Ford has improved its motor home suspensions

Buyers of motor homes will be asking for their castle on wheels by automotive brand names if Ford Motor Co. has its way.

Right now, the mechanical underpinnings of the great bus-like motor homes are largely hidden under coaches made by recreation vehicle manufacturers.

But Ford would like buyers to shop for the chassis the same way they shop for the coach builder. "We're trying to develop a preference for the Ford RV stripped chassis," says Jerry Mittman, recreation vehicle sales manager of Ford.

The body and frame chassis lacks a little of the styling pizzazz of the Ford Taurus or Probe. Easily recognizable are the two axles and their tires. The steering column and wheel jut upright from a maze of engine components for the 7.5L V-8 engine.

To help buyers "think national brands," Mittman points out that the chassis is what makes the motor home motor. Owners tend to be more concerned with the coach product because "in many cases, it's their home."

But Ford engineers have been hard at work for model year 1994 (which starts in March, in advance of the summer recreational vehicle season.)

Mittman ticks off improvements in steering and handling and a revised suspension. "What we did was to go through the chassis with customer feedback. In the steering area we brought in today's truck steering column and gears. We updated the instrument cluster with easier to read graphics and made dual windshield wipers standard."

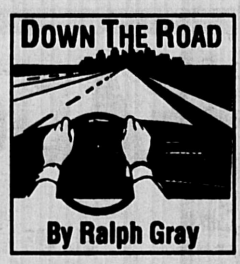

A lockout of fourth or the overdrive gear is new for improved shifting in traffic and engine braking down hills. The front end structure was stiffened up and springs and shock absorbers were tightened up for a more controlled ride.

Engineers tweaked the massive 7.5L V-8 to extract 15 more horsepower to 245 horsepower. They also improved the fuel mileage so that one can now expect 8 or 9 miles per gallon. It has a 75 gallon gas tank.

Ford offers a diesel engine with its better fuel economy only in its minimotor home chassis – the one with a Ford Econoline van cab at the front and Ford van underpinnings.

Mounting diesels in the bigger motor homes takes up front floor space and the diesel engine noise is a problem. Most diesel engines are placed in the rear to "push" the vehicle, minimize noise and freeing up front space.

Alternate fuels are a possibility but come with the same liabilities in motor homes as they do in cars and trucks. "Weight is the problem with compressed natural gas," says Mittman. "And until the fuel is readily available coast to coast, I don't see much demand from motor home buyers," Mittman says.

The Ford exec does expect to hear from motor home and mini-motor home buyers who need to take their Ford chassis in for service. Although Ford dealers don't sell the chassis (Ford sells direct to the RV manufacturer) selected dealers are service points. "All a motor home owner has to do is call the 800 number we supply and the operator will call the nearest dealer, set up an appointment and check back after the work to see that everything is OK," Mittman says.

Right now, things are OK in the RV business. The Recreation Vehicle Industry Assn. expects dealer orders may top 1988 totals, the decade's best year when more than 427,000 RVs were shipped.

Right now, things are OK in the RV business. The Recreation Vehicle Industry Assn. expects dealer orders may top 1988 totals, the decade's best year when more than 427,000 RVs (including trailers) were shipped.

Ford's Mittman says the trend is to larger motor homes in the 30 to 35 foot range with prices around $65,000, and sales will grow to 35,000 in the near future from 30,000 this year. The mini-motor homes are a smaller market that will grow to 20,000 annually down the road from 17,000 units now (that retail for around $37,000.)

Ford dealers do sell van conversion units. While motor home buyers are 55 years old and up with many empty-nesters, the conversion van is treated more like a family car. A man or a woman is just as likely to drive, while the motor home is usually male-piloted.

In either case, the RV industry is touting family values. "One thing a motor home and van conversion can do is bring the family together more," says Mittman. "It pulls the family together more to travel and vacation together.

That's emphasized in the results of an RVIA survey of RV owners who were asked where they were going this summer. A cross country tour and Disney World, Orlando FL topped the list, followed by the Florida Panhandle and country music haven, Branson, MO.

Speaking of rollover, BMW engineers have focused on safety by providing dual air bags, safety belt tensioners, and anti-lock brakes. As an option, this car can be equipped with deployable roll bars. Normally, they are out of sight, but should the sensors detect the need, two roll bars will be deployed from behind the rear seats.

This car is powered by a 2.5-liter, 24-valve, double- overhead camshaft, in-line six-cylinder engine. It is linked to a very smooth, electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission.

This top seals exceptionally well. It has a unique window-sealing system that shuts out noise, as well as water. The only time rain entered the car was when we opened the door. The water ran off the roof onto the driver's seat.

Sound good so far? Wait till you learn the price: $43,265 – complete, of course. For this price you get many features that you'd expect on a luxury automobile. For example, it has a powerful heating system, ideal when driving with the top down on a chilly day. And the air conditioning system has sufficient cooling capability to make a hot day more bearable – even with the top down. With the top up, it has more than adequate cooling capacity. Incidentally, the canvas has an inner lining to help shield the interior from the cold, heat and noise.

The 325i convertible is equipped with a fine sound system, and is wired for the addition of a disk player. Typical of most convertibles, the trunk is small. It can hold two pieces of carry-on luggage, but not much more.

This car is powered by a 2.5-liter, 24-valve, double- overhead camshaft, in-line six-cylinder engine. It is linked to a very smooth, electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission. The BMW people speak highly of this powertrain, citing that the engine produces 189 horsepower. But I don't share their enthusiasm. I found the need to build up lots of torque before the engine gathered speed. As a result, I allowed myself more clear road than usual when entering a freeway.

That lack of acceleration, however, is minor compared to the overall enjoyment of this vehicle. If you enjoy being a showoff, this is a convertible worth showing off.

SAFETY LEADERSHIP: The roots of General Motors safety leadership run deep. In 1924, GM opened the world's first automotive proving ground, and in 1955, safety research was formally instituted. In 1973, it added a biomedical science department to improve crash-test dummies, and the following year made air bags available – a decade before any other manufacturer.

FASTER AND FASTER: Faced with the widespread disregard for 55 mph speed limits, Congress, in 1987, gave states the option of raising the limits to 65 mph. Today, according to a survey by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, 75 percent of all passenger car drivers on rural interstate highways are exceeding the 65 mph speed limits, and more than one of three is exceeding 70 mph.

ABOUT ABS: Although anti-lock brakes are always available on cars that have ABS, the system doesn't become active until the electronic control unit detects an impending wheel lock condition.

TAKE A BOW: The Nissan Altima has received the I.D. Award for design excellence in the Consumer Products category. The Altima was chosen from 330 new products by I.D. (International Design) Magazine as the winner of the award.

BULLETIN

■Parent to Parent:
How do we help children meet their responsibilities without ending up in an angry battle? What can we do when we are concerned about our child's or adolescent's friendships? What are some effective ways of dealing with sibling conflicts?

Parent to Parent's first Friday Forum is a series of brown bag lunch meetings for parents interested in discussing questions like these. The summer meetings will be from noon to 1:30 p.m. on the first Friday of each month, and September 3. All meetings will be held in the Winchester Public Safety Building (Police Station).

This series is an opportunity to network with other parents and discuss issues of common interest. See Coming Events, page 5B for more information.

COMING EVENTS

■Chamber summer hours:
The Chamber of Commerce will be open in July from 12:30 to 3 p.m. on Thursdays and Fridays. In August, the Chamber office will be open on Mondays and Tuesday mornings. As always residents with questions can leave them on 729-8870, and your call will be returned. If you prefer, you may call the Chamber president, Cathy Jackson at Bayberry Shoppe (729-9399) Monday through Wednesday.

Agreement reached on field wetlands

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

In a unanimous vote the Conservation Commission approved the Town's estimation of where the wetlands are in the well field.

The agreement allows the Town to file a notice of intent to the commission to develop a sports field on the land. The land is under control of the Board of Selectmen, but because the plans might entail construction within 100 feet of wetlands, the Town must get approval from the Conservation Commission.

At their Aug. 9 meeting, Town Engineer John Ciarcia presented the commission with engineering maps that outlined where the wetlands are with respect to the proposed sports field. The plans were drawn up by Dr. Walter Hewitson, a biologist at Bridgewater College.

"We're asking to finally go on and design the project," Ciarcia said, adding that there was no intention from day one to construct anything on any wetland area.

Winchester resident Margaret Schleicher told the commission that she and several other citizens who want to see the sports field built had another study of the area done. The second study, she said, is more definitive about determining the locations of the wetlands.

Mathew Long, the Boston surveyor who did the study for Schleicher, informed the commission where he determined the location of the wetlands in the area. Long said that when he looked over the field about two weeks ago, he used state standards for determining what a wetland was and what wasn't.

According to Long, if there is more than 50 percent wetland vegetation, which includes plants like jewel weed, on a given test plot then the area is indeed protected under the state wetland regulations. Long agreed with only a small area of the land which had been determined wetlands by Dr. Hewitson.

Muraco close to getting new head

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Two candidates for the position of principal at Muraco school have been selected for final interviews with Supt. Robert Fitzgerald, who said he hopes soon to make a decision on who will get the job.

The search committee chose J. Dennis Burkholder, currently a principal in Vermont, and Rosalie M. Tashjian, a lower school head in Wellesley, from a field of 50 possible candidates.

The committee, made up of Winchester teachers, parents and administrators, started their search by weeding out 10 candidates from the 50 initial applicants for the job. The committee first rated and divided the applicants into groups. Applicants who definitely deserved an interview were given the highest rating, a 5, those who deserve some consideration were given a 3 and those who didn't meet the qualifications for the job were given a 1.

Assistant Superintendent Tom Budrewicz said all 50 of the initial applicants had good qualifications, but none of the 10 candidates the committee weeded out from those 50 had perfect 5 ratings.

"No candidate received a 5 from all the committee members, but all were highly rated," he said.

Dennis Burkholder was interviewed Aug. 4. He received his B.S. in elementary education in 1975 from Millersville University, his M.S. in education from Lesley College in 1979 and his

Wedge Pond Beach reopens after brief rise in bacteria level

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

After closing and then reopening Wedge Pond due to a dramatic increase and then drop in the levels of bacteria in the water, the Board of Health is still searching for the cause.

Health officials closed the pond Aug. 5 after tests showed coliform counts slightly above normal and decided to keep it closed when later tests revealed levels that were "off the scale," according to Board of Health director Joe Tabbi. The pond was reopened Aug. 8 after tests revealed that the coliform levels had gone back to below a normal level.

"What caused it is still up in the air," Tabbi said, adding, however, that he will keep investigating the situation until they find what caused the high counts of coliform. The board plans to bring in an outside vendor to test the pond more definitively in the hope of discovering the problem.

Tabbi speculated that sources for the high coliform count may have been heavy rain causing an abnormal flow in a sewer line, or too many geese and ducks in the pond. Most of the drains leading into the pond were checked and were not discovered to be the source.

Discovering such high levels of coliform and having to keep the pond closed was discouraging, Tabbi said, considering how many people worked toward opening it.

"The secret of maintaining it is continuing to monitor it and take samples," he said.

In an interview on Friday, Aug. 6 Board of Health member Randall Swartz said the coliform level is measured in counts per 100 ml. A low level is perhaps from 50 up to 1,000 counts of coliform per 100 ml. A low level is expected and is considered normal, Swartz said. A very high level can be up to several hundred thousand counts.

The levels which resulted in the closing of the pond on Aug. 5 were around 1,300 counts per 100 ml, just above what the board feels comfortable with for normal levels, Swartz said. Usually, the board takes the tests, but sends the water to a certified EPA lab to get the reading, he said.

"As a board, we like to be on the conservative side, for the public safety. We're committed to keeping it (Wedge Pond) open, but safe," Swartz said.

Tabbi said he had taken three counts Aug. 5, the third of which when the results came back was the one, at 1,300, they determined was a high enough level to close the pond.

After the pond had been closed to the public further testing revealed the levels had gone up from 1,300 to 6,400 counts of coliform per 100 ml. That level was higher than the levels measured three years ago when talk first started about reopening the pond to the public, according to Tabbi.

A third set of tests the next day showed the level had dropped to between 560 and 160 counts per 100 ml, allowing the pond to open again Aug. 8.

Tabbi said he hopes the high levels were a "fluke" of some sort. "We'll find it (the source)," he added.

Library to hold hearing

The Trustees of the Winchester Public Library will hold the first of a series of public hearings on the proposed library building renovation on Tuesday, August 17, 1993 at 7:30 pm. It will be held in the Winchester Room at the Winchester Town Hall on Mt. Vernon Street.

This hearing will provide an opportunity for people with disabilities and members of the Winchester Historical Commission to give their recommendations to the library staff, architects, and library trustees. The meeting is open to everyone.

The Winchester Room at the Winchester Town Hall is wheelchair accessible. Arrangements have been made for an accommodation for a sign language interpreter. Handouts will be produced in both large print and braille. Anyone with questions, or anyone who requires any other accommodation, should call Mary Rose Quinn, the library's ADA Coordinator, or Richard Welton, the Community Services Librarian, at 721-7171.

Rev. Joseph W. Lyons, who made major contributions to religion in Winchester, died at his home in Charlestown, R.I. at the age of 86.

Monsignor Lyons, the first pastor at St. Eulalia's Church in Winchester from 1966 to 1976, died of cancer, Sunday, Aug. 8.

Born in Boston, the Rev. Lyons attended Boston Public Schools and graduated from Boston College in 1927. He was ordained in 1933 by the late Cardinal William O'Connell.

"He always made parishioners feel equal. He reached out to everybody, regardless of religion and was always there if you expressed the need," said Adele Hamblett, who knew Rev. Lyons since 1966. He was the celebrant at her wedding, and her eldest daughter was baptized by him.

She related how he used to tell the story about how she and her husband met during a "kiss of peace" ceremony. She said the Rev. Lyons would use it as an example that good could come out of some of the changes that have tak-

POLICE LOG

Monday, August 9

6:45 p.m.

■ Officer Lawrence Hill responded to Lake Street and Middlesex Street on a report of a motor vehicle accident with property damage. An the scene, the officer observed that a driver, a Winchester youth, had lost control of the car while attempting to make a left turn onto Middlesex Street and run into shrubs on the property of a Lake Street resident. Reportedly, there were two other Winchester youths in the car at the time of the accident who fled the scene when the incident occurred. The driver was transported to the police station and issued a citation for operating a motor vehicle without a license.

■ Officer William Wright responded to a report of a stolen motorcycle at a Pilgrim Drive residence. At the scene, the officer spoke with a 58-year-old Winchester woman who stated, according to reports, that a man had driven off with a motorcycle she had offered during a moving sale without paying for it. Reportedly, the woman called police in Peabody, where the man apparently stated to her he was from, to report the incident.

Saturday, August 7

■ Officer Douglas Wilkinson was dispatched to a Highland Avenue residence to take a report of a stolen bicycle. At the scene, the officer spoke with a 48-year-old Winchester woman who stated, according to the police report, that sometime during the last two weeks someone stole a bike out of her garage. Distinguishing marks on the bike include a lock with a combination wrapped around the shaft of the seat.

Friday, August 6

9:08 p.m.

■ A report was taken by dispatch at the police station of a recovered stolen motor vehicle. According to reports, the car was stolen from a 43-year-old Burlington man sometime on Aug. 1. and was recovered by Boston police in Charlestown. The vehicle had minor body damage, interior damage and the radio was missing.

5:41 p.m.

■ A Winchester resident went to the police station and handed in a change purse which she reportedly found by the drive up mail boxes on Waterfield Road. The owner's phone number is apparently unlisted and the wallet was left at the desk.

11:03 a.m.

■ Officer Lawrence Hill pulled over a car with expired plates on Main Street. The driver, a 39-year-old Winchester man, produced expired registration. A computer check by the officer verified the vehicle's expired status and the driver was issued a citation. The car was towed.

10:04 a.m.

■ Officer Lawrence Hill stopped a vehicle with expired plates at Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway. According to the police report, the driver, a 58-year-old Winchester man, stated he did not have the car's registration with him. A computer check by the officer revealed that the car's registration was expired. A citation was issued and the car was towed to the man's residence.

Tuesday, August 3

9:20 a.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Arthur Houllahan responded to a report of an attempted larceny at a South Gateway residence. At the scene, the officer spoke with a 19-year-old Winchester resident who stated, according to reports, that sometime between 12:30 a.m and 9 a.m. on Tuesday someone attempted to steal his motorcycle. The motorcycle had been discovered nearby with its ignition damaged.

FIRE LOG

6:26 a.m.

■ Engine 2 and the ambulance were dispatched to a Cambridge Street residence on a medical aid. On the scene, they discovered a woman who was having difficulty breathing. Firefighters assisted the ambulance crew in preparing the woman for transport to the hospital. Returned to station at 6:50 a.m.

Saturday, August 7

3:38 p.m.

■ Engine 3 was dispatched to the rear of a Main Street building on a report of a fire. At the scene, firefighters discovered a small area burning and used brooms to extinguish the flames. Returned to station at 4:08 p.m.

Thursday, August 5

6:14 p.m.

■ The Winchester hazardous materials team was dispatched in response to an incident at Tufts University in Somerville. At the scene, the team found that two different acids had been mixed together causing a reaction and a minor explosion. The acids were neutralized, according to reports. Returned to station at 11:00 p.m.

10:30 a.m.

■ Engine 3 responded to a report of a wire down on Cross Street at the town line. At the scene, firefighters discovered a tree had pulled down a power line. They blocked traffic at Cross Street and Main Street until workers from the Edison Company could disconnect the wire. Returned to the station at 11:01 a.m.

Wednesday, August 4

5:55 p.m.

■ Lt. George Moran was dispatched on a call of a brush fire near the dam in the Fells area which a passing bicyclist stopped into the station to report. Lt. Moran checked the main roads from Hillcrest Parkway to South Border Road but found no smell of smoke and no fire. Returned to the station at 7:25 p.m.

7:24 a.m.

■ All apparatus responded to a report of a fire at a Mt. Vernon residence. On arrival, officers found the third floor attic alarm going off. Firefighters checked the entire area and found no smoke and no fire. The alarm system was rest. Returned to the station at 7:38 a.m.

Sunday, August 1

11:53 p.m.

■ Engine 3 and an Arlington rescue unit responded to an Everett Street residence for medical aid. At the scene, firefighters administered medical aid to the patient until the the Arlington rescue team prepared the patient for transportation to the hospital.

12:01 p.m.

■ Engine 3 was dispatched to Washington Street at Stone Avenue for a report of a wire down. Upon arrival at the scene, firefighters discovered a telephone wire lying across the road. They placed the wire on the side of the road and returned to the station at 12:25 p.m.

12:12 a.m.

■ All apparatus responded to a fire alarm at Simons Road. While on the way to the scene, the status of the alarm was reported to the firefighters as a malfunction. Returned to the station at 12:18 a.m.

Friday, July 30

8:20 a.m.

■ Engine 3 responded to Winchester Hospital to reset an alarm box. While on the way, firefighters witnessed a two car motor vehicle accident at Highland and Englewood Road. They notified the police department and, after assessing that no fire department service was required, continued to the hospital. Returned to the station at 8:40 a.m.

SETTING THE STAGE

QUESTION: Do you have any suggestions on how to prepare a home for its best showing?

ANSWER: Don't just sell a house – sell a home! For evening inspection, brighten your home from the front porch light on through all the rooms in the house. Little decorator touches – a vase of flowers, a plant, small pillows – can add much to the comfortable feeling. If it's winter, a crackling fire adds irresistible charm. A working fireplace is a major attraction to home buyers. A large mirror can make a room look larger, reflect and magnify many of your best selling points. Create that subtle, lived-in atmosphere.

DON'T SELL A HOUSE, sell a home. Subtle showmanship can help set the right atmosphere.

Greyhound kills cat, sparks controversy over track adoptions

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

For at least one pet owner, the recent savage killing of the family cat by a greyhound dog raises questions about the breed's suitability for adoption.

At approximately 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 20, Janet Griffin went over to her neighbors' house to let their adopted greyhound dog out into the back yard.

The dog, named Acrobat, is one of more than 5,000 racing dogs that a Hopkinton organization called Greyhound Friends Inc. reports it has rescued in New England and found good homes for since 1983. Either for failing to win races or for simply getting past their prime, about 50,000 greyhounds are killed each year, according to the Greyhound Protection League in Palo Alto, CA, and other rescue organizations.

The greyhounds are trained to chase mechanical or live bait around a track and some, like Acrobat, are described as "keen," meaning they are very aware of the movements of small animals.

So, when Griffin let Acrobat into her neighbor's back yard, the greyhound went for and killed her cat, which had crawled under the fence. Her 2-year-old son witnessed the incident, Griffin said.

"The dog came running toward me with the cat in its mouth," she said, adding that the cat was often known to go under the fence to say hello to the neighbors.

Somehow Griffin said, she managed to get the cat out of the dog's mouth, but by the time she reached her own house, the cat was dead.

The incident caused grief for both Griffin and Greyhound Friends Inc., who have since decided to add statements to their contracts with people who adopt greyhounds that specify in writing they understand how to care for a "keen" dog, said Greyhound Friends Inc. employee Karen Engel.

Greyhound Friends Inc. Director Louise Colman said Acrobat was sent, following her agency's 'no-kill policy' to New Jersey where he's in a fenced yard.

Engel said people should communicate about the animals in the neighborhood so they can find out how pets in a neighborhood will get along.

"We work hard to gauge how a dog will react," said Coleman.

Coleman said the dogs they rescue generally fall into categories concerning how they react to cats. Some greyhounds will basically ignore cats, some are afraid of them and then there are some that would kill cats, she said, adding that they warn the people who adopt dogs which fall into the last group.

Winchester resident Jane Klorer, a greyhound owner and volunteer for Greyhound Friends Inc., said she has placed about 500 dogs since 1985, including between 15 to 20 in Winchester. She said she's never had to take a dog back because of problems with cats.

Klorer said there are certain preventive measures you take with a "keen" dog, like keeping a leash tight on the dog when walking it and being firm if it lunges for a small animal. Also, she said, keep a muzzle on the dog until it adjusts to the life in which it does not have to chase the bait.

"Once they become pets, they tend not to be that way," she said.

Griffin, who said she worked for three years for a humane society, suggested it is important for people to know that precautions need to be taken when adopting the rescued greyhounds, adding that she would like to make sure a situation like she experienced does not happen again.

"The most helpful thing we could do is work with Greyhound Friends to get the policies written," she said.

FROM ED'S CORNER

More on cooking

By Ed Govostos

If ever there was a staple, a food of the people, it is the potato. It is the one food that people eat at least once a day. My mother-in-law, who is 93, still has to have potatoes with the evening meal. Potatoes, like beef, have a lot to do with history in this country.

John Kennedy, John McCormack, Tip O'Neill, Billy Bulger: all these men of Irish Ethnic heritage, directly or indirectly, are the product of the Irish potato farmer. What would politics be like, on a local or state level, without Irish politicians? Growing up we had a large family in my neighborhood who were on hard times. I didn't know it at the time. On Sunday I would sometimes be at their home when the Sunday dinner was being served which consisted of mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce and black tea. Being young at that time I didn't understand. Writing this article now, I understand. Without potatoes, there wouldn't be any meal.

Fast food companies today have raised french fries to an epicurean delight. Mashed with garlic, homefries in bacon fat, scallopped in cream, you could go on forever.

The following recipe is simple, although not often seen:

Pommes Anna

Four medium to large potatoes, peeled and sliced thin.
One stick of unsalted butter, melted.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Heavily butter a 9-inch glass pie plate, make a neat pattern on the bottom and sides of the plate with potato slices, spooning a little butter on top, salt and pepper.
Continue to layer potatoes and butter until plate is full, somewhat mounded.
Cover with foil.
Place in 450 degree oven and bake 45 minutes. Remove foil and bake 15 minutes longer.
Remove from oven and drain off as much of the butter as you can, (can be used again cooking).
Unmold onto a plate. Cut into wedges and serve.

Curry: My first impression about curry years ago were Rahjah and British Colonial officers sitting at long tables in palaces being served off huge silver platters. India comes to mind when curry is mentioned, but actually, curry is popular in Pakistan, Burma, Malaysia, Hong Kong, South Africa and even Australia.

The British, because of their long connection with India and the Far East, brought curry to the Western World. It is now enjoyed around the world.

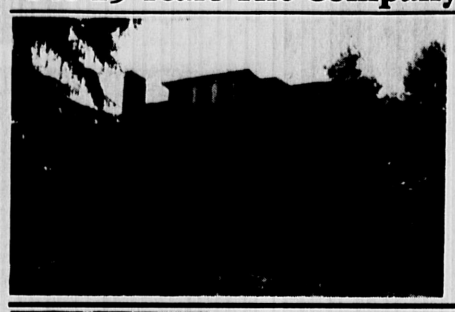

The Plaza Hotel in New York used to serve a popular curry with as many as 40 condiments.

My wife and I first enjoyed curry in Bermuda and I formed a great liking for it. There is a restaurant on St. David called "Black Horse Tavern" that serves a great mussel curry.

Accompaniment is probably a better word than condiments. Whatever you choose to call them, they come in many forms: peanuts, coconut, pickles, ginger, onion, eggs, chutneys, and everyone's favorite "Bombay Duck," really, just about anything you can think of, especially rice. The word curry does not mean a given spice, but a combination of many.

Annual picnic for Eating Together group

The annual trip for the Eating Together seniors to Salem Willows, with a box lunch, has been organized by Cay Fleming, site manager of this program operating three days a week at the Jenks Senior Center. This is an opportunity for seniors who have a need for the handicapped access van to spend a few hours away from their own neighborhoods and enjoy a picnic near the water. Special transportation is made possible by a gift from the Salter family of Salter Health Care, which provides the special senior handicapped accessible van for the Wednesday and Friday Eating Together program and for such occasions as this when a trip away is appreciated by Eating Together group.

Trips to Isle of Shoals is Aug. 16 and 17

The Winchester Seniors Association's Recreation Committee, under Bud Knopf's planning skills, is conducting two one-day trips to Portsmouth and the Isle of Shoals on Aug. 16 and 71 respectively. Included in these outings are a luncheon and an opportunity to enjoy a trip on the ocean. The trips are fully subscribed.

Keep Well Clinic scheduled for Aug. 19

The Keep Well Clinic at the Jenks Senior Center will be held Thursday, Aug. 19, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. due to the resurfacing of the floor in the Jenks Room at that time, the Keep Well Clinic will be located in the lower lobby for this month only. There is an elevator available for the use of seniors attending the clinic. If you have not yet signed up for this month's session. call the desk receptionist and register, 721-7136.

Sign up now for Italian Festival in Boothbay Harbor in October

The WSA Recreation Committee is sponsoring a three-day trip to Boothbay Harbor, Maine on Oct. 27-29. All reservations for this trip, which features an Italian Festival, must be made by Aug. 29.

On the first day of this very special trip, you will motor north through New England with a mid-afternoon arrival at the deluxe Boothbay Harbor Inn. You will enjoy a traditional Italian welcome reception complete with Italian wine and cheese. Explore Boothbay Harbor before dinner at Christiana's, the waterfront dining room of the hotel. The menu features a wide variety of seafood and popular New England specialties. After dinner, enjoy an evening of music and dancing with Lefty McAuslin and his jazz trio.

On the morning of the second day you will visit Ocean Point, one of the most photographed areas along the rocky coast of Maine and follow this with a two-hour narrated boat cruise of the beautiful waters in and around Boothbay Harbor. After the cruise, on which you will see some of the wildlife that lives along the coast, such as harbor seals, ospreys and cormorants, you will enjoy a real Downeast Clambake at the Boothbay Harbor Inn. This will include clam chowder, steamed clams and mussels, two Maine lobsters (steak or chicken is available for those who do not want lobster), corn on the cob, and all the fixin's. In the evening you will enjoy an authentic Italian feast, followed by the music of the Tony Boffa Band featuring Joe Haller of Boston.

Day three sees a return home by way of Freeport and an opportunity to enjoy many outlet stores, including L.L. Bean. You will stop in Kennebunkport for lunch and shopping, and will drive on Ocean Drive for a viewing of former President George Bush's summer home. Rates are $249 per person/double occupancy, $349 single and $249 per person, triple. For further information and/or reservations, contact Pauline Lombardi who is in charge of arrangement for the trip.

Clarence Borggaard, Winchester's gentleman farmer, displays samples of his summer crop of zucchini which he generously donates to seniors at the Jenks Senior Center.

LIBRARY LINES

"R.O.A.R." Corp member Emily Barrett reads to children near the Converse Bridge as part of the Winchester Public Library's "R.O.A.R." (Reach Out And Read) project, sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank.

(We have a guest contributor this week. This report on the R.O.A.R. Corps was prepared by Marialice Curran, the R.O.A.R. coordinator.)

"R.O.A.R." roars on

The "R O.A.R. Corps" readers have been quite busy. They continued to read at the Kidstock Youth Theatre, Ginn Field, Brigham's, Wedge Pond, the Winchester Recreation Department, the dental office of Dr. Arthur Daniels, Winchester Hospital, Bookends, and our sponsor, the Winchester Co-operative Bank. The "R.O.A.R. Corps" will also be reading at the Winchester Co-operative Bank and Bookends on Saturday, Aug. 21, between the hours of 10 a.m. noon.

Parents and children can find the R.O.A.R. Corps all around Winchester. They are at Ginn Field and other parks on Monday through Thursday between 9 and 11 a.m. and between 2 and 4 p.m. They are at Purity Supreme on Thursdays at 10:15 a.m., at Brigham's on Monday and Wednesday between 2 and 4 p.m., and at Wedge Pond on Tuesday and Thursday between 2 and 4 p.m. On rainy days, they read at the library. Call the Children's Room at 721-7140 to find out their daily schedule.

R.O.A.R. Corps member Adam Storeygard thinks the R.O.A.R. program is great. "Kids don't normally go to the library during the summer, so we bring the library to them." When asked what his favorite place to "R.O.A.R." is, Adam replied, "Purity (Supreme), because for us, it's air conditioned, and for the parents, it lets them shop without little hands tugging on them to buy this cereal or that one."

R.O.A.R. Corps member Tim Schindler recently wrote a song for the R.O.A.R. Corps:

We're the R.O.A.R. Corps
Comin' at you from all sides.
Come on, let's sing it.
Reach out and read, Reach out and read.
This R.O.A.R. Corps reaches out to kids to make them read.
We're the R.O.A.R. Corps
Comin' at you with a bunch, a bunch of books.
Come on, let's sing it again.
Reach out and read, Reach out and read.
Come on, Come on,
When you see us, give us a R.O.A.R!
Now, let's say it, R.O.A.R!

Watch for the R.O.A.R. Corps this summer and give them a R.O.A.R!

R.O.A.R. public service announcement to appear on Channel 19

The Winchester Public Library's Project R.O.A.R., sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank, is getting some extra exposure from the new one-minute public service announcement that is appearing on Winchester Cable Channel 19. The announcement features the voice of John McDonough, who appeared at the library with his Pumpernickel Puppets in the play "The Frog Prince" on July 15. It includes views of the different kinds of outreach work that have been made possible by this project.

The public service announcement was assembled by Richard Welton and children's librarian Yvonne Coleman, with technical supervision by Don Cronin of Winchester Cable.

Camp R.O.A.R. being planned

Camp R.O.A.R., a fun sleep-over program being held at the library, will be held from Thursday, Aug. 19, 6:30 p.m., to Friday, Aug. 20, 9 a.m. Children ages 6-8 will need to be accompanied by a parent, with anyone 9 or older staying independently. Snacks will be served on Thursday night, as well as a continental breakfast the following morning. Space is limited, so sign up in the Children's Room in person or by telephone.

Congratulations to all who took part in the 1993 Summer Reading Program, "Go For Books." Please pick up your reading logs by Thursday, Aug. 19.

Whenever the Children's Room is closed, you can hear a recorded story by calling 721-7140. The stories change every week.

For information call the Children's Room at 721-7140.

Griffin Center gets ready for celebration

By Stephane Grand-Chavin
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Those who have never visited the Arthur Griffin Center for Photographic Art might not want to miss the recent exhibit of wildlife photographs on display.

Since its foundation in September 1992, the center has worked on introducing photographic art to the general public. At present the center offers a collection of wildlife photographs on display until August 29.

Between Sept. 4 and Nov. 14, big festivities will take place for Arthur Griffin and for the center. The famous New England photographer, who will be 90 years old in September, will be honored in Winchester where he's lived since 1936.

Griffin was born in Lawrence, a textile town 25 miles from Winchester, in 1903. He was a designer before he began his photographic career on the pages of the Boston Sunday Globe Magazine in 1929. He spent more than sixty years as a photo journalist, a pioneer spreading his fine landscapes around the world.

He has documented many personalities throughout the years, including Ted Williams, Orson Wells, Elisabeth Taylor, Winston Churchill, Presidents Eisenhower and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and General Patton. His work resulted in five books which will be presented for signatures in September.

Winchester residents will soon be able to view a special exhibition of Arthur Griffin's black and white and color photography which will include some early fine art featuring photographic stories of Boston's changing scene over 50 years and some photography of Boston's early sports celebrities like Ted Williams, mister Red Sox, of whom Arthur Griffin took the first color photos.

Much of this work has never been seen: "lost for fifty years," the spry Griffin said. Many special events are being planned in conjunction with Griffin's birthday and the first anniversary of the center.

A party is planned for Arthur Griffin on Sept. 11 and and a big reception for the community will be held Sept. 19. According to Damon Reed, the manager of the center, people might want to "stay tuned."

AROUND TOWN

Librarian Paula Cerrato shows a book to Aberjona Nursing Home resident Juliette Hatch, who is taking part in the Winchester Public Library's "Bingo With Books" program. The program is part of the "R.O.A.R." (Reach Out and Read) project sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank.

Members sought for Council on Aging

The Board of Selectmen is seeking two members for the Council on Aging. One term will expire March 31, 1995 and one unexpired term will expire March 31, 1996.

Duties of the council shall be to identify the total needs and resources of Winchester's elderly population; to design services in response to their needs and resources, and to educate the community and enlist its support in implementing council programs.

If interested, submit qualifications in writing, to the Board of Selectmen, Town Hall, by Aug. 13. Include a daytime telephone number and specify the term being applied for.

Auditions for 'Our Town'

The Winchester Players will hold auditions for their November production of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play "Our Town" on Tuesday, Aug. 31, and Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church, 478 Main St. (corner of Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway).

"Our Town," one of the classics of the American stage, is directed by Karen Barton and produced by Robert Hallisey and Alice Connelly. Two copies of the script are on file with the reference librarian at the Winchester Public Library.

The cast will rehearse evenings on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Performances are the first two weekends in November. For more information about auditions, or about opportunities to work backstage, call Robert Hallisey at 729-1409.

Chamber of Commerce plans flea market for fall

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce Flea Market/Craft Sale will be held Saturday, Oct. 2, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Town Hall parking lot. The rain date for the event will be Sunday, Oct. 3. Antiques, collectibles, crafts and "treasures from the attic" will be featured.

The chamber will be mailing out applications for spaces this week. Those who would like to have a space or need more information should contact the chamber office at 729-8870.

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce would like to invite all organizations and businesses to join in this annual event.

Gertrude Dobbins exhibits through August

The Coffee Shop at the Winchester Hospital is exhibiting the watercolor and calligraphic work of artist Gertrude Dobbins throughout the month of August.

Dobbins who lives in Reading, was educated in Germany where she majored in art and fashion illustration. She has studied under several well known local artists and is a member of the Society of Scribes and Illuminators of London, England.

She is also a member of the Reading Art Association and the Concord Scribes and has received many commissions, participated in many exhibits and won various awards.

Residents of the Aberjona Nursing Home are excited about taking part in the Winchester Public Library's "Bingo With Books" program. Librarian Paula Cerrato has been bringing the program to Winchester seniors. The program is part of the "R.O.A.R." (Reach Out And Read) project sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank.

Breastfeeding support group offered

La Leche League of Winchester, a support group for breast-feeding mothers, holds meetings on the third Tuesday of each month in the Michelson Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church.

Nursing mothers are welcome to attend with their babies. Pregnant women considering breastfeeding are welcome.

The Winchester meeting is open to mothers from any community. Local group leaders are available to answer questions and provide information both at the monthly meetings and by telephone.

La Leche League is an international nonprofit organization whose purpose is to offer help and mother-to-mother support to women wanting to breastfeed their babies. The local group meetings provide an opportunity for nursing mothers to meet informally and share their experiences.

A lending library of books on childbirth, breastfeeding and child care is also available to members. For more information call Nancy at 729-1163, or Sophia, at 396-7329.

Local resident films brutality of war, wins award for documentary

By Maureen Costello
Harte-Hanks Staff

The doctor recounted one month he spent in an Azerbaijan prison camp as Eva Medzorian's camcorder was rolling. Later, she stitched his story into a gothic video tapestry capturing four years of terror in Armenia.

At first, she said, he felt too humiliated to tell his tale. But she coaxed him on. "I said, 'You have not done anything,'" Medzorian said recently in her Winchester home, "and I just kept the video going."

The interview was one of several Medzorian put together in her 16-minute documentary, "Armenian Struggle for Survival," which was named a winner in the 1993 national Hometown Video Festival. The work also has graphic shots of a landscape ravaged.

While proud of her work, the 62-year-old Berkshire Drive resident said she did not set out to win any awards. She visits Armenia, the birthplace of her parents, every year. Four years ago, she was given a camcorder as a birthday present just before going. The rest she describes as serendipity.

"I happened to be in the right place at the right time," she said last week. "It was not predetermined."

Medzorian's success is more than luck. She admits she's always been a good photographer, and dabbling in oil paints helps her visualize. So when she arrived in Armenia that year, she simply filmed people she came across. Since the country was and still is resisting conflict from Azerbaijan, its neighbor to the north, the people she came across were victims of sorrow, sadness and loss.

The documentary has interviews with Armenians who cry as they tell their stories. Some comfort each other next to a building that has just been bombed. Bodies lie still amid the ruins.

At one point, the camcorder focuses on a dazed woman lying on a bed as one of her friends explains she is devastated because war shock has made it impossible for her to bear a child.

At another, the documentary shows worn out elementary school children who, with their teacher, walked nine months through the mountainous Lachin corridor from Khramort to escape Armenia.

But the real "spark" of the film, Medzorian said, was her interview with the young doctor.

The head doctor at the village of Getashen, Sarkis Hagopkeoghvian, was about to speak with reporters when Medzorian asked if she could talk with him first. He agreed because Medzorian speaks fluent Armenian and he seemed to feel comfortable with her. Speaking the language fluently, she said, was a great advantage in getting interviews for her work.

"Fortunately I had my tripod," she added, "Everything was good."

She got the story.

In 1991, Hagopkeoghvian told her, he was held captive in Azerbaijan. For the month that he was in captivity, he said, he was raped repeatedly. He was stripped naked, made to get down on his hands and knees, while an Azerbaijani guard sat atop of him, whipping him while he crawled like an animal.

"You could say the government authorized this because it was done in a government jail," said Medzorian. "That's what makes it worse.

Even more importantly, Medzorian added, "When these things go unpunished, it's going to be repeated."

Genocide and natural disaster

These stories of struggle are ongoing for a people who have been living merely to stay alive. Armenians, said Medzorian, have a 3,000-year-old culture. They are a christian people, but now the monasteries and churches have either been destroyed or are being used as stables or storage houses.

Medzorian's parents are survivors of the 1915 genocide of 1.5 million Armenians. The Ottoman Turks, who still deny they nearly wiped out a people, simply captured and killed Armenian intellectuals and leaders. The Turks marched others into a desert and left them to die.

The earthquake in 1988 destroyed one-third of the country.

Today, Medzorian estimates, there are only 7 to 8 million Armenians left in the world. "Partially because there have been so many massacres," she said.

If the present war with Azerbaijan doesn't kill the remainder, the living conditions may. Medzorian visited Armenia last March for three weeks and learned that over the last two years its people have no heating fuel in the winter. They are granted electricity for about two hours a day. During her visit, the temperatures hovered around 28 degrees. Medzorian said fortunately she brought a sleeping bag. She slept in her clothes.

An elderly woman with whom Medzorian stayed said that she shivered so much from the cold that her teeth are now damaged.

But the tragedy of the winters, Medzorian said, is that children are dying, primarily of malnutrition. The water supply is contaminated. Refrigeration is not available. She spoke of a 38-year-old father who aged five years watching his children suffer.

Medzorian plans to go back in the dead of winter 1994 to experience the situation first hand and capture the struggle once again with her camera.

These Armenian children, photographed by Winchester resident Eva Medzorian, trekked nine months with their teacher and classmates through the mountainous Lachin corridor from Khramort to escape Armenia for safety. Their story is told in "Armenian Struggle for Survival," an award-winning documentary produced and edited by Medzorian.

Winning piece

"Armenian Struggle for Survival" was well received by the judges in the contest. "I am extremely moved," stated one judge. "I commend you on this project and hope you do more. Thanks!" (Medzorian said the judges' only criticism of her video was that the audio was less than perfect, a weakness she had already acknowledged.)

The video includes maps of the areas documented and brief histories. Zhirayr Agavelyan, an award-winning filmmaker from Armenia, is the director. Bentley College Chancellor Dr. Gregory H. Adamian introduces the documentary, and popular Armenian composer Arthur Meschian's "Catharsis" plays in the background.

The Hometown Video Contest is in its 16th year and is a project of the Alliance for Community Media. The Winchester cable station has shown the video. Medzorian said she believes a teacher requested a copy for a social studies class. Medzorian said she did not make it to the July 22 award ceremony at the Georgia Tech Theatre of the Arts, but that winning a prize for capturing heart-breaking stories holds a special appeal for her.

Unlike being awarded for a personal victory, such as winning a road race, Medzorian said she has a "better feeling" about winning. "It's a more valuable award," she said. "It shows the people approved of what I did. It's the most important thing I've ever done. It's the most important award I've ever gotten."

Medzorian will make copies of "Armenian Struggle for Survival" at cost, which is $20. Call 617-729-6457 for information.

Winchester sales associate chairs Jane Doe auction

The Women's Council of Realtors held a silent auction at The Science Museum recently to benefit the Jane Doe Fund for Battered Women.

The group of 125 people attending enjoyed the Boston skyline while bidding on the 30 items which were donated from local businesses. They then attended the spectacular Grand Canyon film in the Omni Theatre.

The Silent Auction raised more than $5,000 for the Jane Doe Fund for Battered Women.

O'Toole attends international convention

Joe O'Toole, owner of Padgett Business Services in Winchester, recently returned from Padgett's Annual International Convention in San Francisco. Sponsored by Padgett Corporate Headquarters, these meetings drew Padgett delegates from all over North America.

Topics of discussion and study at this year's gathering included marketing techniques and Padgett's new public relations campaign. "These meetings gave me knowledge and tools that I can now use to better serve my clients," commented O'Toole.

A financial reporting and tax service especially designed to serve the independent business owner, Padgett Business Services has been in operation for more than 25 years. The local Padgett office is part of a network of more than 200 independently owned and operated Padgett offices throughout Canada and the United States.

For more information about Padgett or to ask about their scholarship program for children of local business owners, call Joe O'Toole at 729-1323.

WINCHESTER KERNELS

Colonel William P. Winchester

August feasts

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Beginning about 1900, a growing Italo-American community began adding another dimension to the predominantly Yankee character of Winchester.

One of the earliest immigrants from Italy — Carmino Frongillo — was instrumental in helping apprehensive families from the old country feel at home as they arrived in Winchester to make a new beginning.

Many customs of our new citizens began infusing a fresh vigor into the community life in town — the most visible being the annual Feast of the Assumption.

Although it was held at many sites over the years, The Observer best remembers those held along Shore Road at the edge of Black Ball Pond in the late 1940s.

In those days Shore Road connected with Nelson Street just below Spruce Street and much of the land in the area including the present site of the (Griffin Center for Photographic Art) had served as the town dump — until it was filled and graded for a football field in the late 1930s.

By 1947, The Society of The Assumption of The Blessed Virgin Mary had moved its annual celebration to Shore Road Field. In August, as The Feast of The Assumption grew closer, Winchester youth checked out the field on a daily basis in anticipation of the arrival of the annual fair.

At that time the railway tracks were still at ground level and many of the amusement rides and games of chance backed up to the tracks on the west side of Shore Road.

The classic merry-go-round was always sited on the east side of the road beside the pond.

The Observer can still remember the ancient Wurlitzer band organ (which operated like a player piano) sitting in the center of the merry-go-round belting out a snappy version of "Ben Hur's Chariot Race" as the gaily painted wooden horses whirled past the edge of the pond.

The unique aroma of popcorn, taffy apples, sausages, cotton candy — and even the hot grease lubricating the old LeRoi gas engines that powered the rides was unforgettable.

The religious aspect of the celebration was underscored each time youthful eyes looked up in awe to the beautiful face of The Blessed Mother — who seemed to gaze gently down on the crowd with serene approval.

If memory serves, fireworks were set off on the swampy land across Black Ball Pond and those who stayed for the show had to brave huge tribes of mosquitoes that earlier had claimed the soggy land as their own — and most everyone went home with sodden shoes from standing too long on the swampy ground.

During the celebration, most every house in The Plains was wide open to family and friends as companionship and good food became the order of the day.

Winchester in 1993 is greatly diminished by the virtual disappearance of this honored tradition.

"SOMEHOW NOT HAVING ENOUGH RAIN FOR THE LAWN DOESN'T SEEM LIKE SUCH A BIG PROBLEM ANYMORE...."

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 20 — Report No. 28
August 6, 1993

THE HOUSE AND SENATE — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on four roll calls and local representatives' votes on two roll calls from sessions just prior to the summer recess.

CORRECTIONAL PROGRAMS (H 5300) — House 133-18, Senate 31-2, overrode Gov. Weld's veto and restored $5.3 million in funding for county correctional programs. Weld's veto reduced funding from $187.8 million to $182.5 million.

Override supporters said local sheriffs must have sufficient money to operate and perform their duties.

Override opponents said this account, even with the veto reduction, has been increased by $4 million over last year. They argued the State cannot afford the $5.3 million.

A Yes vote is for the $5.3 million. A No vote is against the $5.3 million.

Rep. Paul Casey voted yes.
Sen. Charles Shannon voted yes.

HALFWAY HOUSES (H 5300) — House 120-27, Senate 28-6, overrode Gov. Weld's veto and restored $1.42 million in funding for halfway houses for inmates. Weld's veto reduced funding from $2.3 million to $880,000.

Override supporters argued the funding is necessary to support these halfway houses, which prepare prisoners for eventual release and reduce the number of repeat offenders.

Override opponents said the veto does not eliminate any halfway houses. They argued the $1.42 million could be saved by allowing the State to operate the program at an annual cost of $13,000 per bed rather than a private sector contract operating the program at $23,000 per bed.

A Yes vote is for the $1.42 million. A No vote is against the $1.42 million.

Casey voted yes.

Shannon voted yes.

SCHOOL OF EXCELLENCE (S 1705) — Senate 17-16, rejected a supplemental budget amendment increasing additional funding from $150,000 to $500,000 for the School of Excellence at Worcester Polytech. The school already received $250,000 in the main fiscal 1994 state budget.

Amendment supporters said additional funding is necessary to operate this academy for math and science, which is an important and innovative public-private partnership. They noted the school includes students from 33 communities and also takes in public school teachers for professional development.

Amendment opponents said the state cannot afford to give excessive funding to a small elitist school which caters to a tiny number of gifted students. They argued it is unfair to provide some $10,000 per student for this academy while some communities are struggling to provide $5,500 per student.

A Yes vote is for the $350,000 increase. A No vote is against it.

Shannon voted yes.

CHILD SUPPORT (S 1705) — Senate 23-10, rejected a supplemental budget

Keep those cards and letters coming, kids

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

Many a moist summer moon ago, when you yourself went to camp, you pined for letters from home, especially those that were packed with dirt: who was moving away; who was hit by lightning; who danced close and when (this back before all close-dancing looked like holds in Senior Lifesaving.)

After a certain age, of course, some of the letters were even from actual boys, and in the ones you exchanged with them, you recorded the most obvious sentiments of affection; and squeezed, or pretended to squeeze, real tears out onto the page.

As I wrote letters home, I recall pangs of longing lasting up to ten minutes; the triumphs and defeats of the playing field; homesickness; exuberance — in short a real pinwheel of emotions.

Which, these many years later, I see again — this time in the letters of a new generation.

Each summer we have sent our kids, for just two weeks, to a humane and enlightened camp in the hope that they will become acquainted with the healthy rigors of field hockey, say, or squash.

Of course they wrote letters home over all these years. And their letters too reveal evidence of similar pinwheels of emotions:

"Dear Loved Ones," one begins rather formally. "I take better care of myself at camp. I put night cream on my face and cleansing lotion too. I floss and powder and mouthwash..." (at least she's using the $80 worth of health and beauty products she made us get her, we sigh.) "I have pottery and swimming and drama."

Always they issue contradictory bulletins that lead you to believe that either you have sent them to full-dress harp-and-halo Heaven or you should drop everything, drive up to the place and get them. Now.

"I love camp because of all the emotions," one states as a kind of topic sentence for the rest.

"I'm sick: my throat is red, I can't breathe and my ears are ringing." "I'm making many things in pottery." "Michael looks lost." "I've only had one nosebleed and it just lasted 10 minutes." "We had Vespers last night, which I love because it's like funny church." "It rained this whole week." "There are puddles the size of the lake." "Michael says the food here is better than at home." "In pottery I'm making something that looks like this (indecipherable drawing) and says 'Beauty is Love and Love is Beautiful.'" "Michael, it turns out, is having a great time." "In plastics I sanded my fingernail off by accident." "My counselors are trying to kill me." "The sky is clear for the first time in a week." And "All my clothes smell."

Now all this time, which is to say over the span of years these letters cover, I would be sending care packages and stamps and funny postcards to my kids at camp, along with letters containing such PG-rated bits of news that I was privy to as your typical out-of-it parent.

All this time, meanwhile, their Dad never wrote a word. One year the kids pointed this out to him. "Don't hold your breath" I told them. "25 years I've known the guy and he's never written me so much as a postcard."

But he did write one. And since it is a perfect parody of the kind of letters they've been writing all these years, as well as being a pretty fair picture of anybody's life with children, I will close with it here.

"Dear Kids," it begins.

"The food here stinks. Please send money. Everything is boring. Mum and I sit around reading, watching TV, and taking naps. I can't wait for you to come home so I can (1) answer the phone all night, (2) give you rides everywhere, (3) be asked for more money.

"Mom is slowly killing the lizard, frog, fish, cats etc. Carrie, downtown is filled with boys sitting on benches, smoking and crying.

"There is a miracle in the kitchen: for a whole week no one has eaten the six quarts of ice cream! I know that you are all taking hiking and softball. (Annie, I said NO POTTERY THIS YEAR!)

"Well, I have interrupted my nap long enough. See you Saturday. Maybe. Your obedient servant, Dad (Love love love. Kiss kiss kiss. I miss you I miss you I miss you.)"

Casey hails new housing program

By Rep. Paul Casey
GUEST COLUMNIST

GUEST COLUMNIST

State Representative Paul C. Casey of Winchester reported recently on the success of the Treasury Department's "Middle Class American Dream Program." The program is run in conjunction with the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. (Freddie Mac). It is nationally recognized, and extends home ownership to many Massachusetts residents who may not otherwise qualify for a conventional mortgage loan.

The program makes it easier for families to afford a home by reducing down payments and expanding loan criteria. For example, the typical down payment requirement of 10 to 20 percent of the price is lowered to only five percent for families eligible for the program. Less total family income is required for a mortgage, and families are allowed to count 33 percent of income toward a home purchase, as opposed to only 28 percent.

Through Phase I and Phase II thus far, more than 1,800 families in Massachusetts have purchased homes through the program. The Commonwealth's American Dream program is considered a model for other states that can be replicated to expand affordable housing.

"It is fantastic that, through sound fiscal management and co-operation with Freddie Mac, so many Massachusetts families have been able to realize the middle-class American dream and purchase their own home," said Casey, "The program has been such a huge success that Phase III is being planned and is set to be implemented at the completion of Phase II."

Phase II of the program is financed by an investment of the Massachusetts State Teachers and Employees Retirement System (MASTERS). Following mortgage loans to qualified families by participating leaders across the state, Freddie Mac buys and pools the loans into securities. MASTERS then invests in these AAA-rated securities. The program is part of the state's Economically Targeted Investment Program (ETI), which finds creative ways to invest money back into the Commonwealth.

More information regarding the program and the 30 Freddie Mac-approved Massachusetts lenders can be obtained by contacting Casey's office or the State Treasurer's office.

"The Middle-Class American Dream program is a model in government co-operation which results in improved service to citizens at a greater value. Literally hundreds of families are able to get mortgages to purchase homes, provided by a sound MASTERS trust investment in high rate securities. The Commonwealth wins on all counts," concluded Casey.

ON THE RECORD

The Conservation Commission heard a report at its Aug. 9 meeting of a Winchester resident who is tentatively hoping to cut down some trees near her property that are on conservation land. The woman said she feels, according to administrator Elaine Vreeland, her house has been robbed several times because trees around her property make her house very secluded. Judging from the commission's reaction, her proposal won't get too far.

If you live near a designated wetland area and start to notice plants you have never seen before sprouting up in your backyard, there's a couple of things you might not want to do: don't tell anyone at the Conservation Commission and don't stop mowing your lawn. In a discussion with the public about just exactly what constitutes a wetland on Aug. 9, Elaine Vreeland told the story of one Winchester resident who left his lawn too long before mowing it and ended up with considerable wetland vegetation. And that, in short, meant he couldn't mow it anymore. For the record, a wetland area is one with more than 50 percent wetland vegetation. For more information, call the Conservation Commission at 721-7152.

The 1993 summer edition of the Mystic Watershed News has recently become available. Articles in the edition cover issues concerning water testing studies, fish migration, Mystic Valley Parkway and Bridge reconstruction, Mystic Lakes Dam deficiencies, continuing sewer overflows and many other issues concerning the watershed. Thomas Raphael, director of the Mystic River Watershed Association, said that the publication may be interesting to people living in the Mystic River Watershed, which includes the Aberjona River, Horn Pond, the Mystic Lakes and all streams and brooks feeding through to the Mystic River. Anyone interested in obtaining copies of the publication should contact either editor James M. Connor at 646-0273, Thomas Raphael at 729-3215, or the Winchester and Woburn libraries.

For anyone who may not have noticed, those really are tables and chairs outside The Coffee Connection in downtown Winchester. Not only are they the only outside tables in Winchester, they seem to be the only tables one can sit at and smoke and still be officially in a public place.

amendment making major changes in child support enforcement laws. Provisions include requiring parents with an employee health insurance plan to purchase coverage for their children, allowing the state to intercept any lottery winnings over $600 of deadbeat parents who owe child support; and granting the state access to certain records, including addresses from phone and utility companies, to track down deadbeat parents. In some cases the amendment allows the revocation of a deadbeat driver's license. The amendment is very similar to the bill filed by Gov. Weld in April and supported by Senate President Bulger and House Speaker Flaherty.

Amendment supporters said the amendment will get tough with deadbeat parents and increase collections by $95 million over a three-year period. They claimed the increased collections will also help 7,000 families get off welfare rolls and save the state an additional $67 million in welfare costs.

Some amendment opponents said it is unclear what is in the amendment and argued the Senate should not rush passage of the measure. Others said the amendment goes too far and is an invasion of privacy. The House approved a supplemental budget with the identical amendment and it is now up to a House-Senate conference committee as to whether the amendment will be in the compromise version of the budget.

A Yes vote is for the amendment. A No vote is against it.

Shannon voted no.

OBITUARIES

Rev. Joseph W. Lyons dies

en taken place in the church.

"He would say 'now kiss the person next to you, but don't forget you're in church'," she said in an interview at St. Eulalia's Church, adding that he was never without his smile.

And Hamblett said he never lost his sense of humor, even at his 60th anniversary of church service when he had to be held up by two therapists in order to speak from the alter.

She related how he said, during that ceremony, "by the way, I'm not holding hands – these are my therapists, honest they are."

Rev. Francis J. McGann agreed with Hamblett that Rev. Lyons would want to be remembered most for his ecumenical work throughout his career.

"It was a consuming interest for him," Rev. McGann said.

"Fr. Lyons brought with him a compassion and a concern for not only the soul, but also the mind and the heart and the human condition of his parishioners and of his fellow man," noted his fellow parishioners in recognizing his contribution to the church during the celebration of St. Eulalia's 25th anniversary.

Interviewed by the Star in April 1991, Rev. Lyons said his idea when he started at St. Eulalia's was to invite the parishioners to contribute in ways in which they were suited. He began to encourage small changes. Masses were no longer offered in Latin, St. Eulalia's began to offer folk masses as well as traditional "quiet" masses and choir accompaniment.

One of the more significant steps taken by the church under Rev. Lyons was the creation of the Interfaith Council through which officials from all religions in town met — and continue to meet — to share ideas and work on projects.

Rev. Lyons was recognized for reaching out to people of other faiths, while working as a community leader on freedom and peace movements, the Mystic Valley Menal Health Association and with senior citizens.

He began his 60 years of ministry at St. Anne's in Somerville. During World War II, Rev. Lyons was a lieutenant commander with the 63rd Naval Construction Battalion Seabees, serving as a U.S. Navy chaplain in Florida, the South Pacific Theater and Coranado, Calif. He later served at St. Joseph's Church in the West End of Boston and, from 1947 to 1957, at St. Elizabeth's Church in Milton.

From 1957 to 1966, the Rev. Lyons was chaplain of the Seaport of Boston. He served as pastor of St. Vincent's Church in South Boston from 1962 to 1966, before becoming first pastor of St. Eulalia's Church in Winchester.

Upon retiring at age 70, he continued his ministry as pastor from 1976 to 1989 of the Christ the King Parish in Andalusia, Ala. From 1989 to 1992, he was resident priest at St. Ignatius's Church in Mobile. While in Alabama, he put thousands of miles on his car each year lecturing on ecumenism in southern Alabama.

At age 79, he located cousins missing from his family tree in County Clare, Ireland. The Rev. Lyons was an avid reader who enjoyed NASA's Huntsville, Ala. facility.

The Rev. Lyons is known for his decades of ecumenical work.

He leaves his brother, Frederick F. Lyons of Milton; his nephew, Joseph W. Lyons of Braintree; his niece, Janice Staruch of Enfield, Conn.; three grandnieces; and several cousins.

A funeral Mass was concelebrated Wednesday, Aug. 11, in St. Eulalia's Church, Winchester.

A private burial was held.

HEALTH NOTES

T'ai chi classes at Winchester Hospital

Martial arts instructor Tom Adams will teach a five-week course on T'ai chi at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center in Wilmington beginning Sept. 20.

The Chinese word chi means "life energy," and T'ai chi helps its students tap into that energy through what has been called "meditation in motion." The martial art form is 1,500 years old and originated in China.

"T'ai chi emphasizes control, graceful movement, focused breathing, coordination," explains Adams. "It takes a great deal of mental focus."

"As a result, it is most popular with adults and seniors because it's slower and requires more concentration," he adds.

Adams says that T'ai chi can yield many physical benefits but that "it's much more cerebral. You're challenged mentally all the time — it's a great way to relieve stress."

Frieda Palazzo agrees. This 62-year-old from Revere has been one of Adams' T'ai Chi students for the past seven months.

"I am under a lot of stress," she says. "I began looking for things to do to alleviate it; I got into meditation about four years ago."

"Then I heard about T'ai chi," she continues. "I heard that it really helps your body and mind, and it does. It really teaches you about balancing things in your life.

"It requires slow movement, so it's something anyone at any age can do," Palazzo adds. "It's a great prevention for arthritis because it touches on all parts of the body — older citizens don't know what they're missing."

When asked about the uniqueness of a community hospital offering a 1,500-year-old Chinese martial arts class as part of its health education program, Adams comments, "It's noteworthy that a medical institution is offering this program. It's an acknowledgment of the benefits of the martial arts which follow an eastern philosophy of treating the mind and body as one. People are becoming more aware of the benefits of this approach."

For each person who undertakes T'ai chi, the benefits are different, Adams explains. But everyone who participates in the program will benefit, he believes.

"For each individual, it's different. There can be physical benefits in improving lung capacity through correct breathing, better circulation, loosening joints to help with arthritis or bursitis, strengthening the back, legs or shoulders," says Adams.

Students also find they're better able to balance themselves mentally and physically and deal with the stresses of life," he notes. "They find they can focus their concentration on achieving goals in their life whether it's working more effectively, improving their relationships or even committing themselves to a hobby.

"T'ai chi is not something to master in a month, but you can benefit from it in a month," he adds. "And practicing just twice a week you will see benefits." He adds, "T'ai chi teaches you discipline, focus and determination. What I put into it, I get back tenfold."

For more information about the T'ai chi program at Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center, call 756-2220.

Aerobic exercises at Winchester Hospital

The Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center offers a variety of aerobic classes to fit every individual's needs. Classes range from regular low impact and low impact aerobics for adults 50 years of age and older to step aerobics.

One hour low-impact/fitness after 50 classes are held Tuesdays and Thursdays and 10 to 11 a.m. Step aerobics will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 to 7 p.m.

For more information call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2220.

Winchester hospital offers child CPR course

Winchester Hospital offers an infant and child CPR course in a two-part class from 6 to 10 p.m. on Aug. 19 and 26 at the Woburn YMCA.

Upon successful completion of the program, participants will receive a one-year certificate from the American Heart Association.

For price information and to register, call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2220.

Breastfeeding workshop at Winchester Hospital

Winchester Hospital offers a workshop which provides accurate information on the subject of breastfeeding or bottle feeding for parents.

The workshop provides a variety of information such as the pros and cons of breastfeeding, self-help measures to prevent complications, routines for bottle and breastfeeding and helpful hints to mothers who work outside of the home.

For dates and price information, call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2220.

Reading Health Center now open

The Reading Health Center, a new medical office condominium project developed by Winchester Hospital, is scheduled to open in the next several weeks. Currently, suites have been leased or purchased by occupants who practice internal medicine, obstetrics and gynecology and physical therapy.

The center offers an on-site diagnostic center with laboratory and general radiography services and access and convenience for prospective patients and support services for occupants of the center.

Space is available for sale or lease. For information, contact Mark Stephens at 933-3855.

'Pregnancy and You' class at Winchester Hospital

For women who are three to five months pregnant and their partners, Winchester Hospital offers a free "Pregnancy And You" class.

The class helps participants develop a healthy lifestyle and discusses eating for two, ways to reduce exposure to potentially harmful substances plus information on posture and body mechanics. Topics will also include growth and development of the fetus and relaxation techniques.

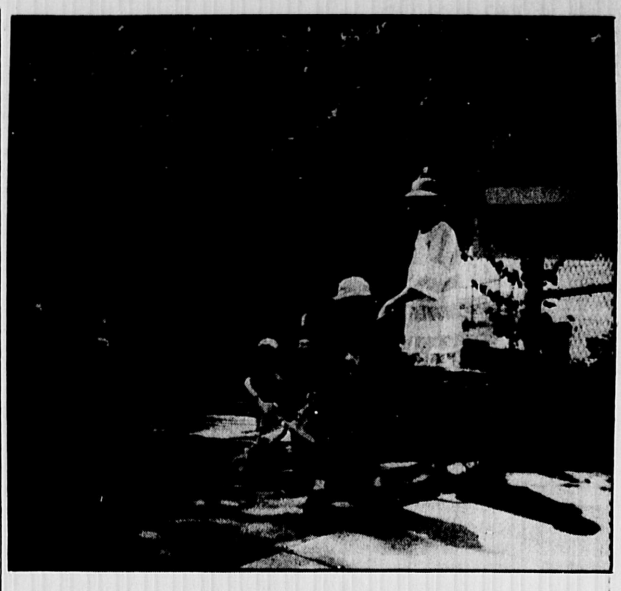

For dates of classes, call Winchester Hospital at 756-2220.

Lifesaver course now offered at Winchester Hospital

Winchester Hospital teaches lifesaving techniques through cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and the Heimlich maneuver, a technique used to dislodge foreign material from the breathing passages.

This CPR course will be offered in two-part classes from 6 to 10 p.m. on Aug. 17 and 24 at Winchester Hospital.

Businesses and organizations may call the hospital's Education Department to schedule classes for members or employees. For price information, call Winchester Hospital at 756-2220.

Helen Tuohy pushes 1-year-old Rachel Wu and Julian McCarthy to Wedge Pond Beach but finds it closed to swimming on one of three days. The beach is now reopened.

Field agreement

"There's no question in my mind this land was a wetland years ago," he said, but added that now it isn't, according to state standards, particularly since the water levels are below what they once were..

Winchester resident Robert Dewald said, regardless of the level of water in the well field, Horn Pond Brook is still about four or five feet below its normal water level.

"If you're looking for water in the water table now, you're not going to find it anyway," he said.

Conservation Commission administrator Elaine Vreeland reminded the commission, they had to consider a Winchester wetlands by-law more strict than the state laws. Vreeland said she had the town by-law in mind when she looked at the area in the spring.

She said she noticed, in the areas plotted by Hewitson's study, considerable evidence of jewel weeds, buttressed tree roots and a high water level, all factors in determining the area as wetlands as far as the town by-law was concerned.

Long tried to counter Vreeland's determination. He said he wasn't sure about the jewel weeds, but the water level is seasonal and shouldn't determine whether an area is wetland if the level doesn't last long.

"The buttressed roots may be historic," he added.

After discussion, however, the commission members decided to approve Hewitson's plan since it was in line with the town's wetland by-laws.

Town manager W. Chadwick Maurer said the second study, if the commission had decided to agree with it, would have allowed the town to begin constructing the sports field immediately because it determines the proposed field is nowhere near 100 feet of any wetlands.

The decision to develop the well field land into a sports field was made during the Spring Town Meeting. The plan calls for the extension of the current Lynch Field 60,000 square feet into the well field area.

principal certification from Wheelock College in 1991.

For the past two years, Burkholder has been a principal at Salisbury Elementary School in Vermont. He has also been a director of middle school, a teacher, a teacher trainer and director of summer camp at Shady Hill School in Cambridge, MA. He started his career in 1978 at Beacon School in Boston, where he was a guidance counselor for a year for students with severe learning disabilities and behavior problems.

Rosalie Tashjian, who was also interviewed Aug 4., has received a B.A. from the University of Massachusetts, teacher and principal certification for students K-8, and is currently working on an M.A. in education at Boston College.

For the last five years, Tashjian has been the lower school head at Brimmer and May School. She has also been a writer for education programs, had seventeen years teaching experience, fourteen years experience as a curriculum coordinator, and had recognition as one of eight coaches/consultants for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Education, Coalition of Essential Schools Network.

During the interviews, each committee member usually asked the same question of each of the candidates and then a follow up question if it was necessary. All of the candidates had been informed of the importance of open classroom education at Muraco School and spoke directly to that issue.

Dr. Guido Sabelli, principal at Vinson-Owen School, asked each of the candidates, for instance, how they would prepare students for the 21st century. Another question for the candidates, posed by Joanne Dolan, a special education teacher, was what they thought about the role of art, physical education or music in education.

Other members of the committee included parents Kristi Lacey, Martha Tucker, Roseann Gallery and Debbie O'Brien, teachers Laurie Kirby and Connie Maney.

Fitzgerald said he expected to be able to make a decision by Friday, Aug. 13.

Safer substitutes for household hazards

- All purpose cleaner: In 1 quart warm or hot water, mix 1 teaspoon liquid soap, boric acid (borax), lemon juice and/or vinegar. Make stronger according to the job to be done.
- Glass cleaner: Mix 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice in 1 quart water. Spray on and use newspaper to wipe dry.
- Drainer cleaner: Pour boiling water down drain once a week. Use a plunger or snake.
- Oven cleaner: Clean spills as soon as the oven cools using steel wool and baking soda; for tough stains, add salt (do not use this method in self-cleaning or continuous-clean ovens).
- Toilet bowl cleaner: Use a toilet brush and baking soda or vinegar.
- Furniture polish: Wipe with mixture of 1 teaspoon lemon oil in 1 pint mineral or vegetable oil.
- Rug deodorizer: Deodorize dry carpets by sprinkling liberally with baking soda. Wait at least 15 minutes and vacuum. Repeat if necessary.
- Rug shampoo: Vacuum first to remove dirt. Mix 1 quart white vinegar and 3 quarts boiling water. Being careful not to saturate rug backing, apply to nap of rug with wet rag. Dry thouroughly. Then vaccum.
- Plant sprays: Wipe leaves with mild soap and water; rinse.
- Roach & ant repellant: Sprinkle powdered boric acid in cabinet edges, around baseboards, and in cracks.
- Mothballs: Use cedar chips, lavender flowers, rosemary, mint or white peppercorns.
- Flea & tick removers: Mix brewer's yeast or garlic in your pet's food; sprinkle fennel, rue, rosemary, or eucalyptus seeds of leaves around animal sleeping areas.

Softball playoff battles begin

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

As anticipated, the playoff pairings in the Winchester Men's Softball League were not finalized until the last regular-season game was played at Ginn Field Monday night.

MEN'S SOFTBALL

Although it was already known which six teams in each league would qualify for the postseason, the first-round byes were still up for grabs until the last minutes.

In the A League, Wilde Insurance captured the regular-season crown with a 17-3 record. Noble Construction won its final three games, including a pivotal contest over Carroll Insurance Agency, to earn the second bye and finish at 16-6. The CIA (15-7) plays the Pirates (11-10) in the opening-round best-of-3 series, which began Tuesday night.

In the other quarterfinal series, fourth-place Dattilo Landscaping (15-7) takes on league newcomer Sorrenti Club, which played strong ball down the stretch to finish at 13-9.

In the B League, John's Sewer and Pipe clinched the regular-season title by defeating Commander Construction 6-5 in Monday's final regular-season contest. Mike MacIntosh belted a two-run triple to left and scored on Bob Carley's sacrifice fly as the Pipe opened up a 6-0 lead and held on for the win.

John's finished in a tie with Casey's Roughriders (17-5), but won both games when the two teams played head-to-head this season.

In the quarterfinals, third-place Kingsmen Landscaping (14-8) will take on The Bench. Kingsmen defeated Neno's Monday night to edge Patriot Trucking (also 14-8) for the third spot. Patriot will challenge Highland Cafe in the other quarterfinal round.

Playoff games are played Monday through Thursday at Ginn Field, with games beginning at 6:30, 7:45 and 9 p.m.

Locals shine at league all-star day festivities

The Middle-Essex Softball League held its annual All-Star Day at Ginn Field last Saturday, with five Winchester players selected to play in two games.

In the junior (13-15-year-olds) game, Bonnie Benson joined Lindsay and Lesley Santini in representing the Sachems, while in the senior (16-18) contest, Jannine Allen and Cindy Mouzakis made the squad.

Mouzakis and Allen were key contributors in the Blue team's 10-8 win over the Red in the senior battle.

Winchester gets great pitching, no hitting in Babe Ruth playoffs

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

They say good pitching will usually win out over good hitting. Unfortunately for the Winchester Summer Sachems, the old adage held true once again.

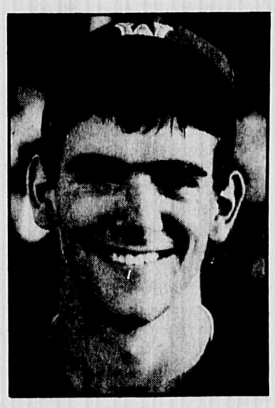

The local Nine lost a pair of one-run ball games and was ousted from the Middlesex East Babe Ruth League double-elimination playoffs in two straight games. Despite outstanding performances on the mound from Ed Russo and Angelo Amico, Winchester's offense sputtered in the two games. The team not only failed to pick up big hits, but was also unable to execute in several key situations.

Over two games, Winchester could muster just one run on 10 hits, falling short to Medford and Steve Matteo 2-1 on Sunday, and to Lexington and Jay Weber 1-0 on Monday.

"It's a tough way to go out," said Winchester manager Kevin Teahan. "It speaks for itself. We played two games and got one run. We didn't execute."

After falling to Medford at Manchester Field Sunday, the Sachems had a losers bracket date with the Blue Sox of Lexington at Burlington's Simonds Field. Winchester looked like it might blow Weber out of the water in the first inning, as Russo and Amico lined consecutive singles to center to open the game. Josh Carroll's deep fly ball moved the runners to second and third, but Weber got the first of what would be several defensive gems to escape unscathed.

Scott Imperatore lofted a foul pop deep behind first base. Lexington's Paul Blume raced back, made the catch with his back to the plate, and turned and fired a missile to the plate, easily beating Russo for a 3-2 double play.

Amico, who scattered six hits while picking up four strikeouts and walking two, cruised through the first three innings, but ran into trouble in the bottom of the fourth. After allowing singles to Matt Scully and John Wells, Amico got two quick outs. But Dan Friel's innocent-looking grounder took a wild hop over second baseman Paul Wile's head, allowing Scully to score the game's only run.

Winchester, which had three runners thrown out stealing by Scully, had its best chance in the top of the sixth. Wile led with a walk, and Russo's sacrifice bunt was so good that both runners were safe. Amico, however, was unable to bunt the ball fair, and was forced to swing away. His chopper to third was the first out, and Weber got Carroll on a shallow fly to center.

> '(Amico) pitched a great game. He pitched a great game, and I mean that. He got beat because a routine ground ball took a wild hop.'
> LEXINGTON COACH RICK DeANGELIS
> ON ANGELO AMICO (LEFT)

With two outs, Imperatore stepped up and ripped the ball to center. Lexington's Tony Luongo, getting a great jump on the ball, raced in, picked the ball off the grass and fired a strike to Scully, who tagged out Russo for the game's biggest putout.

Winchester's last hope died when Nolan was thrown out stealing in the top of the seventh.

According to Lexington coach Rick DeAngelis, it was truly the type neither pitcher deserved to lose.

"(Amico) pitched a great game," said DeAngelis. "He pitched a great game, and I mean that. He got beat because a routine ground ball took a wild hop."

Teahan credited Weber and Scully with being the difference.

"I've got to give Weber his due," said Teahan. "We've had a lot of success against him in the past, but he got it done tonight. I think the biggest difference in the game, though, was Matt Scully. We've been able to run on him in the past, but tonight he was perfect."

On Sunday, Medford's Matteo led Russo and Winchester 2-0 thanks to a pair of unearned runs in the first inning. Winchester tried to come back in the bottom of the sixth inning when Amico started the rally with a single on an 0-2 curveball. After Carroll walked, Andy Nolan plated Amico with a flare double down the right-field line.

Medford chose to walk Imperatore to load the bases, and the plan worked. Dave Bornstein, pinch-hitting for Rodrigo Serrano, was unable to get his bat on the ball on a suicide squeeze attempt. Despite crashing through Matteo, Carroll couldn't jar the ball loose, as the Medford hurler hung on for the crucial second out.

Matteo worked out of a two-on jam in the seventh to earn the complete-game win.

Booters advance to final

DeStefano stars in tourney win

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

Coaches of various sports teams can sometimes be heard uttering the phrase "the best defense is a good offense." Last week, Winchester Football Club player-coach Stephen Reeve took that phrase, twisted it around a little, and came up with a display of coaching genius.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

In a surprising move, Reeve took former Winchester High All-Scholastic forward Shaun Oliver, who had been splitting time with several outstanding front-line players, and moved him to fullback for the Suburban Twilight Soccer League playoffs. The idea, according to Reeve, was to give Winchester an exceptionally quick outside back to mark opposing forwards.

The idea appears to have worked for Winchester, the Central Division regular-season champion, which won three straight playoff games to advance to Tuesday's final against Billerica. And in each postseason game, Winchester's goals-against average has dropped.

Winchester defeated Dedham 4-2, Wakefield 2-1 and Braintree 1-0 to earn a spot in the final.

"I was confident Shaun would do the job on the back line," said Reeve. "He's a very smart player for a kid his age (18). As the tournament has gone on, the teams we've played have had faster and faster wings. Shaun not only has handled the speed, but he's played as physically as anyone on the field."

Against Wakefield on Aug. 3, Gary Martin and Vandy French scored first-half goals before Wakefield notched a late strike to halve the deficit. Strong defensive work down the stretch kept it 2-1 for Winchester. Last Thursday (Aug. 5), the locals edged a strong Braintree team 1-0 behind an early marker from Dave Romboli.

Braintree dominated the playing field late in the game, but the defensive corps of Oliver, sweeper Reeve, goalie Steve Mueller and outside back Joe Armstrong broke up several scoring chances.

DeStefano stars for Bay State Bruins

Recent WHS grad Andrea DeStefano played a key role as the Bay State Bruins, a regional all-star girls softball team, captured the double-elimination Staten Island Tournament of Champions title in Staten Island, N.Y., on Aug. 1.

DeStefano was picked for the team by coach Gary Orso after belting a homer off Orso's No. 1 pitcher at a national qualifier at Pine Banks Park in Melrose in June. The four-year Sachemette varsity player was the right fielder in the Bruins' tourney-opening loss, then was the designated hitter in the following two games.

On Sunday morning, Orso needed a catcher. DeStefano, who was the lead-off hitter throughout the tournament, stepped behind the plate and had "the game of her life," according to Orso. DeStefano threw out three runners to help the Bruins stay in a 1-1 tie with the host Staten Island team, but the home team rallied to take a 4-1 lead in the top of the seventh.

The Bruins, on the verge of being eliminated with their second tourney loss, came back. After a pair of singles, DeStefano stepped up against Staten Island's top pitcher and blasted a dramatic three-run homer to straightaway center field to tie it 4-4. The Bruins rallied for another run and a 5-4 win.

"It was the most amazing homer I've seen in a long time," said Orso. "She crushed it."

The win advanced the Bruins to the semifinals, where they defeated Staten Island again. In the final, DeStefano did it again with the bat and glove. With the Bruins up 3-0 in the top of the fourth, Worcester County mounted a threat. With two on, DeStefano raced in from left field, dived for the ball and made a spectacular shoestring catch to preserve the shutout.

Bay State rallied with a nine-run fourth to put the game, and the championship, on ice. DeStefano was 6 for 8 with a walk, three steals (including one of home) and the homer in the final three games.

"Did she have a weekend!," said Orso. "I think she had about 8,000 hits, 3,000 steals and 5,000 RBIs."

Michael Sayre was barefoot in public Saturday. But after an exhaustive 63-day, 3,300-mile cross-country journey on in-line skates, the Winchester resident could be forgiven for one minor indiscretion.

On Saturday, the 20-year-old Sayre and his fellow members of SCATE — Stop Cancer Across The Earth — ended a summer-long adventure in which they tried to raise awareness of cancer and money for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund. The team of SCATE founder Ted Leach, Hieu Nguyen, Courtney Mather and Sayre was given a send-off from the Winchester Town Common by State Representative Paul Casey, Selectman Peter Van Aken and Dr. Ashley Stevens, a Winchester resident who is Director of Technology Transfer for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The team then skated the final 12-mile leg into Boston with about a dozen close friends and relatives. At Faneuil Hall, Dana-Farber doctors, patients and administrators joined with Boston Bruin Steve Heinze in honoring the four skaters.

At the Victory for Cancer celebration, Stevens said the fight against cancer is being played on a more even playing field today — and the technology is improving quickly.

> 'There's got to be a reason why everything didn't go perfectly. Maybe that reason is that we need to do it again.'

> SCATE FOUNDER

"We're making progress, great progress," said Stevens. "Projects like these make it a lot easier."

Sayre said it will take a while for the magnitude of what the group has accomplished to sink in. But his first thoughts after completing the project centered around his friends and family.

"It was much more than I would have expected," said Sayre. "I didn't know what it would mean to me to be on that

Summer stars streak ahead

Rotary, Dugout Sports prep for tourney weekend

The Rotary Club 10-year-old All-Stars and the Dugout Sports 11-year-old All-Stars, Winchester's select summer baseball teams, added another handful of victories to their season totals last week.

BAMBINO ROUNDUP

The Rotary squad won all three of its games, sweeping a home-and-home series against Natick before beating North Cambridge. The Dugout team remained in the thick of the tournament, going 2-2 for the week with a pair of wins over Belmont and two losses to Arlington.

Winchester 3
North Cambridge 2

The Winchester Rotary 10-year-old All-Star team posted its fourth consecutive victory in Bay State League action with Saturday's 3-2 win over North Cambridge at West Side Field.

North Cambridge went ahead 1-0 with a bases-loaded walk in the third inning. The hosts responded with three runs in the bottom of the frame on Tim Armstrong's bunt single, doubles by Danny Nelson and Luke Killion and a North Cambridge error.

Cambridge rallied in the sixth and left the bases loaded when Killion came on in relief of starter Dave Sullivan, who notched his third win of the season.

Natick 0

The Rotary All-Stars traveled to Natick last Wednesday (Aug. 4) and completed a two-game sweep by trouncing the hosts 13-0.

Armstrong and Dave Sullivan led the 17-hit attack with three hits each. Rugo Santini, John Newhall, Eric Axon and Killion all chipped in with two hits apiece.

Santini pitched four shutout innings, allowing only two hits to earn his second win of the season.

Winchester ended the game with a triple play when reliever John Lynch snared a line drive, then threw to first baseman David Notartomaso, who fired the ball to second baseman Alex Walker.

Natick 0

Killion struck out 12 and tossed his second one-hitter of the season and the 10-year-old All-Stars came away with a 5-0 win over Natick on Monday, Aug. 2.

Winchester scored two runs in the first inning on Axon's walk, Killion's double and consecutive bunt singles by Newhall and Dave Sullivan.

Killion belted a two-run homer in the third and Armstrong used his speed to score the fifth Winchester run in the fourth inning.

Arlington 3
Winchester 2

The Dugout 11-year-old All-Stars came up short against Arlington on Sunday in a 3-2 loss in a game played in Wakefield.

Matt Malatesta, Paul Koslowski and Pat Sullivan had two hits apiece, with Malatesta and Koslowski belting doubles. Other hits were a double by Matt Kenney and single by Jon Corey.

Matt Spang scattered six hits over the six-inning distance for Winchester.

Down 3-2 with two outs and the tying run on second, Malatesta hit what looked like a sharp single past shortstop, but the ball hit the Winchester runner advancing to third, ending the rally and the game.

Arlington 5
Winchester 3

The Dugout 11-year-old All-Stars also lost to Arlington on Saturday in Wakefield, falling 5-3.

Winchester took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Spang doubled to put runners on second and third, followed by Malatesta's two-run triple. Defensively, Winchester committed five errors, allowing four unearned runs in the third inning when Arlington took a 4-2 lead.

Brian Sullivan went the distance for Winchester. Other hits for Dugout were supplied by Matt Kenney, Sullivan, Ernie Guarino and David Rodrigues.

Belmont 1

The Dugout All-Stars launched three home runs in a 4-1 victory over Belmont last Thursday (Aug. 5) at West Side Field. Although Winchester had only five hits — four for extra bases — they proved to be enough to secure the win.

Malatesta blasted two homers, while Rodrigues hit the other. Peter Dupuis lined a standup triple and Koslowski contributed a single.

Koslowski pitched outstanding, allowing one run on four hits over six innings.

With Winchester ahead 2-1, shortstop Brian Sullivan turned in the defensive gem of the contest, taking a throw from left fielder and firing a perfect strike to Kenney to cut down a Belmont runner and end the inning.

Winchester 8
Belmont 7

The Dugout All-Stars came out ahead 8-7 in a seesaw battle at Belmont on Aug. 3 in which the lead changed hands four times.

Belmont pitchers walked 14 batters, letting up five crucial walks in the sixth inning that allowed Winchester to come from behind to take an 8-7 lead.

Spang retired the side in the sixth, going the distance for the win. Winchester batters combined for seven singles, two by Dupuis, and one each by Spang, Koslowski, Malatesta, Billy Wolfe and Brian Sullivan.

NewPro sweeps way to top seed

The NewPro Window 12-year-old All-Stars continued their drive to a Bay State League playoff berth, sweeping Acton-Boxboro 14-0 and 7-0 over the weekend. The two victories along with Westford's sweep of Arlington has ensured Winchester the No. 1 seed for this weekend's trophy round to be played in Natick.

BAMBINO BASEBALL

Winchester also swept Westford last week, capturing 2-1 and 6-1 victories.

Sunday's victory over Acton-Boxboro was shortened to four innings because of the mercy rule. NewPro jumped all over A-B from the outset, with J.A. Koslowski hitting A-B's first pitch over the fence in left field for a 1-0 lead.

Winchester sent 14 batters to the plate in the second inning, scoring eight runs to go up 9-0. A single by Jay Higgins, a walk to Jason Lanzillo and singles by Koslowski, Tom DiCarlo and Jeff Capone preceded Jeremy Carroll's home run. Then Justin Barauskas singled, Matt McGowan walked, and Higgins, switch-hitting Colin Barden and Lanzillo all singled.

Winchester added two more in the third on singles by Capone, Carroll and McGowan to make it 11-0. NewPro picked up three in the fourth on a double by Barden, singles by Koslowski and Mike Ciaurro and a double by Carroll to pull away 14-0.

McGowan started for Winchester and went three innings. Carroll relieved in the fourth and retired A-B in order to win it by the mercy rule.

Curry blanks Acton-Boxboro

In Saturday's 7-0 blanking of Acton-Boxboro, pitcher Brian Curry went the distance and retired the side in order in the last four innings.

Winchester went up 2-0 in the bottom of the first. Koslowski singled sharply, advanced to second on a passed ball and stole third. DiCarlo walked and stole second. Koslowski scored and DiCarlo took third on Capone's groundout. DiCarlo scored on Carroll's sacrifice fly.

Winchester added two more in the second. McGowan singled up the middle, Curry singled to left and Koslowski doubled them both home to make it 4-0.

Capone singled to lead off the third before Carroll homered deep to right to push the advantage to 6-0. Koslowski's solo homer in the fourth completed the scoring.

Barauskas slide gives NewPro edge

Despite a rocky outing, pitcher McGowan held Westford to just one run in a 2-1 win last Thursday night (Aug. 5) at West Side Field.

McGowan yielded the only Westford run in the second on three walks combined with an array of passed balls and wild pitches.

Down 1-0, Winchester tied it 1-1 in the third when Barden reached on an error, moved to second on Dan Arria's groundout, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch. DiCarlo singled sharply later in the inning.

Westford then brought on the pitching ace Steve Tocci to hold Winchester for the final three innings, but Tocci was greeted by Carroll's screaming single, followed by a single by Barauskas and a walk to Higgins. Carroll was thrown out at home trying to score on a wild pitch, but two pitches later, Barauskas broke for home and slid in under the tag to put NewPro up 2-1.

Capone relieved McGowan on the mound in the fourth, allowing one hit and retiring the last six batters he faced to preserve the lead.

Carroll 3-run homer propels Winchester

Barauskas and Carroll combined to hold perennial Bay State League power Westford to one run in a 6-1 win last Tuesday night (Aug. 3). Carroll also had two hits, drove in three runs and scored twice.

Barauskas faced only nine batters in his three innings of work. Carroll continued the fine pitching, allowing the Westford run in the fifth.

NewPro took the lead for good in the second when Carroll walked, advanced to second on a passed ball, went to third on Jonathan Nakamoto's single and slid into home on a wild pitch.

With one out in the third, DiCarlo singled, Capone walked and Carroll homered deep to left field for a 4-0 Winchester lead. Winchester added two more in the fifth.

SCATE concludes 2-month skate

final leg into Boston with so many of my friends."

Strange things seemed to happen as the trip drew to a close. When the team reached Winchester behind a blaring Winchester Police escort Friday afternoon, it was met with the news that Saturday's weather was expected to be miserable. Temperatures weren't expected to rise above 65 degrees, and steady rain was predicted for throughout the morning.

When the group awoke to a brilliantly sunny, 75-degree morning in Winchester, however, its spirits were bolstered immediately.

"It's really amazing," said Leach. "Throughout this project, we never ran into bad weather. We arrived in the Midwest after the rains had subsided, and besides skating through a few showers, we were really lucky. It's as if someone was watching out for us."

Each of the members had great memories about the transcontinental crossing. To Leach, the most remarkable aspect of the trip was the emotional fatigue he experienced.

"People talked about what a physical challenge it was," said Leach, "but to me, it was much more of a mental challenge and a mental chore." He added that he hoped Sayre and Mather, in particular, would forgive him for his occasional moodiness.

"I was a real pain at times," said Leach. "There were days when we'd skate all day, get to camp at 10 or 11 at night, and have to go straight to bed and get up and do it again. It was tough sometimes."

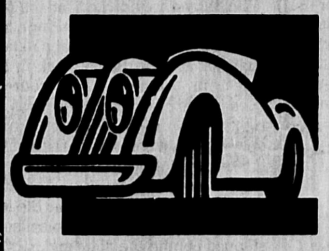

In the end, the SCATE project fell well below the fund-raising goal of $500,000. Leach, who founded the project after his grandmother died of cancer in 1992, wondered aloud if there was a message to be found in the relatively modest final tally.

"There's got to be a reason why everything didn't go perfectly," said the 24-year-old Leach. "Maybe that reason is that we need to do it again."

Aids Action seeks volunteers for Buddy Program

The Buddy Program of the AIDS Action Committee is looking for volunteers to provide emotional and practical support to clients on a one-to-one basis. Interested persons older than 24 are invited to attend an orientation to learn about the Buddy Program and how to apply.

Orientations are held monthly at 7:30 p.m., on the fourth Tuesday of each month on the fourth floor of the AIDS Action offices at 131 Clarendon St. For more information call 437-6200, Ext. 450.

Career transition

A career transition networking and support group meets every Thursday, except the second of each month, at St. Eulalia's Church, 50 Ridge St. The meetings are held 7 to 9 p.m. in the church's conference room and are open and free. For more information call 729-8220.

WHS Class of 1944 to hold reunion

Winchester High School Class of 1944 has begun plans for a 50th anniversary reunion to be held in the fall of 1994. Any member of the class, graduate or otherwise, who would like to be notified of final details but who may have reason to believe his or her current address is not on file with reunion organizers, is asked to send address information at this time to Joan Hanson Blake, 45 Pine Ridge Road, Reading, 01867.

Register now for fall at the Winchester Community Music School

The Winchester Community Music School is currently registering students for lessons and classes beginning next Sept. The school offers classical and popular music for all levels of experience and all ages, from pre-school to senior citizens.

Lessons are available in banjo, baritone, electric bass, bassoon, cello, clarinet, flute, french horn, guitar, electric keyboard, oboe, percussion, recorder, saxophone, special needs, trombone, trumpet, tuba, viola, violin, and voice.

WCMS offers classes in music and movement for ages 3-7, music theory, composition, and music appreciation. A new community education course, Guided Tour to Musical Masterpieces, is planned for fall. Small ensembles of similar or mixed instruments are also available, and WCMS maintains a list of adults interested in forming chamber music groups. For information and a 1993-94 brochure, call 721-2950.

Cooperative Theatre announces auditions for "Annie."

Winchester Senior Cooperative Theatre announces that its fall production will be "Annie" with music by Charles Strouse and lyrics by Martin Charnin. Auditions for students in grades 6, 7, and 8 will be held on Thursday, Sept. 9, and Friday, Sept. 10, at McCall Auditorium, 458 Main Street from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. There are many parts for both boys and girls and all students in grades 6, 7 and 8 are encouraged to audition. "Annie" will be performed at McCall Auditorium Nov. 19, 20 and 21. For more information call 729-0224.

Breastfeeding support group offered

La Leche League of Winchester, a support group for breast-feeding mothers, holds meetings on the third Tuesday of each month in the Michelson Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church.

Nursing mothers are welcome to attend with their babies. Pregnant women considering breastfeeding are welcome.

The Winchester meeting is open to mothers from any community. Local group leaders are available to answer questions and provide information both at the monthly meetings and by telephone.

La Leche League is an international nonprofit organization whose purpose is to offer help and mother-to-mother support to women wanting to breastfeed their babies. The local group meetings provide an opportunity for nursing mothers to meet informally and share their experiences.

A lending library of books on childbirth, breastfeeding and child care is also available to members. For more information call Nancy at 729-1163, or Sophia, at 396-7329.

Society to host annual fiesta

The Society of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary will hold its annual Fiesta on Sunday, Aug. 15. The Fiesta will be conducted at St. Mary's parish following the 5 p.m., Mass.

The highlight of this year's event will be a concert following Mass performed by the Woburn City Band and conducted by Jon Asgeirsson. Weather permitting, the concert will take place in the St. Mary's school parking lot or in the event of rain, in the school hall. The public is asked to bring chairs. Food and refreshments will be available.

The Society of the Assumption is a nonprofit independent organization founded in the early part of the century by Italian-Americans in thanksgiving to the Blessed Virgin Mary for the blessings of coming to America. For information call John Mercurio Jr. at 729-3400.

Volunteer drivers needed to fight cancer

The American Cancer Society seeks volunteer drivers for its "Road to Recovery Program."

Many cancer patients have daily radiation or chemotherapy treatments, and their friends and family cannot provide transportation. Volunteers give anywhere from one hour a month to two days a week, as their schedules allow, and ensure that patients make it to their treatments.

For more information call the American Cancer Society office at 643-3010.

Parent to Parent's first Friday forum

How do we help our children meet their responsibilities without ending up in an angry battle? What can we do when we are concerned about our child's or adolescent's friendships? What are some effective ways of dealing with sibling conflicts?

Parent to Parent's first Friday Forum is a series of brown bag lunch meetings for parents interested in discussing questions like these. The summer meetings will be from noon to 1:30 p.m. on Sept. 3. All meetings will be held in the Winchester Public Safety Building (Police Station).

This series is offered free of charge. Funding has been provided by the En Ka Society and the Parents' Associations.

Free summer fitness at The Energy Connection

Summer is the perfect time to start a healthy and fit lifestyle. With less structure and stress, anyone can begin to enjoy the benefits of exercise. This summer, The Energy Connection is helping new participants set up a realistic program of diet and exercise, and as a special summer offer, new students are invited to attend an unlimited number of classes for their first week absolutely free.

Eight "drop-in" classes are offered weekly, including Saturday mornings. Morning classes are at the Crawford Church, and evening classes are at the Jenks Senior Citizens Center. All classes are moderate enough for the beginner exerciser, and anyone can attend at anytime.

A variety of programs are available, including step Reebok, muscle conditioning, and Jacki Sorensen's Aerobic Workout. This gives everyone the chance to cross-train or pick their favorite kind of exercise.

Step Reebok classes are Mondays and Fridays at 8:45 a.m., and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. Aerobic workouts are Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m., and Saturdays at 8:30 a.m. The very popular muscle conditioning class is offered Wednesdays at 8:45 a.m. All weekday morning classes have babysitting.

For more information on The Energy Connection programs, call Marie Dacey at 729-7268.

The Arthur Griffin Center hosts wildlife exhibition

The International Wildlife Photographer of the Year Competition, organized by BBC Wildlife Magazine and The Natural History Museum, London, has selected The Arthur Griffin Center for Photographic Art, in Winchester, for its first tour in the United States. This exhibition will travel from the Houston Museum of Natural History to the National Audubon headquarters in Washington, D.C., to The Griffin Center, from June 24 through Aug. 29, and then on to the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

Wildlife Photographer of the Year, a exhibition for children and adults, boasts the best of contemporary wildlife photography. The touring exhibition, sponsored by British Gas, includes 81 award-winning photographs, chosen from more than 10,000 entries from 40 different countries, and 10 photographs from their junior division. This all-color, moving exhibition, carries the hope of all its participants that their photography will awaken the world to the need to protect the wildlife and wild places everywhere on earth.

Out of the 15 categories, the most popular was Animal Portraits, followed closely by Composition and Form, Wild Places, In Praise of Plants and Animal Behavior: Birds — each of which attracted more than 1,000 entries. Least subscribed to were Underwater World, Primates in Peril and Urban Wildlife. No prizes were awarded in this latter category, or for Humorous Views.

Hours for the exhibition are Thursday, Friday and Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m., and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Center member fee is $2, $3 for seniors, $4 for nonmembers, and children under 18 are admitted free. The center is wheelchair accessible.

Winchester class of 1953 to hold 40th reunion

The 1953 class of Winchester High is planning a class reunion, to take place Oct. 22 to 24. It is suggested that members register early. To make reservations contact Joan McNeill Bird, 8 Lawrence St., Winchester, 01890 at 729-2019.

Several members of the class are missing. If you have any information as to their whereabouts please contact McNeill. They are as follows:
Walter Barstow, Dave Burke, James Callahan Jr., Joseph Canty, Phyllis Chapman Eix, Robert "Smitty" Clark, Everett Combes, John Connolly, Diane Cooper, Charles DiSilva, Richard Drohan, George Fudge, Catherine Goss Newhouser, Anne Hammond White, Kenneth Hiscoe, Donald MacFeeley, Katherine McGoff, Jennifer Meigs Saunders, Louise Migliaccio, Mike Mitchell, Donald J. Murphy, John Notemeyer, Dorothy Pearce Bursey, Frank J. Procopio Jr., Norma Skaling, Clarence Swonger, Joyce Thomas Johnson, Dominick Tofuri, Gail Watson, Nancy Wilson Hussey, and Steve Yale.

The reunion committee looks forward to seeing all of the class members this coming October.

WINCHESTER NEWS

RECREATION NEWS

Heather Markham and Erica Templeman ham it up during Halloween Day at the Winchester Recreation's day camp.

Fall brochure out next week

The fall catalog of Recreation and Community Education courses and activities will be mailed next week to all those on the current mailing list. The list consists of those who have taken courses with the department during the past two years. If you are new to town or have not taken our courses in the past, call 721-7125 if you would like a brochure.

New program preview

Creative dance — A new creative dance program will be offered to those ages 3-½ through age 7. The classes will be taught by Patricia Collins who recently worked with the Winchester Children's Dance Choir. She studied at the Walnut Hill School for the Performing Arts, received a BA from Hampshire College and went on to complete an Equity Internship at the Whole Theatre in New Jersey. The course focuses on the interplay of education and the arts. Using ballet and modern dance techniques, it offers an integrated approach to learning. Each lesson develops thematically. The program is designed to encourage individual choice, fusing intuition and intellect and is acclaimed as excellent for academic and social development. Classes will meet on Friday afternoons. For more information call the Recreation Department at 721-7125 or see the new fall brochure.

Summer shape-up

Beat the heat and humidity this summer by "stepping up" with Focus on Fitness instructors Judy whitney and Gail LaRocca in the air conditioned studio at the Ballet arts Centre, 755 Main St., Winchester. Classes are available on Tuesday and Friday mornings, 9 to 10 a.m. and Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 7 p.m. Baby sitting is available. Classes go through Aug. 20.

Cameron Cody (l) and Sean Fullerton take a break from the Recreation Department's Summer T-Ball program.

This workout meets the athletic needs of men, women and teenagers. Bring hand weights, water and a towel/floor mat to class. Drop in fee for a single class is $4.50. To register or for more information call the Winchester Recreation Department at 721-7125 or 721-7126.

Creative Art and Movement

Another new preschool program will be taught by Winchester resident and registered movement and art therapist, Terri Halperin-Eaton. This exciting class will be a special time for parents and children, ages 2-½ to four, to experience creative expression and self-esteem through art and movement. The class will allow for creative play to enhance body awareness and joy of movement. There will be two four-week sessions which meet on Tuesdays at the library meeting room.

Little Rascals Club

Your child will love this recreational play group taught by Annette Kennedy.Activities will include music, movement, outdoor play, creative experiences and more. This new program is designed for toilet trained children who were 3 on or before June 1, 1993 through age 4. You may choose Monday, Tuesday and/or Wednesday afternoon from 12:15 to 2:45 p.m. The course runs from late September through mid-January and will be held at the Lynch Administrative Center. More complete information is available in the new Fall Recreation and Community Education brochure due out the week of Aug. 16.

Tumblin' Tots course canceled

Our very popular Tumblin' Tots program for preschoolers has been canceled for the fall because the recreation department has been unable to find suitable, available space for the classes. We regret this occurrence and will continue to search for an adequate facility.

Co-ed volleyball

Enjoy a great game of volleyball while meeting new people. Volleyball is a great game for beginners as well as the experienced players. The participants will form teams to maximize the fun. Volleyball is held Wednesdays from 7-9 p.m. at Lynch School through Aug. 18. Drop-in fee is $2 per person.

Business Directory

Where do local people turn when they need to have their favorite painting professionally framed?...or their home painted?...or have their washing machine running like new again? If those people live in the suburban Boston area, chances are, they turn to Harte-Hanks Newspapers' Business Directory. It's one of the most effective, complete, reference tools in the area. And people use it. That's why advertisers use it week after week.

It's an opportunity for smaller companies to advertise on a consistent basis, at a cost that's very attractive. And we've found that, even when the small companies grow into larger companies, they stay on the page. Promoting their services. Building their business. Generating profits.

If you're a small businessman who needs advertising exposure at a cost that's easy to manage, contact our Display Classified Advertising department at (617) 487-7225 or (508) 820-7095 for more information. Small space... big results...

ART

Lincoln — Aug. 15. The DeCordova Museum, Sandy Pond Road, presents, in conjunction with the Museum's fifth annual exhibition of regional artistic excellence "11 Artists/11 Visions," a "Meet the Artist" series. The seventh program of the series features painters Elizabeth Ives and Donald Shambroom, at 1:30 p.m. Call 259-8355 for museum hours and information.

Cambridge — through Aug. 30. Floral watercolor paintings by Phebe Bowditch are on view at The Baak Gallery, 35A Brattle St. Gallery hours are 10:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday; 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday; and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Call 354-0407.

Boston — through Aug. 27. Sherry Laura Hockstein exhibits pen and ink drawings along with paper mobiles and paper sculpture in the art gallery at Bunker Hill Community College, 250 New Rutherford Ave. For gallery hours and information call 241-8600.

Cambridge — through Aug. 24. A traveling juried show of both personal and assignment work by 15 members of ASMP, American Society of Media Photographers, is on view at Gallery 2200, One Kendall Square, Building 200, suite 2200. The theme of emotion is interpreted by the photographers, who include Susan Lapides, Lou Jones, Paula Lerner, Larry Lawfer and Charles Lemay. Curators for the exhibit were Roz Smith, Henry Horenstein, Ron Platt and Stan Trecker. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays and by appointment. Call 527-3930.

Cambridge — through Nov.14. The five monumental abstract murals that Mark Rothko painted for Harvard University are on view at the Sackler Museum of Harvard University. The murals are considered one of the most important achievements of a leading painter of the post-war New York school, but have not been exhibited since 1968 due to their fragile condition. The Museum offers special docent tours of the Rothko exhibition. The half-hour tours are at 10:30 a.m. Tuesdays. Admission to Harvard University art museums is free Saturday mornings. Call 495-9400.

Worcester — through Aug. 15. The Worcester Art Museum presents "Goya, Moralist Amid Chaos," featuring the work of master etcher and painter Francisco Goya (Spanish, 1746-1828). The exhibition is the fourth in the museum's "Master Printmakers" series. The shows explore the history of European printmaking from the 16th through the 19th centuries, highlighting the work and ideas of those artists who have changed the course of printmaking history. The 65 Goya prints exhibited are drawn from the museum's collection. For museum hours and information call (508) 799-4406.

Cambridge — through Sept. 10. Sketches, models, photographs and paintings by Otto Piene are exhibited in "Sky Art," on view at the MIT Museum's Compton Gallery, 77 Massachusetts Ave. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Closed all holidays. Call 253-4444.

Boston — through July 3, 1994. "African and Oceanic Sculpture: Treasures from a Private Collection," will be exhibited at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. The treasures shown are a promised gift to the Museum and include a 13-foot Asmat memorial pole from Papua, New Guinea, along with a monumental Yoruba veranda post from Nigeria and a miniature Hemba wooden mask from Zaire. The Oceanic objects will be installed in the C. Brown gallery and the African materials will be in the adjoining Carter gallery. Call 267-9300 for hours and information.

FAN QUILTS

Fan quilts are traditionally pieced by hand with each curved piece carefully stitched in a very time-consuming process. Now, thanks to a tool called the Fan Guide included in our new 44-page guidebook, this quilting process is faster and easier than ever before! With step-by-step instructions, diagrams, materials lists and traceable patterns, you will be guided through making a test fan block that will give you confidence to create any of these 10 quilts.

Birchwood Adult Community is a planned housing project designed for Empty Nesters 55 years of age or older. Birchwood is located in the quaint rural community of Northboro, Massachusetts. Single family one story homes are built on lots that range in size from 7,000 to 12,000 square feet. Homes with garages will vary from two bedrooms and one or two baths to three bedrooms with two baths. Homes are stick built on site with amenities such as: vaulted and cathedral ceiling; fully appliances kitchens, front porches, decks and screened porches.

Homes are priced from $113,900 to $129,900 in Phase I. In Phase II prices range from $129,900 to $149,900. There are eight different home models to choose from.

A recreation building centrally located in the Birchwood Adult Community will provide residents with a meeting place, a private library for reading, a kitchen and a large function room for all types of gatherings.

A fitness trail from the recreation center to the Assawet River will provide a private area to walk and spend quiet time at the picnic area along the river. Residents at Birchwood own their homes and have 100% easement rights to the lot that their homes are built on. There is a $50 per month Association Fee which pays for snow plowing, street lights and insurance.

DEALER • PROFILE

495 Toyota

Location: 320 East Main Street, Milford

Number of Employees: 32.

Owner: Kevin Coady.

History: The Route 495 Toyota dealership was launched over 16 years ago in downtown Milford. It has moved twice since then, each time to better quarters. 495 Toyota started with three employees. Now it employs more than 30 full-time employees.

The dealership is proud to say that all schooling is urged and the dealership pays for it.

Types of Cars Sold: Toyotas and late model used cars.

Hottest Sellers: Camry, Corolla, Supra, Landcruiser.

Best Deal on the Lot: 1993 Supra, 5-speed, $2,000 off sticker price.

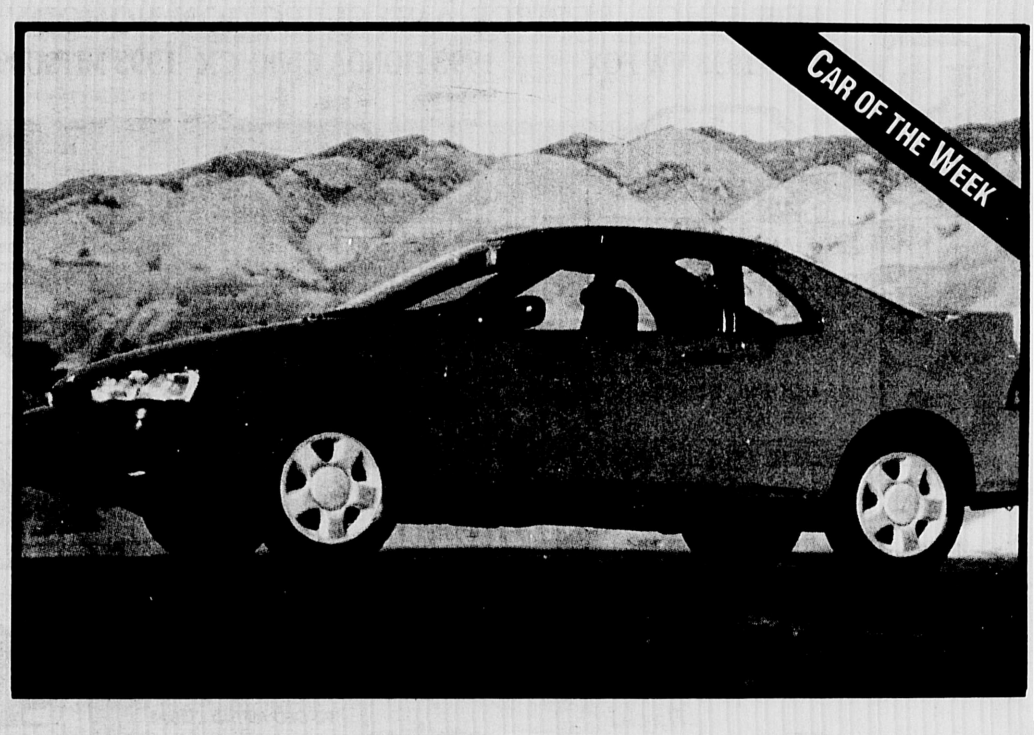

Specialties: Low-rate rentals. No high-pressure sales consultants. Professional and informative auto consultants.

Service: The dealership has a full service department, body shop, and a three-story parts department.

Incentives: 495 Toyota's purchase option program, which allows customers to drive more car for less money. Also, special finance rates are available.

Philosophy: Because competition is so fierce, and all Toyota dealers pay the same price, we must rely heavily on our service department, which shares company with some of the top dealers in the country when it comes to customer satisfaction.

Toyota Paseo

Coupe offers sporty fun at a practical price

The Toyota Paseo two-door sport coupe offers a standard driver-side air bag Supplemental Restraint System (SRS) for 1993, as well as an optional four-wheel anti-lock braking system (ABS), attractive new interior fabric and two new colors.

The SRS features an air bag, four spoke steering wheel and knee bolster.

Since Paseo's introduction in January of 1991, Toyota's lowest-priced sporty car has offered style and a fun-to-drive feel.

Paseo also introduced a four-speed, electronically controlled automatic transmission to a class where less sophisticated three-speed automatics are the norm. The Paseo's transmission and engine are linked electronically to provide smooth shifting, powerful performance and excellent fuel economy.

Since Paseo's introduction in January of 1991, Toyota's lowest-priced sporty car has offered style and a fun-to-drive feel.

Powered by a 100-hp electronically fuel-injected, 1.5-liter, twin-cam, 16-valve engine, Paseo delivers spirited performance. It also boasts something that no other car in its class can: Toyota's tradition of quality, dependability and reliability.

Paseo's sport-tuned suspension features MacPherson struts up front and a Particular attention was paid to the aerodynamic shape of the Paseo. Flush headlamps and tight-fitting body panels and windows net a low 0.32 coefficient of drag and exceptional wind noise reduction. The combination of 100 hp and a low curb weight (2,070 lb. with the five-speed manual and 2,160 lb. with the automatic) further enhance Paseo's sporty performance.

The combination of 100 hp and a low curb weight (2,070 lb. with the five-speed manual and 2,160 lb. with the automatic) further enhance Paseo's sporty performance. With a power-to-weight ratio of 20:1, Paseo provides both good mileage and acceleration.

Standard equipment includes quick-ratio, power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering with only 2.7 turns lock-to-lock. This gives Paseo excellent steering response, ease of parking and a tight 32.5 foot turning circle.

Braking is accomplished by the use of ventilated 9.9-inch discs up front and 7.1-inch drums in the rear. The standard steel-belted radial tire has been increased in size to 185/60R14, further improving roadholding under various weather conditions.

Standard equipment includes sport-type high-back reclining bucket seats, tachometer, adjustable intermittent windshield wipers, quartz digital clock and a two-speaker electronically tuned stereo radio.

Paseo's locking trunk area offers 7.7 cu. ft. of storage for luggage, cameras or other valuables.

Optional appearance items include alloy wheels, pop-up glass sunroof with a removable sunshade, and a rear spoiler with an integral light-emitting diode (LED) center stop light.

A deluxe Electronically Tuned Radio (ETR)/cassette with four speakers is optional. For long trips, cruise control also is available.

Doctor says don't overfill your gas tank

Auto Weekly features Ask the Auto Doctor, a question and answer column by car specialist Junior Damato. Damato's column will be featured twice a month.

Damato, an ASE Master Automotive Technician with 25 years experience, owns and operates a seven-bay garage in Boston His talents are twofold: repairing cars and verbalizing problems. As a result, Damato has a nationally syndicated "Auto Talk" radio show broadcast six hours every week. Damato can be heard on WHDH in Boston Sundays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Dear Doctor: I have heard a lot about topping off the gas tank when filling up. My question is this: if the gas nozzle shuts off at $15.22 for example, should the gas attendant try to force more gas in to make it an even $16? Will this effect the car in any way?

Maria W.

Dear Maria: When filling the tanks of today's cars, once the pump clicks off, and you can round it to an even cent, but in no way should you or any one else try to force more gas in to fill it to the top. The gasoline could expand and damage the emissions vapor system. Most gas stations have vapor recovery built into the gas pump hoses. Besides, if you try to top off your tank, you will probably end up spilling gas on the side of the car and wasting hard-earned dollars.

Dear Doctor: Does it matter if I fill up with a no-name brand as opposed to a major brand even if the octane is the same? I would like to save as much as I can.

Carl N.

Dear Carl: In some cases a private label gas station is supplied by a name brand at a lesser price. The octane rating on either an off-brand gasoline or a name brand should be the same. Where there may be a difference between the two is in the blend of detergents. Other ways for you to economize are to drive less, obey speed limits, and have regular maintenance performed on your car. Do not let your car idle for long periods and use the octane that is recommended in your owner's manual.

Dear Doctor: My car is in need of a paint job, however, I cannot afford to get the entire exterior refinished that includes repairing the dents and rust. What is the cheapest way for me to get my car looking good again?

Robert C.

Dear Robert: Unfortunately, there are no short cuts when it comes to body maintenance. Removing rust is an art in itself, and the sooner you have it removed, the better. Have the area that is in need of repair cleaned and primed. Get a free estimate from a good body shop. One way to tell if the shop is good is to check out the cars they have just finished. If your car is running well, it is a good idea to invest $500 to $1,000 in the appearance of your car.

Dear Doctor: I have a 1990 Dodge Dynasty that is still under warranty, but recently I have moved 50 miles away from the dealership where I bought the car. I need service on my car. Can I take the car to another Dodge dealership?

Angelo W.

Dear Angelo: Warranty work is honored at any dealership selling your make of car. If you have any difficulty getting service, look in your owner's manual for the customer assistance 800 number.

Dear Doctor: Now that the warm weather is here, I have been thinking of getting a pop-up roof for my car. I have a Mercury Cougar. Who does installation for these cars? Also, when I trade the car in, will it make a difference in what I will be offered?

Paul B.

Dear Paul: Depending on the type of car, the size and quality, installation of a pop-up roof runs about $200 to $400. Most glass companies and aftermarket accessory shops perform this type of work. Check in the yellow pages or call a dealership for the names of companies in your area. The roof could increase the value of your car, but only by a small amount.

Dear Doctor: I love a clean looking car, so I wash mine twice a week, and I wax it every other week. I have been told that this will take the shine away and eventually ruin the finish. Is this true? How often can I wax my car? What's a good wax that's easy to apply?

Sergio D.

Washing your car often by hand will not harm you car's finish.

Dear Sergio: Washing your car often by hand will not harm you car's finish. Automatic car washes will wear the paint, especially along the edges of the body. By using a high quality nonabrasive wax, you will not dull or harm the finish.

Dear Doctor: I had a flat. I was shocked when I opened the trunk and saw the tiny little spare for my Chevy Caprice. I put the tire on and slowly drove home. My question is are these tires safe?

Debbie T.

Dear Debbie: Those little tires you are referring to are lighter, take up less space, and are easier to get out of the trunk. However, they are intended for temporary use only, and you should reduce your speed when driving on them.

Some people are going to take gas taxes less seriously than others. Why? Because they're driving Saturns. Whether it's the SL2 (24 city MPG/35 highway MPG)* or any Saturn for that matter, it's built with one very important thing in mind. Fuel efficiency is no laughing matter.

1993 Mustang Cobra

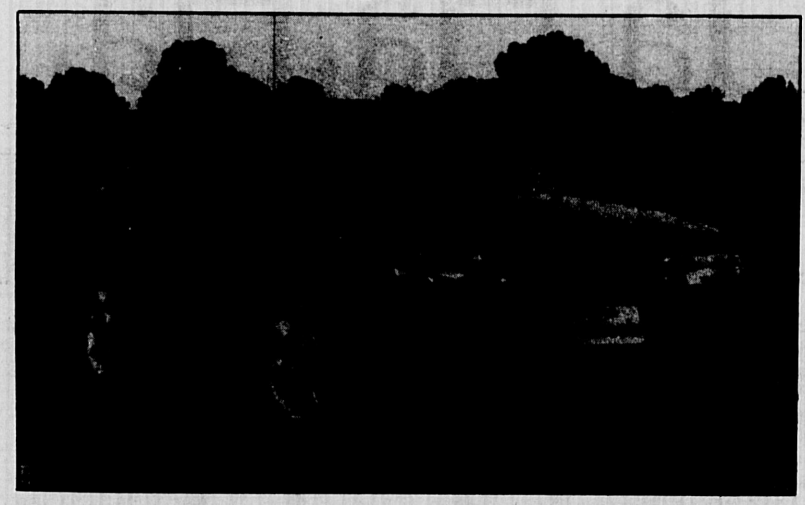

The most powerful and responsive Mustang yet

The new Ford Mustang Cobra is excitingly fast. When driving enthusiasts press the pedal to the metal, they'll be delighted with the extra quick pickup.

KEANE ON WHEELS
By Tom Keane

This 1993 ¼ version is a limited-production car that is much more powerful and responsive than any Mustang I have ever driven.

In a sense, I learned how to drive in a Mustang, for it is the only car used at Bob Bondurant School of High Performance Driving. The rear-wheel drive, along with a powerful engine and strong suspension system, makes a Mustang ideal for learning how to drive on a demanding track. The car is quick to react to corrective measures when pushed beyond its limits. (Learning how to make corrections is the crux of high performance driving.) One characteristic of a Mustang is a near neutral handling balance. Although it is a front engine car with rear wheel drive, it handles like a mid-engine car.

In spite of this coupe's sports car capabilities, it is not a sporty looking car. In fact, the appearance is rather deceptive. You've probably seen hundreds of them on the street and never recognized them as powerful sports cars. But you'll notice the new Mustang Cobra – if it has a teal paint job. It comes in red and black, but teal is an intriguing color.

The Cobra also has good-looking wheels and tires, which is the basis of the suspension system. When this car was in the planning stage, Ford assigned what they called SVT, or Special Vehicle Team. Their objective was to enhance the Mustang's performance in the areas of cornering and braking and to improve the quality of the ride.

1993 Mustang Cobra

The epitome of performance at a reasonable price

Their mark is right on target; this Cobra is much more refined than anything I drove at Bondurant's track.

What makes the Cobra fun is its power. It does 0-to 60 mph in under 6 seconds, and stops in less than 150 feet. Translated: this car has all the mechanical abilities anyone could want.

The Cobra has Goodyear Eagle P24/45ZR-17 tires mounted on 17 by 7.5 inch aluminum wheels. I pushed them exceptionally hard into turns, and there was no slippage, just pure traction.

Other modifications include smaller front stabilizer bar and stiffer rear suspension upper control bushings. The shocks and struts have decreased high-speed dampening compared to the Mustang GT.

What makes the Cobra fun is its power. It does 0-to 60 mph in under 6 seconds, and stops in less than 150 feet. Translated: this car has all the mechanical abilities anyone could want.

The way the SVT people added horsepower is by concentrating on improving the engine cylinder's volume efficiencies to make it more "breathable." As a result, it now has 235 horsepower, an increase of 30 hp. over the Mustang GT.

The seat is comfortable – which is an understatement. It has four-way power controls plus a lumbar support capable of inflating far beyond my needs. And as expected in a car of its price, it has power door locks, windows, and mirrors.

Considering the Cobra's performance capabilities, a base price of $18,505 is quite reasonable. Even with a few options on the car I drove, the fully equipped car only costs $21,223. But the interior isn't luxurious. In fact, the instrumentation features the tachometer and speedometer; and the rest of it is plain.

This 1993¼ version is a limited-production car that is much more powerful and responsive than any Mustang I have ever driven.

The controls for the sound system are somewhat obstructed by the stick shifter. Another area that needs improvement is ignition key release. Most cars use a simplified operation, but the Cobra still requires the two hand method: one to turn the key the other to press a button on the opposite side of the steering column.

However, taking the key out of the ignition isn't all that important. The enjoyment of the Cobra is turning the key on, and starting the engine – for that's when the fun begins.

SPARE PARTS

EXPLORER IN THE LIMELIGHT: The Ford Explorer has a role in Steven Spielberg's movie "Jurassic Park." Dubbed the Jurassic Park Explorer, it is used in the movie to transport park visitors through dinosaur exhibits. Fitted with a bubble top, video monitors, cameras, and a CD-Rom player, it is brightly painted in a camouflage pattern of lime green, yellow and maroon.

MATURE JUDGMENT: Mature auto buyers (50 years of age or older) are much more likely than other age groups to purchase vehicles manufactured by domestic, rather than foreign or transplant automakers. According to a study conducted by The Dohring Company, Inc., the order of preference was Ford, Buick, Oldsmobile, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Pontiac and Lincoln. Mature import buyers preferred Toyota and Honda.

BIG IMPROVEMENT: The 1993 new car quality improvement rating increased 14 percent over last year's models. This is the biggest one-year percentage leap since 1987 when J.D. Power and Associates started its current method of measuring its initial vehicle quality after 90 days of ownership.

MISNOMER: Head restraints, commonly called head rests, have nothing to do with comfort. They are intended to protect against whiplash injuries.

You're never too old for a safe cradle.

This one happens to be quite beefy. We call it a spaceframe. It has some 3,000 structural welds. And "crumple zones" that help dissipate the energy of a crash before it reaches the passenger compartment. A fact that helps Moms and Dads sleep more comfortably, too.

Supt. chooses Tashjian to head Muraco

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

After interviewing the two final candidates for the position of principal at Muraco School, Superintendent Robert Fitzgerald decided to appoint Rosalie M. Tashjian.

"We're pleased to have her on board," Fitzgerald said, citing Tashjian's leadership skills and her work in professional development among his reasons for making the appointment. He added that he picked Tashjian because he felt she was the best candidate to confront the issues facing Muraco.

"Her outlook on young people is very exciting," he said.

The position of principal at Muraco became available when its current principal, Andrea Wong, decided to accept a job as principal at Hillside Elementary in Needham.

Dr. Kathleen Buckley, the recently appointed Assistant Superintendent, School Committee Chairman Jerilyn Heinold and Director of Special Education Frank Bianco were also present during the interview with Tashjian. Fitzgerald said the group's consensus was firm that Tashjian was a good person for the job.

Library designs unveiled to public

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

In a public hearing called by the Winchester Library Board of Trustees, architect Brian Thompson unveiled the designs of the new library, giving disabled people and members from the Historical Commission a chance to voice their concerns before the designs are finalized.

The Board of Trustees called the meeting specifically to hear the concerns of handicapped people in Winchester. The trustees said they want to make sure the library is accessible to all residents of Winchester, including handicapped people, said Anne Nevins, vice chairman of the Board, at the Aug. 16 public hearing.

Thompson, French and Matsumoto were chosen as the firm to draw up plans for the new library July 23 after interviews with the library Design Review Committee and received approximately $77,000 for their work. The Board of Trustees will use the designs as a basis to ask Spring Town Meeting for the estimated $3.2 million to undertake the renovations. The trustees have proposed the town borrow money using short-term notes and then 10-year bonds, with payments due starting in Fiscal Year 1996.

Thompson, of Thompson, French and Matsumoto, outlined the problems of handicapped accessibility in the current library Aug. 16, explaining what his company saw as the best way to fix them.

"The key is to stay within the volume (building space) as it's presently defined and reorganize within that volume," he said.

Thompson showed how, among other things, the current library allows access only at the back door, through the children's room. Also, the width of Town gets extra dough in aid

By Deborah Trask
EDITOR

There's a bonus in the mail in the form of state aid for Winchester and according to officials, it couldn't come at a better time.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer reported recently that state aid or "Cherry sheet figures," came in higher than expected and represented the "good news" for the town's fiscal future. But, he urged caution in interpreting the impact of the news on the town.

"This puts us in a better position to work on the budget, but you don't just start spending. I think what people have to remember is what the bad times were like," added Maurer.

With an additional $300,000 in state aid available to the town, Maurer said officials will not have to look at raising fees to residents in order to close the gap in revenue in the Fiscal 1995 budget.

"I think the news over the summer (from the state) has been very good for us," said Maurer in a telephone interview. He said the increase in state aid would make FY'95 easier from a budgetary standpoint.

In compiling budget numbers for two fiscal years, officials figured in $2,300,000 but received $2,737,000 instead, for a total increase of $437,000. However, $137,000 of those additional funds are earmarked for the school department, as part of the new state aid for education funded following the passage of the Educational Reform

Business is cooking for local pizza shops

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

If you like it greasy, you got it. Italian style, you got it. With fish or mozzarella or artichoke, you got it. All the ingredients, in short, to satisfy the most eccentric taste in pizza is just around the corner in Winchester.

A stroll down Main Street, around the rotary, and up Church Street reveals there are at least six different pizza shops to choose from. Starting from the top, you have Andrea's, Paesano's, Domino's, Ken's, Lucia's and Steve's.

There really is a Steve. You might even see him yourself pulling pizzas in and out of the ovens if you walk into his establishment. But no matter how hard you look, you won't find Ken or Domino throwing up a pizza or Paesano speckling olives over the cheese.

Nonetheless, almost all of the shops draw their share of faithful customers who seem to feel their pizza shop is the best. The people who frequent Andrea's House of Pizza, for instance, seem to like it greasy and that's the way they get it.

"Fat is flavor," was the way Mark

Harrison E. Chadwick

Town mourns Harrison Chadwick

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

He carried himself with dignity, a characteristic Yankee forthrightness and his craggy face recalled nothing so much as the rough and eternal beauty of our New England coast.

Harrison Chadwick — the self proclaimed "old fashioned Yankee" — gave of himself unselfishly to hundreds of people throughout his 90 years, and with his passing an era recognized for its deep integrity comes to an end.

Harry essentially had two great loves of his life — government and the Town of Winchester.

Living in the family homestead on Everett Avenue most of his life, he so amplified these passions that his work (and pleasures) touched all of his friends and constituents in some way.

Growing up in the early 1950s, Winchester youth remember Mr. Chadwick organizing and coaching the Winchester Blades hockey team, and also coaching the Winchester High School freshman hockey team for a time.

Charlie Allen, W.H.S. Class of 1956, still remembers clearing snow off the ice on the Upper Mystic Lake, behind the Chadwick Homestead in preparation for a game.

Mr. Chadwick's late brother-in-law William Mitchell once said, "Harry would drop everything to coach a promising youth in the gentle art of stiff body checking — a move in which the person skating with puck sends his opponent sailing across the ice."

That anecdote alone, so uncharacteristic of the admittedly conservative New England background of Harrison, begins to reveal the personality which overflowed with warmth, generosity and humor!

Mr. Chadwick was an exemplary state legislator from 1946 to 1974 and was also a Town Meeting member for more than 50 years.

In addition, longtime residents remember his presiding over Town Meeting as moderator for 16 years. His sense of fair play, knowledge of procedure and his courtliness were never ruffled regardless of the temperature in Town Hall Auditorium, the volatility of an issue, or the face that moderator and speaker alike usually had to shout across that vast space to be heard.

Former Rep. "Whip" Saltmarsh, who succeeded Chadwick, once alluded to his political style; "I never heard anything but the highest compliments paid to Harry. He is held in the highest esteem by his colleagues, no matter what the party."

Chadwick himself amplified on his traditionally conservative Republican ideals about ten years ago; "In the

POLICE LOG

Sunday, August 15

10:00 p.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Stephen Roche was informed by dispatch that a cellular phone caller was following a car along Mt. Vernon Street onto Skillings Road. The vehicle reportedly passed the location of the officer who pulled it over. The driver, a 40-year-old Woburn man, had several empty beer bottles and cans in the rear of the car, according to police reports. The officer reportedly smelled alcohol on the man's breath and asked him to the rear of the vehicle where he performed three field sobriety tests. The driver was then transported to the station where he was arrested for operating under the influence, issued a citation, and later bailed, according to reports.

Friday, August 13

6:39 a.m.

■ Officer Carl Fuller was dispatched to Longfellow Road on a report that a vehicle had struck property. On the scene, the officer observed the accident vehicle was removed from the scene and there had been no injury. According to police reports, the driver of the car, a 24-year-old Nahant woman, parked the car on an incline and failed to apply the parking break. The car reportedly rolled approximately 40 feet and uprooted a mailbox on Longfellow Road, grazed a Boston Edison pole and stopped after striking and damaging a fence.

Thursday, August 12

12:35 p.m.

■ Officer Steven Field reported to a call of a sick raccoon at a Church Street location. At the scene, the officer reportedly heard from several witnesses that the raccoon had headed toward Cambridge Street. The officer located the animal, which did appear sick, and destroyed it.

Wednesday, August 11

3:04 p.m.

■ Officer James Covino took a report from a Winchester man who came to the station and reported that sometime between June 21 and 25 two mountain bikes were stolen out of his garage. Each of the bikes were valued at $800.

5:08 p.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Kurt Ellis observed a car violate the left lane must turn left law on Main Street. Upon stopping the car, operated by a 23-year-old Malden man, a check revealed that the man's license was suspended. He was arrested, transported to the station and booked. The man was issued a citation for operating a motor vehicle after suspension and failing to obey DPW rules.

6:54 p.m.

■ Officer Thomas Groux responded to Cambridge and Pond Street on a report of a motor vehicle accident with property damage. On the scene, the officer spoke with a witness who reported that a car had hit the building at which she worked and then left. The officer observed scratches on the side of the building and structural damage. The officer made contact with the owner of the car who said she had hit the building, but had stopped after the incident and spoke with the person who later reported the accident. At that time, she said, she thought that settled things.

9:00 p.m.

■ While on patrol, officer Kurt Ellis observed a vehicle traveling south on Main Street turn onto Skillings Road, leave the marked lanes, drive over the curb onto the sidewalk and through bushes into the Purity parking lot where the driver parked it in a handicapped zone. The officer pulled into the lot and approached the driver, a 21-year-old Somerville man. While validating the driver's information, dispatch informed the officer that a car similar to one which he'd just pulled over was involved in a hit-and-run accident in the Dunkin Donuts parking lot.

The officer requested dispatch to ask the person who reported the hit-and-run to come to the Purity parking lot and identify the vehicle. When the complainant, a 36-year-old Woburn man, arrived at the Purity parking lot, he identified the other driver as the person he had exchanged words with near the Dunkin Donuts. According to reports, the man then said after he had walked into the Dunkin Donuts another man entered the establishment and reported someone hit his car and then left.

The officer inspected the man's car but was unable to find any damage. The complainant reportedly stated he did not want to pursue the matter. The officer issued the Somerville man a citation for reckless driving and failure to stay in marked lanes.

Tuesday, August 10

2:18 p.m.

■ Officer Thomas Groux responded to a report of a motor vehicle accident at Cambridge and Pond Road. On the scene, the officer observed that one vehicle, driven by a 52-year-old Winchester man, had been traveling north on Cambridge Street when it was hit by a second car attempting to make a left turn onto Cambridge Street from Pond Street. Both cars were damaged. There were no major injuries.

FIRE LOG

Saturday, August 14

12:30 p.m.

■ Engine 3 was dispatched to a Mason Street residence on a report of a lockout. At the scene, firefighters assisted the homeowner in gaining entry to her house. Winchester police were also at the scene. Returned to station at 12:40 p.m.

12:50 p.m.

■ Engine 3 and the ambulance were dispatched to a Royalston Street residence for medical aid. At the scene, firefighters assisted the ambulance crew in preparing and transporting the patient to Winchester Hospital. Returned to the station at 1:00 p.m.

Friday, August 13

4:08 p.m.

■ Engine 3 was dispatched to the Fells Reservoir on a report of an outside fire. At the scene, no fire was located. A vehicle was left to patrol the entire area, while engine 3 returned to quarters at 4:38 p.m.

7:45 a.m.

■ All apparatus responded to a fire alarm at the Aberjona Nursing Center. At the location, firefighters found a smoke detector from a patient's room on the first floor had initiated the alarm. No fire or smoke were found. The alarm was reset and all apparatus were returned to the station by 8:23 p.m.

Thursday, August 12

5:35 p.m.

■ Engine 3 was dispatched to Washington Street on a report of a brush fire. At the scene, firefighters located a small brush fire and used a booster from the engine and a tank of water to extinguish the flames. Returned to quarters at 5:43 p.m.

Tuesday, August 10

8:01 p.m.

■ Engine 3 and the ambulance were dispatched to a Ginn Road location for medical aid. At the scene, firefighters assisted the ambulance crew with CPR and preparing the patient for transportation to the hospital. Returned to quarters at 8:21 p.m.

8:50 a.m.

■ Engine 3 and the ambulance were dispatched to a Main Street location for medical aid. At the scene, firefighters discovered an elderly man had fallen. The crew assisted the man to his chair and then returned to the station.

6:47 p.m.

■ Engine 3 and the ambulance were dispatched to Middlesex and Lake Street for medical aid at the scene of a motor vehicle accident. At the location, firefighters found a one car accident involving an underage and unlicensed driver. A police officer was on the scene to investigate the incident and it was determined no medical aid was needed. Returned to the station at 6:56 p.m.

Monday, August 5

10:45 a.m.

■ Engine 3 and the ambulance were dispatched to the front of a Forest Street address for medical aid at a motor vehicle accident. At the scene, firefighters and the ambulance crew found there was no personal injury. Returned to the station at 10:59 a.m.

ZBA denies permit to erect freestanding sign

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Anyone who experiences difficulty in noticing the Winchester Savings Bank will have a little longer to wait, according to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The bank applied for a special permit to construct a freestanding sign outside their building on Main Street, claiming customers were having trouble finding the building, but the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) denied the request in a public hearing Aug. 17 on grounds that they hadn't been given all the information to make a proper decision.

The ZBA agreed with the Planning Board, which had also denied the bank's request for a special permit at its meeting Aug. 16.

In a letter to the ZBA, Jake Ciarcia, the Planning Board Engineer, after reviewing the bank's petition, said the Planning Board voted unanimously to recommend unfavorable action.

"The Planning Board's objection to this request is based on the intent of the bylaw that a freestanding sign only be erected when a building is located significantly back of the street line and a mounted sign would be ineffective," the letter stated.

Any building less than 40 feet from the street line, the bylaw maintains, may not be permitted to erect a freestanding sign. The bylaw was brought into existence to inhibit the proliferation of such signs in the central business zoning district, according to ZBA member Joshua M. Alper.

The bank is approximately 30 feet from the street line, according to Edward Hicks, a lawyer with John Roll & Associates, Inc. who presented the bank's case to the ZBA. Peter Segerstrom, president of the bank, was also present at the public hearing.

"People have said they have had trouble finding the building," Hicks said, adding the essential problem is that gas station signs obstruct the view of the building when you are driving both north and south on Main Street.

He added the bank had discussed the matter with several of its neighboring businesses and found none of them objected to the idea of a freestanding sign in front of the bank.

Alpers asked Hicks whether the idea of putting up lettering or a sign on the building itself, at a second story level, wouldn't solve the problem people have of identifying the building just as well.

Hicks said the problem still remains that the gas station signs block the view of the building until you are at a certain point, almost facing the building, at which time it's almost too late to turn into the bank's entrance.

A part of the bylaw suggests certain stipulations for the ZBA to consider before granting special permits, one of which is that other options be thoroughly considered before exceptions are made, said ZBA chairman John Prokos, adding that he didn't think the bank covered all the options.

Harry Chefalo, a member of the Planning Board, spoke when Prokos asked if there was anyone from the public who wanted to speak in favor of the petition.

"A sign (in front) of that building wouldn't hurt the neighborhood, the town or anything else," said Chefalo, who was not at the meeting in which the Planning Board voted unanimously to recommend unfavorable action on the permit.

Prokos said he couldn't see why letters or a sign on the bank itself, at the proper elevation, wouldn't solve the problem and that he didn't have the information suggesting anything contrary to his observation.

The members of the ZBA voted unanimously to deny the permit to the bank, but suggested to Hicks and Sergerstrom that they have an architect construct "mock-ups" of what the sign would look like on the building itself, rather than freestanding, to present to them at the next meeting.

FROM ED'S CORNER

More on cooking

By Ed Govostos

Curry

Curry: My first impression about curry years ago were Ra jah and British Colonial officers sitting at long tables in palaces being served off huge silver platters. India comes to mind when curry is mentioned, but actually, curry is popular in Pakistan, Burma, Malaysia, Hong Kong, South Africa and even Australia.

The British, because of their long connection with India and the Far East, brought curry to the Western World. It is now enjoyed around the world.

The Plaza Hotel in New York used to serve a popular curry with as many as 40 condiments.

My wife and I first enjoyed curry in Bermuda and I formed a great liking for it. There is a restaurant on St. David called "Black Horse Tavern" that serves a great mussel curry.

Accompaniment is probably a better word than condiments. Whatever you choose to call them, they come in many forms: peanuts, coconut, pickles, ginger, onion, eggs, chutneys, and everyone's favorite "Bombay Duck," really, just about anything you can think of, especially rice. The word curry does not mean a given spice, but a combination of many.

There are dozens of combinations — this is a common one: turmeric, coriander, cumin seeds, ginger root, peppercorns, cardamom pod, red chili, saffron, and mustard seed. There are many more but most people buy curry powder as mixed by a manufacturer.

Chicken Curry

6 to 8 chicken thighs
2 cups of chicken broth
2 large onions - chopped fine
1 Tbs. of curry powder (or to taste)
1 Tbs. of ginger root - chopped fine
1 clove of garlic
1 raw potato - grated
1 cup of canned tomatoes
Cooking oil as needed
1 cup of coconut milk.

Brown chicken lightly in oil. Remove chicken. Add onion, garlic, curry powder. Cook until onions are browned. Add chicken and remaining ingredients. Simmer 30 to 45 minutes until the sauce thickens a bit.
Serve with white boiled rice and shredded "Bombay duck."

FROM THE JENKS CENTER

By Mary Kelly
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Discussion of insurance coverage of medical care

Michael Phillips, sales representative for Bankers Life and Trust Company, will present a description of insurance coverage of medical care at special rates difficult to find elsewhere. Many benefits will be discussed in relation to hospital in-patient deductible, in-patient co-payments, long-term hospitalization and other charges.

The presentation will be in the Pond Room of the Jenks Senior Center, on Tuesday, Aug. 24, at 10:30 a.m. There is no fee, and no prior sign-up is required. This program is sponsored by the WSA Education Committee, under the chairmanship of Dr. Robert Smith.

Hearing loss and hearing health care lecture

The WSA Health Committee, chaired by Dr. Robert Smith, will sponsor a lecture on hearing loss and hearing health care at the Jenks Senior Center, on Wednesday, Aug. 25, at 10:30 a.m. Susan G. Bolton, M.A., CCC-A, an audiologist associated with Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, will describe important clues in recognizing failing hearing. She will also tell how to avoid the unnecessary early use of hearing aids, and later how to obtain the best devices to suit special needs.

This presentation will be held in the Pond Room, there is no fee, and no prior sign-up is required.

Senior van available for trips to mall

Seniors are reminded that, through the generosity of the Salter family, the Armstrong Ambulance Company makes available a wheelchair accessible van for the transportation of Winchester seniors to the Wednesday and Friday Eating Together programs at the Jenks Senior Center, and for the last Thursday of the month trip to the Burlington Mall.

The van accommodates 14 passengers, or 10 passengers and two wheelchair seniors with their escorts.

Sign-ups must be made ahead of time. The van leaves the Jenks Center at 9:30 a.m., and picks up at the mall for the return trip at 12:30 p.m.

WINCHESTER NEWS

Housing market sparks new life

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Winchester's single family housing and condominium markets are showing good signs of improvement over last year, according to reports from local real estate agents.

Helen Babcock, vice president of Carlson Real Estate, said continued low interest rates have encouraged more people to move up in the market by buying new homes rather than refinancing their existing ones.

"Winchester's been lucky, it is a solid town and has held its value," she said, adding the town's proximity to Boston and its school system are strong factors in that luck.

Since the beginning of the year, 184 single family homes have been sold or are pending sale in Winchester, while by this time last year there were 172 single family homes sold or pending, Babcock said.

Also, the average price of a single family home in the second quarter this year (April-June) has gone up to $315,150 from $289,421 during the second quarter in 1992, according to a report released recently by the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Ann Blackham, of Ann Blackham and Company, Inc., reports that the number of condominiums sold in Winchester so far this year, 24, is already almost more than the total number sold last year, 27.

"The market is very healthy, it's active, and there are more buyers than people selling," she said, explaining why the average number of days a single family house spends on the market has dropped to 90 days this year from 110 days during the second quarter in 1992.

Babcock said the local market should get even better by the fall, as recent indications from banks point to another possible dip in the interest rates. Currently, the rates range somewhere between 6 and 9 percent.

"But no one has a crystal ball," Babcock said, suggesting a little skepticism helps in following changes in the market.

According to the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR), the number of listings has started to decline appreciably across the state by 5 percent.

Far from being a bad omen, the decline in the number of listings indicates a healthy market, said Carol Brousseau, manager of Hunneman & Company in Winchester.

She said she has noticed a lot of homeowners moving within the local market, rather than moving out.

"Our listings are down because we're selling them," she said, adding they are experiencing good sales over $500,000, including 9 sales in their company over $1 million.

The MAR reports, in the rest of the state, that there are other signs pointing to improvements in single family housing and condominiums markets, although the MAR figures reflect approximately 50 percent of all real estate sales.

Sales in the number of condominiums, according to the MAR, rose 5.2 percent in the second quarter this year compared to the same period last year. The average selling price of condominiums rose from an average of $105,394 during the second quarter last year to $107,936 in the same period this year.

Single family home sales, however, slipped 3.2 percent in the second quarter this year and the same period last year, the MAR stated, even though the average price during the second quarter this year shows a rise over last year: from $173,414 in 1992 to $176, 827 this year, a 2 percent increase.

The MAR report shows that 8,837 single family homes were sold in Massachusetts during the second quarter of 1993 while 9,132 had been sold in the same period last year. Also, the number of condominiums sold increased from 1,426 during the second quarter last year to 1,500 during the second quarter this year.

Berta Swanson, president of the Winchester Boat Club, presents to Ed Goodwin, President of the Winchester Co-operative Bank with a check for the Winchester Citizens for Midwest Flood Relief Account. To date the Winchester Boat Club has made the single largest donation for the local flood relief effort.

Tips for parents on how to motivate reading

Miriam Reid, the reading specialist who has been tutoring reluctant readers at the Winchester Public Library during the summer as part of the R.O.A.R. (Reach Out And Read) project, offers these tips for parents who want to motivate a child who is reluctant to read:

■ Prepare the child for reading. Prior knowledge is absolutely essential for success in reading. Remember that what takes place before and during a child's reading is more important in motivating a reader than what happens afterward.

■ Choose subjects that the child is comfortable with or knows something about.

■ Avoid books that have more than five words on a page that the child does not "own," — words that the child understands verbally and understands in a text.

■ Give the child questions that he or she should try to answer; this will give him or her a purpose to keep in mind while reading.

■ A child should only read out loud to a parent when the child insists on doing this.

■ Share in the child's reading. Skim the book first to see what it is about. Read three or four pages to the child, then ask him or her to read the next one or two pages.

■ It is important to read to children every day.

Reid has been an teacher of grades K, four, five and six, in Medford and Winchester, and a reading specialist at the Lynch Junior High School (now Lynch School). She is now a reading specialist and English teacher at Winchester High School. She has been a presenter at the National Council of Teachers of English and the Massachusetts Reading Association.

The R.O.A.R. program is being sponsored by the Winchester Co-operative Bank, in commemoration of 100 years of service to the community.

Summer reading list books available

The librarians at the Winchester Public Library have been making sure that middle school and high school students in Winchester are able to find the books on their summer reading lists.

Reading list books that are not checked out can be found on a special display shelf on the balcony over the reference room. Copies of the reading lists are available at the display and at the reference desk.

As the end of the summer approaches, waiting lists have formed for many of the summer reading list books. For assistance, ask one of the librarians at the reference desk.

Community Calendar seeks events for listing

The Winchester Public Library's has produced a Community Calendar each month in order to help people keep track of community events. To request a program or event be included in the Community Calendar, fill out a brief form at the Library's reference desk by the 15th of each month. No listings will be taken over the phone.

Library display explaining renovation plans still on view

A display in the library's main lobby that illustrates the proposed plans for renovating the library building has been on on view since April 1993. The display is built around copies of the schematic drawings of the proposal which were paid for by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library.

In addition to the drawings, the display includes an explanation of the proposed changes and their anticipated effects on service.

Library apologizes for error

Due to incorrect information given to the Star by The Winchester Public Library, the date of the library's hearing on the proposed renovation was given as Tuesday, Aug. 17, instead of Monday, Aug. 16. The library apologizes for any inconvenience this has caused.

Any community member who has comments and recommendations about the proposed renovation should write to the director's office at the Winchester Public Library, 80 Washington St., Winchester MA 01890; or call 721-7171.

There will be future public hearings scheduled to discuss the building renovation. Anyone who wishes to attend but needs special accommodation should call Mary Rose Quinn, the library's ADA coordinator; or Richard Welton, the Community Services librarian, at 721-7171.

Winchester Co-operative Bank earns five-star rating from Bauer

Bauer Financial Reports Inc., Coral Gables, Fla., a bank research and rating firm, announces that Winchester Co-operative Bank has once again been awarded the Bauer Financial Reports' five-star rating. This is the 12th consecutive quarter that Winchester Co-operative Bank has earned this nationally recognized award ranking it superior for safety, strength and performance.

The rating is based on the analysis of Dec. 31 financial data as filed with federal regulators.

A five-star rating, for the safest savings institution in the country, indicates that Winchester Co-operative Bank's tangible capital exceeds 6.75 percent of tangible assets, its risk-based capital ratio exceeds 10 percent that there are no excessive delinquencies or repossessed assets and that institution was profitable for the quarter ended December 31, 1992. For comparison purposes, the tangible capital level required for Bauer's five-star rating is twice that required by federal regulators.

"Winchester Co-operative Bank has displayed uninterrupted excellence in banking. It is a well capitalized savings bank that comes highly recommended. The community of Winchester Co-operative Bank's customers and neighbors should be particularly proud of its continued ability to merit our highest rating, five star," said Paul A. Bauer, president of the research firm.

Bauer Financial Reports Inc. analyzes, compiles data on and rates all U.S. banks, thrifts and credit unions. To find out your bank or credit union's rating, call Bauer's Bank Rate at (800) 388-6686 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Zapping bad TV

It takes a rare stripe of idealist to believe that television, once famously described as a "vast wasteland," can be made to better serve society. It takes a leap of faith even to hope it can be made to be less trashy, less pandering, or less corrosive.

But with a new administration in Washington, and thus a new cast to the Federal Communications Commission, the impulse for the reform of television is showing itself again. A notable campaign has been launched against television violence, and it's a good place to start.

One knows instinctively that there is no hope in persuading television executives or movie producers to voluntarily curb the omnipresent violent programming. Those discussions could go around in circles well into the next century.

Fortunately, a practical solution has emerged that might provide an end-run around the profit-minded media moguls. A bill has been introduced in Congress that would require television makers to equip each set with a computer chip that would allow violent-rated programming to be blocked. This sensible proposal would allow parents to exert more control over what programs come into their household.

Rep. Ed Markey, chairman of the House telecommunications and finance subcommittee, is sponsoring this legislation, which he compares to a 1990 law that required TVs to be equipped with a chip that allows closed captioning. Markey, whose Congressional district includes Winchester, points out that the law wouldn't require heavy-handed interference from government but would rather allow a democratic rejection of TV violence house by house, set by set.

Of course, in theory a similar solution is already available: parents could turn off the TV. But the value of Markey's bill is that it recognizes how television operates in reality. In households where the TV is the de facto babysitter, gruesome and grisly programs are being seen by children too young to exercise "viewer discretion."

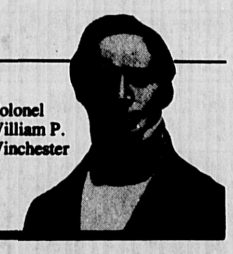

A blocking device operated on the remote control probably wouldn't keep technology-savvy teens from watching horror movies, but it would at least serve to reduce the amount of TV violence seen by younger children.

The bill is opposed by network TV lobbyists. Most likely it will only become law if citizens keep the heat on and demand this reasonable reform.

Colonel William P. Winchester

A true gentleman

By Dan Chane
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

One Sunday, nearly 50 years ago, as the Rev. Dwight W. Hadley led his congregation of the Church of the Epiphany in The Lord's Prayer, The Observer (then 6-years-old) felt a touch on his shoulders.

A glance rearward revealed a young bespectacled man, stern of visage, shaking his head.

When the service was over, the man — Harrison Chadwick — approached with an explanation; "It really is a sign of disrespect to the Lord to prop ones bottom up against the pew when one is praying," he said, and sensing my embarrassment his face warmed with a gentle smile.

Looking back with affection to this incident seems to underscore our present day lack of respect for that old-fashicned word Integrity.

Throughout his long life Harrison Chadwick seemed to imply that personal comfort — or desire was always secondary to something that transcends us all.

With his passing this week, Winchester has lost perhaps its final link to an era where integrity, selflessness, accountability and love for ones fellows was a way of life.

He supported all of us in his wisdom and the high standards which motivated him will endure forever. They were admittedly conservative standards — but as we found out with our own parents values, they weren't far off target, if at all.

His almost stern Yankee visage was always balanced by his support of Winchester's youths and their needs, and they loved him.

The passing of Harrison Chadwick has left a void in the total fabric of Winchester that will remain always and we are permanently diminished by his loss.

Integrity drove the Chadwick era in a way that our present freewheeling "anything goes" philosophy can never do.

Harrison Chadwick was a singular class act with his correct speech, his impeccable manners and his integrity.

He was in short — a true gentleman!

Tipping custom is getting out of hand

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

We were sitting around with friends the other day when somebody said, "Hey, what's this new thing where you're supposed to tip the guy for take-out coffee all of a sudden?"

It seems to many that tipping customs have gotten out of hand. Last time I looked, you were supposed to tip about 15 percent of the bill. Then, I heard, the rate had gone up to 17 percent. Unless you're at the hairdresser's, where, I'm told, it's customary to tip 20 percent, with a buck going to the person that shampoos you, another to the one that does your color, maybe even a buck to the one that has you lift your legs so he can sweep up the rug of People Fur from under your chair. Going to the hairdresser's is like a film of one of the Old-World-style religious festivals, where a statue of the Virgin Mary is lovingly plastered over with taped-on dollar bills — only the film in this case is run backwards, the bills sucked off you by the great Hoover effect that is Tipping Today.

More and more I saw how much little I understood about the custom.

Once someone sent us flowers. Delighted, I thanked the man who delivered them and shut the door. One of our honorary kids, a native New Yorker, looked at me and shook his head. "You're supposed to tip him," he said in gentle disgust. It unsettled me that he was 14 and knew that, and I was 36 and didn't.

Who else should I be tipping, I wondered? Sometimes you see a sign at the supermarket telling you not to tip the kids that pushes your cart out to your car. Does that mean you should tip if you see no such sign? Should you tip the kids that bags your order, then?

Why not tip the cashier too? The guy stocking Ding Dings and Foo Foos in the Empty Calorie aisle? The lady who beats you to the last of the cat box liner (Why are they always running out of cat box liners, anyway? How many pets ARE there in this country and should we be tipping them? It might explain the cold shoulder I've been getting from certain species around here.)

In hopes of settling some of these questions, I turned to the expert: Judith Martin in "Miss Manners' Guide for the Turn of the Millennium." She sets the tone for the whole discussion in her signature style: "Until the beginning of this century, since which time so many things have gone wrong, the custom of tipping was considered highly un-American... an example of Old World servility, unsuitable to a free and dignified people for whom honest work, of whatever kind, involved regular compensation."

"Miss Manners is not unaware," she goes on, that Yuletide tipping, say,"comes less from an overflow of bountiful Christmas feelings then from a hope of not finding the alley's worth of garbage on one's lawn."

So that what should be a gift becomes a kind of shakedown, in other words: your lunch money forked over to the school bully as a kind of appeasement.

Whole social events, speaking of shakedowns, can fall into this category. Take the bridal shower. Miss Manners refers to an invitation a woman received from her neighbor to a shower for the neighbor's own daughter. But these words were penned in the margin: "I regret that space does not permit your attendance."

Just drop off the goods, in plain English. Another shakedown, in other words.

Our own tipping-for-floral-arrangements expert is just winding up his Bachelors' degree at one tough engineering school. Right now that and a dollar, as they say, will get him on the subway. Luckily, he's found work, summers, as a doorman in a Manhattan apartment building, where people tip him — sometimes as much as $25 a day — for simply sitting at his post. Why? "Beats me," he says, shaking his head.

"In big cities, people tip because they're all terrified of each other," a friend maintains, and maybe he's right. Why else give money to the mouthy drunk who, panhandling, blocks your path?

Tipping should be voluntary and not coercive; a personal acknowledgment of the extra effort people make to do a job right.

But I say, why don't we all just do our jobs right anyway? And take the time to appreciate others' efforts to do the same.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cat owner thanks Star for article

To the editor:

Thank you for the recent article entitled "Greyhound kills cat, sparks controversy over track adoptions," as it helps to educate the public to the potential dangers associated with the adoption of retired greyhounds. I was the owner of the cat which was killed and cannot express in words the loss my family feels from the tragic death of our 15-year-old companion. The Star's article helps create some good out of this situation.

I would like to take this opportunity to add two additional pieces of information, which might prove useful to those considering adoption of a retired greyhound or to those who live near such a dog. First, the dog who killed our cat was also known to kill squirrels, rabbits, small dogs and other similar animals when given the opportunity. Therefore, keeping such a dog in a fenced yard only provides protection for animals outside the fence. Those animals unlucky enough to wander inside the fenced area will meet the same fate as our cat.

Second, it is my view that simply adding statements of ownership responsibility to an adoption contract is not enough to protect animals from greyhounds with the known propensity to kill (small animals). Organizations such as Greyhound Friends must be encouraged to enact and follow comprehensive adoption procedures, explain the potential dangers associated with retired greyhounds in basic language (especially to novice dog owners), and provide all new owners with educational materials about the animal they have adopted. It cannot be assumed that all prospective owners of retired greyhounds already know all they need to know, in order to properly control their pet.

Conscom thanks members of troop for help during summer

To the editor:

The Winchester Conservation Commission would like to take this opportunity to thank certain members of Scout Troop 503 for environmental work they have done this summer.

Scott Dicter, in preparation for an Eagle Scout badge, worked with Neil Dixon, Jeff Sullivan, Mr. Jeff Drazen (troop leader) and Mr. Robert Dieter, and cleared trails at Smith Pond. Scott and his father also constructed steps at Locke Farm Pond, improving safety along a steep portion of the trail.

Neil Dixon, who is also working on his Eagle Scout badge, installed trail signs at Smith Pond, Locke Farm pond, the town forest and the Vinson Own Nature Park, describing points of interest and providing trail maps.

The work has greatly improved the appearance and accessibility of these areas and we hope that the public will enjoy the improved condition of our open spaces.

Resident commends DPW for railroad cleanup efforts

To the editor:

While walking through the downtown recently, I realized how pleasant it was without the mess one usually encountered under the railroad overpass. Particularly, in the warm weather, this mess and odor was very unpleasant.

Thanks to Mr. Celli, the head of the town DPW, this situation no longer exists. It has been rectified by a screening, recently installed, above the sidewalks.

ON THE RECORD

The Zoning Board of Appeals had a mixed night at their Aug. 17 meeting. They denied one special permit, but granted another. The lucky petitioners are a resident couple who live in a house approximately 20 feet wide, who want to expand their home but can't go left, right, back, or forward because of where their property lines are drawn. But they can build up and up 4 more feet is where they plan to go, from 32 to 36 feet.

"Going up seems to be all the rage, this is the third one we've had in a month," said ZBA member Joshua M. Alper.

A zoning bylaw states that such additions to a home may not exceed 40 feet, leaving the residents with a comfortable 4 feet within the bounds of compliance. So, after presenting the proposal and waiting patiently through a discussion of whether the new structure would be compatible with other houses in the neighborhood, the residents were granted the permit by the ZBA.

Arthur Griffin, longtime resident and "photographer laureate" of New England will be celebrating his 90th birthday soon and to commemorate the occasion will host two events at the Arthur Griffin Center. The events will-kick off the exhibition of his work, Arthur Griffin's Photographic Legacy, 1933 to 1993. The exhibit will open to the public on Sunday, Sept. 12, and will remain open for two moths during which there will be tours, talks and workshops.

On Saturday, Sept. 11, from 6:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., the public is invited to a gala evening at the Center. Many of the area's best chefs and caterers are preparing a gourmet buffet and a spectacular birthday cake.

"It will be a lively evening of fine art, wines, music and friends," said Damon Reed, director of the Center. Tickets for the event are $50 per person (tax deductible) and may be reserved by calling the Center at 729-1158 in Winchester.

The Center will again open its doors Sunday, Sept 19th, from 1-4 p.m. for toasts, kudos and birthday cake. There is no charge for this birthday party and all those wishing to say hello to Arthur and view the new exhibition will be given a Griffin print in appreciation for the support given to the center by more than 2,200 "friends of photography" who have visited the Center since it opened just one year ago.

At a public hearing at the Winchester Public Library, the library trustees encouraged the Historical Commission to make comments and ask questions about the proposed renovations to the library. Two members of the Historical Commission were present at the meeting. They said, however, they were not able to discuss the issue in depth for it might put them in violation of the Open Meeting Law. The statement was well noted.

Recreation director thanks auxiliary fire department for help on concerts

To the editor:

Each summer, for six Wednesday nights, hundreds of Winchester residents come to the Mill Pond for free concerts. Each week a different band arrives and sets up and, each week Bob Sousa and Neil MacArthur, both members of the Winchester Auxillary Fire Department, arrive bringing lights and the power source for the performance. Both volunteer their time and energy. Without their assistance, the concerts would not be possible in their present format. On behalf of the Recreation Department and all the concert lovers, thanks so much for a job well done.

Director of Greyhound Friends clarifies Policy

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to your story about a greyhound that we had placed. I thought your reporter did a good job of presenting the situation.

It has always been our policy to carefully adopt out the greyhounds who are fortunate enough to make it into our shelter. We know each dog and emphatically warn would-be adopters about greyhounds who we know will be wonderful with people but impossible to have around small animals.

We also stress that dogs who are new to the home especially should be restrained on a leash when they are not in enclosed areas.

I am very sorry for the loss of this pet. All efforts are continuing to be made to clearly educate adopters and the public about adopting greyhounds. Our "How to Care for Your New Greyhound" manual is available to the public. Call us for a copy at (508)435-5969.

Resident points out tomato facts for Clarence

To the editor:

Hey Clarence, I'm surprised at you. John Sullivan and I are used to reading letters written by you which are the result of research and years of experience. Obviously you don't know much about tomatoes. You see Clarence, tomatoes are self pollinating and don't need bees.

Pollen grains are released by the anther, and some fall or float in the air to the stigma, usually of the same flower where they adhere to the sticky surface. When pollen grains germinate and send tubes with the pollen tube nucleus (sperm) down the style, where they unite with the ovules in the ovary, the fruit is set.

However, it's not as easy as that. Temperatures above 55 degrees F for at least part of the night are required for the first fruit set. Night temperatures above 75 degrees F in the summer months inhibit fruit set, causing blossom drop. Tomatoes also hate temperatures above 90 degrees and a July heat wave will knock the blossoms off. We had seven consecutive days in July above 90 degrees. So you see Clarence, it's not the dreaded loose-strife which drove out old Joe Pye. It's ole mother nature.

Would you explain that Black Horse Tavern thing again Clarence, as I'd like to give John Sullivan a call and spend some Saturday looking for those boundaries.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 20 — Report No. 29
August 13, 1993

THE HOUSE AND SENATE — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on four roll calls and local representatives' votes on two roll calls from sessions just prior to the summer recess. There were no roll calls in the House and Senate last week.

REORGANIZATION (H 5319) — Senate 35-0, House 145-0, gave final approval and Gov. Weld signed the bill providing for the consolidation of health and human services facilities.

Supporters said this bond issue will help implement many of the recommendations of the governor's special commission on the consolidation, reconstruction and improvement of various state institutions including hospitals and mental health facilities.

A Yes vote is for the bill.

Sen. Charles Shannon voted yes.

Rep. Paul Casey voted yes.

LEGISLATIVE DAY — Senate 20-8, approved an order calling for the Senate to adjourn and meet for a second legislative day.

Supporters said this maneuver is necessary in order to take the final vote to insure the override of Gov. Weld's veto of $12.3 million in funding for the Elderly, Disabled and Children Welfare Program. Supporters said it is important to override this veto and restore this vital money before the summer recess.

Opponents said the funding is unnecessary and costly and should be delayed or defeated.

A Yes vote is for meeting in a second legislative day. A No vote is against meeting in a second legislative day.

Shannon voted no.

$3.5 MILLION CONVERSION (S 1705) — Senate 17-16, rejected a second attempt to approve an amendment providing $3.5 million for a Massachusetts Technology Development Partnering Program.

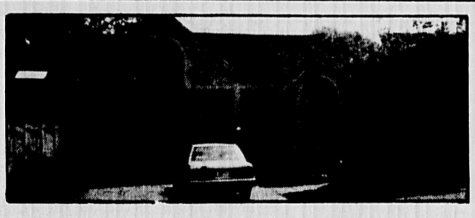

Amendment supporters said this will assist the State's defense-related companies in the preparation of proposals for federal grants to help the companies convert their technologies to civilian ones.

Amendment opponents said the State funding will indicate to the federal government that the companies are not fiscally strong enough to convert their technologies. They argued the $3.5 million can fund other programs to help with the conversion.

A Yes vote is for the $3.5 million. A No vote is against the $3.5 million.

Shannon voted yes.

Business is cooking

Connolly, a recent Winchester resident, put it. He said although he hasn't tried all six pizza shops, so far, he'd vote for Andrea's.

Chris Eliopoulos, manager of Andrea's House of Pizza, said his pizza is Greek, which means it's cooked in a pan rather than on the oven floor. Also, he said, it tends to have more cheese.

Tony Rose, describing the pizza at Andrea's in three words, said it's "thick, filling and tasty," while a friend of his sitting across the table agreed, having added however, "other places taste like cardboard."

But down at Domino's, they had different things to say.

"It's just the best pizza I've ever had," said Mike McRae, leaning against the wall inside Domino's. There are no tables to sit at, but owner Harry Meussner didn't seem worried about that.

"During the day 97 percent of our business is delivery," he said, adding that they get a few more people walking in on the weekends during dinner hours.

Meussner explained the miracle of the 30 minute or less delivery that Domino's seems most well known for. He said, first, no delivery is really more than a 7 minute drive from the store on Main Street.

So when people call, they know they have 8 to 10 minutes to make the pizza and still have a few minutes to spare.

"We're the Cadillac of pizza shops," shouted Edward Paquette, manager, from the back of the store, coming closer and adding that their motto at Domino's is "never to lose a customer."

Across the street is Paesano's, which is also set up mostly for delivery, but at which you don't have to wait long for a huge single slice. At this shop, owner Michael Giannasca said, they make Neapolitan pizza.

The Neapolitans are generally credited with at least adding the notion of tomatoes to pizza, if not the invention of pizza itself. Its crust is thinner than the Greek pizza and it is baked on the oven floor.

Giannasca said his family has been in the bakery business for years and he's worked in the business since he was a kid. He moved from Salem to work in Winchester about two years ago, he said, because he wanted to offer a better quality product for which he might have to charge more.

His prices, still reasonable compared with the other pizza shops, don't stop his most faithful customers, high school students, from crowding his little shop to the bursting point during lunch.

"We have to have 50 or 60 slices ready for them sometimes," he said, adding that the kids line up outside the building along the street to get their piece of the pie.

Continuing along Main Street, heading toward the rotary, the next place you'd bump into would be Ken's Sub and Pizza Shop. Inside, Joe and Marcia Siracusa also make an Italian style pizza. The recipe for their pie was handed down from grandmother, to father, to him, Joe said.

"People come in and see people they know here," Marcia said, adding that the atmosphere inside is very personalized and fun particularly at lunchtime.

A group of four high school students, sitting around a table with various baseball caps on, described the pizza and experience at Ken's simply: "good service fast," and "very good stuff," they said between bites.

Marcia said before they came to Winchester they owned an Italian restaurant, which had been in the family for 25 years, in Everett. Changes in the family made it time to open up nights for them, she said. Ken's is open until 7 p.m.

Near the rotary, Lucia's offers downstairs not only a culinary adventure in pizza toppings, but a lesson in regional cooking in Italy. A map of Italy on their pizza menu divides the country into 20 different regions which have corresponding types of toppings and food.

So, given that the Val D'Aosta region in Italy is the home of fontina cheese, customers can order an Aosta pizza with that main ingredient. The restaurant also offers an atmosphere of an outdoor cafe in Abruzzo, Italy.

Stefano Cornelio, a waiter at Lucia's pizzeria, said they offer toppings that no other place in town offers.

"We put tortellini on pizza," he said, adding that in Italy, pizza is something more of a side dish that you would eat along with other food. Mainly, Lucia's pizzeria offers a nicer setting for people to sit and eat their pizza, which is gourmet and priced accordingly.

The final stop, or first, depending on which way you think of this train of pizza shops running through town, is Steve's Calzones. A calzone, which means "pants leg" in Italian, is essentially a folded pizza and is also reportedly invented in Naples.

Steve Hatzis, owner, said he learned how to make his calzones and pizzas by working in European restaurants. His business is perhaps the newest on the block of pizza restaurants in Winchester, having just started up in April, but business is steady.

Describing the calzone sitting before him on the table, Tom Scanlon, who works in Winchester, said it's "tasty and a there's a healthy selection."

"It's huge," he added, summing up the basic appeal of the calzone.

1950s, conservatives were in the majority with their belief in balanced budgets, public service before private interests. I enjoyed those years and hope they come back."

His strong faith in the coming generation allowed his to begin letting go in the late 1970s though he still championed many causes close to his heart. He still addressed many a Town Meeting in his indomitable pursuit of excellence for his beln of Winchester.

In 1980 he was named Winchester Outstanding Citizen of the Year by the Chamber of Commerce. At that time he was also instrumental in getting the town to establish a Council on Youth and also worked to create a year round job bank at the high school.

During his long stint on the state legislature, it was often suggested that his integrity might lend itself to the office of Governor of Massachusetts. Despite the urgings of his colleagues, Mr. Chadwick in his no-nonsense manner answered, "You need the type of personality that mixes easily and knows how to turn on the charm. I'm much more interested in getting the job done. I don't feel I am right for the job of Governor.'

In his later years, Harry never lost his pleasure in a drive to The Square to shop, chat with his countless friends and to simply enjoy the town that he virtually dedicated his life to.

He never married, but his passing cuts as deeply as the death of a parent — for it is obvious now that WE were his family!

Harrison E. Chadwick died Thursday, Aug. 12, 1993. He was 90.

Raised in Winchester, Mr. Chadwick graduated from Harvard University. As a captain in the U.S. Army, he served as a logistical expert during World War II. Mr. Chadwick had a brief career in the automobile industry in Detroit, Mich., before being elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1946, where he served 14 terms.

During his term as representative, Mr. Chadwick served on the State Crime Commission, was an active member of the Transportation Committee and was involved in all phases of metropolitan area planning. He convinced the heavily Democratic majority that the legislative process should be computerized, and that an electronic roll call system should be implemented for efficiency and accountability.

Mr. Chadwick served as a delegate to state and national Republican Conventions, and supported Republican activities and organizations at local, state and national levels.

Mr. Chadwick will be remembered by family as "...a hardworking, thoroughly honest, fiscal conservative whose credo was 'pro bono publico'."

He leaves his sister, Elizabeth Mitchell of Winchester; his brother, John Chadwick of Maryland; and his nieces and nephews, Vaughn Carlile of Kentucky, Adele Beggs of Wellesley Hills, Julia Varriale of Weston, John Chadwick of Connecticut, William H.L. Mitchell III of New Hampshire, and E. Chadwick Mitchell of Northboro. Also survived by friends, Evander and Leslie French of Winchester.

A memorial service was held Monday, Aug. 16, in the First Congregational Church, Winchester.

Donations may be made to the Winchester Council on Youth, c/o Recreation Department, Department 154, Horn Pond-Brook Road, Winchester, MA 01890.

John F. Petitti Jr.

Boston police sergeant

John F. Petitti Jr., police sergeant for 35 years for the City of Boston, died Sunday, Aug. 15, 1993, in his home. He was 71.

Born and raised in Dorchester, Mr. Petitti graduated from Mechanic Arts High School and Northeastern University as a member of the Sigma Epsilon Rho Honor Society. He lived in Winchester 38 years.

During World War II he served with the U.S. Navy as an aviation cadet. He trained at Williams College, Austin Pey College, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the Glenview Naval Air Station. He later transferred to P.T. boats and served as quartermaster of P.T. 287 M.T.B., Squad 23, in the Pacific Theater.

Mr. Petitti worked in the Boston Naval Shipyard as a machinist trainee, and later became an apprentice draftsman at Bethlehem Steel Co. in Quincy.

In 1946, he was assigned to the South End District for the Boston Police Department. He later became a detective in the Special Service Squad and the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. After his promotion to sergeant, Mr. Petitti served in areas D and A.

Upon his retirement, he was chief radio supervisor in the operations division at Boston Police Headquarters.

A member of the Boston Police Department Patrolman's Association, Mr. Petitti was a member of the Superior Officer's Federation of the Boston Police Department and the Boston Police Relief Association. He was a charter member of the P.T. Boats Association, a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. In addition, Mr. Petitti was a member of the Northeastern University Alumni Association and the Winchester Sons of Italy.

He leaves his wife, Julia V. (Vespucci) Petitti; his daughters, Phyllis Petitti of Belmont and Lois Petitti of Winchester; his sisters, Mary L. Dowling of Winchester and Rosalie A. Curcio of Belmont; and his brother, Joseph N. Petitti of Arlington.

He was the son of the late John F. Petitti and Grace (Seminara) Petitti.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday, Aug. 18, in St. Mary's Church, Winchester.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Winchester.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 209 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Arrangements were made by the Lane Funeral Home, Winchester.

committee Aug. 5, Tashjian said she felt strongly that teachers needed to start seeing themselves as researchers, as professionals. A teacher should be able to adapt to any given situation in a classroom and work from the basis of what would be best for that classroom at that time, regardless of what old or new theories on teaching methods were popular, she said.

Tashjian stated she thought of herself as an advocate in the system both for students, teachers and parents. She said she is an advocate for whoever needs an advocate.

"I think that'a a major role for a principal to play," she said.

Joanne Dolan, a special education teacher in Winchester who was on the search committee, asked Tashjian what her philosophy was on the arts and physical education in school.

"It's critical." Tashjian said, adding that since it is known there are left brain and right brain-oriented students, an effort should be made to allow for both types of learning. The arts and physical education give left brain students more of an outlet. she said.

"The left brain students don't sometimes see themselves as smarter,' Tashjian said. "I would want to see how we could make every child happy to be in school."

Asked whether she thought she would have any difficulty adapting to the programs here since she would be coming from a private school to a public school, Tashjian said she saw no difficulty and really only slight differences, like legal issues and the student/teacher ratio.

Independent schools, however, have public relation departments while public schools usually don't, Tashjian said, adding that public schools should have more public relations so they can get the good news out.

Fitzgerald said the agreement was signed with Tashjian shortly after the final interview Aug. 12. She will officially start as the new principal at Muraco school Aug. 23.

Tashjian comes to Winchester from a position of lower school head at Brimmer and May School. She has been a writer for special education programs, had seventeen years teaching experience, fourteen years experience as a curriculum coordinator, and has been a guest speaker at Lesley College, Pine Manor College, Emmanuel College and Boston College.

She received her B.A. from the University of Massachusetts, has teacher and principal certification for students K-8 and is currently working on her M.A. in education at Boston College.

Library airs renovation plans

most of the doors is too small, the aisles too narrow and some of the book stacks too tall for a person in a wheelchair. Bathrooms are designed to go on all levels of the library.

The new designs virtually eliminate those problems, Thompson said, while adding more aesthetics to the library. One major new addition will be a new, larger elevator that will provide access to all levels of the library.

"And we'll make the building appear much more open and friendlier to the outside from the inside," Thompson said, adding that many new windows, including a large skylight, will allow that feeling.

His firm is shooting for a finished building which a first time visitor to the library will be able to understand without asking, he said, adding that they want the architecture of the building itself to give clues about the organization.

"Good architecture explains itself," he said.

Nancy Becker, a disabled Winchester resident, told Thompson through a sign language interpreter that she was glad he mentioned a new elevator because she hasn't been to the library in some time because of the restriction of the current elevator.

Having been built in 1931, the library currently doesn't comply with the regulations of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). The building has to be in compliance with the act by January, 1995, at the latest.

Becker also posed the question of whether the designs included fully automatic doors, to which Thompson said the budget as it is would not allow the expense, but maybe partially automatic doors within and without the building could be considered.

Kristine Lacey, a Winchester resident whose daughter uses a wheelchair, also expressed approval of the elevator designs, and said her daughter will be very pleased to be able to get to the top floors. Her daughter has wanted to see what's on the top floors for some time now, she said.

State aid is up

bill.

The town received an additional $90,000, to support career incentives for continuing education for police officers, under the Quinn bill but this amount was offset by a corresponding cut in aid for transportation. Winchester recently moved to a fee system to support the busing of school children who live more than two miles from school. Thus, says Maurer, the cut was expected. "The amount of reimbursement is a function of how much is spent," explained Maurer.

Maurer said that the increase in state aid, coupled with increases in the town's receipts would ease some of the budget shortfalls the town forecast for the future.

Softball playoffs heat up

Seedings hold true in early postseason

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

The playoff seedings proved to be accurate as the Winchester Men's Softball League opened its postseason festivities last week. With the exception of a slight upset in the B League, the top seeds in both the A and B Leagues advanced into the semifinals, which were scheduled to run throughout this week at Ginn Field.

MEN'S SOFTBALL

In the B League, fifth-place Highland Cafe came back from a first-game loss to Patriot Trucking to win the best-of-3 series 2-1. Highland blew out Patriot in Game 2 before slipping past the Cafe in the third game Thursday night.

In the other B League quarterfinal, the Kingsmen whipped The Bench in two straight. In Game 1, the Kingsmen won 12-9 behind the play of left fielder Brian Carroll, who made several diving catches while going 3 for 4 at the plate. Among his hits were a wall double and a deep two-run homer.

In Game 2, it was all Kingsmen, as the Landscapers romped 24-1. Mike Carr, Ed Conley and Peter Dizio led the rout, as all but one Kingsmen batter had at least one hit.

The Kingsmen stayed hot in the semis, where the team met second-place Casey's Roughriders. In Game 1, pitcher Jim DiTulio led the offense with two homers in a 3-for-4 performance. Casey's made a seventh-inning comeback to cut the score from 11-3 to the 11-7 final.

Monday night, Casey's squared the series at 1-1, winning an 11-inning thriller. Doug Jordan's two-out RBI single was followed by a three-run shot from Pat Looby as Casey's won 10-6.

John's Sewer and Pipe, the B League regular season champion, came from behind to defeat Highland in Game 1 of their semifinal series Monday night. Trailing 9-8 in the bottom of the seventh, John's got a one-out single from Mike MacIntosh and a wall double from Brian Day to set up the rally.

Highland chose to walk Bob Carley intentionally, but after a short popup to right, John Cannata came through with a clutch game-tying single to center. With two outs, Dave Johnson's grounder was booted in the infield, allowing Day to cross the plate with the winning run.

Top seeds advance in A League

In the A League, Carroll Insurance Agency swept the Pirates in the quarters, then continued its defense of the league title thanks to a clutch hit from 62-year-old Tony Dellasala.

In the semis against second-place Noble Construction, the CIA found itself short of players when player-coach Tony Menounas went down with a serious knee injury. The rules state that the team must take an out in the spot of a player who is unable to continue, so the CIA summoned Dellasala from the bench to hit with the bases loaded and two outs in the fourth. Dellasala ripped a clean single to plate the go-ahead run. Carroll went on to add two more runs en route to a 6-4 Game 1 final.

In Game 2, Rob Collins' three-run homer was the big blow as Carroll slipped past Noble 9-6. The CIA opened a commanding 2-0 lead in the best-of-5 series.

Dattilo Landscaping defeated Sorrenti Club two games to one in an exciting first-round playoff series. Game 1 saw Sorrenti coming back from a 10-1 deficit to tie the game 10-10 on a clutch RBI single by Frank Sorrenti with two out in the top of the seventh.

In the last of the inning, Sorrenti escaped from a bases-loaded, no-out situation thanks to a fabulous 6-2-5 double play. But in the eighth, Dattilo got three hits to score the game-winner.

Sorrenti put the pressure on with a 10-2 win in Game 2, but the veteran Dattilo squad rebounded with a convincing Game 3 win to move on to a semifinal meeting with first-place Wilde Insurance.

In Game 1, Monday at Ginn, Wilde pitcher Jim Doherty scattered eight hits before departing for ace reliever Ken "Da Body" Boyd, who struggled but gained the save in a 10-5 Tribe victory. Albie Cail's single and Mike Baxter's mammoth double started a six-run sixth which put the game out of reach. Ben Budds was 3 for 3 for Wilde.

Winchester F.C. player Joe Armstrong goes high in the air to head a ball over a Billerica opponent during Winchester's 4-3 loss in the championship game of the Suburban Twilight Soccer League playoffs at Wayland High School on Aug. 10.

Winchester F.C. stopped in final

Billerica captures 2-OT thriller

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

It wasn't the way they hoped it would end, but the members of the Winchester Football Club managed to hold their heads high after a 4-3 double-overtime loss against Billerica in the final of the Suburban Twilight Soccer League playoffs.

MEN'S SOCCER

Stephen Reeve, the team's player-coach, said the championship came down to Winchester's inability to control one player, former Merrimack College star Joe LoCoco, who torched the locals for three goals, including the overtime game-winner.

"It was probably one of our best games," said Reeve. "I felt we were every bit as good as them, maybe better, but we just couldn't keep up with LoCoco. He was fabulous."

The game, played at Wayland High School on Aug. 10, was a seesaw battle from start to finish. Winchester took an early lead on a strike by Dave Rodriquez, who picked up a rebound of a strong Vandy French shot and slid it into an open net.

Winchester's objective was to control the midfield, and Reeve felt they managed to do that. The one misplay came at a bad time, however, as Billerica and LoCoco took advantage of a slight lapse to tie it with 30 seconds left in the first half.

Billerica forged ahead in the second half on LoCoco's second goal, but Winchester tied it with 15 minutes left when Reeve connected with French on a direct kick which the Brandeis star headed into the net.

"Vandy had his best game of the year in the air," said Reeve. "He was outjumping people all night for balls."

Winchester had a solid chance to go ahead in the first overtime, but a Billerica defender made an "excuse me" save. Reeve passed deep in the right corner to Paul Capodanno, who recrossed the ball to French in front of the goal. French beat the goalie by hammering a header, but the ball struck a Billerica defender squarely in the chest and bounced out of play.

> WINCHESTER F.C. PLAYER/COACH

The game went to a second overtime, where French made a bid to end it right off the whistle. Seeing the Billerica goalie out of position as the referee signaled for play to resume, French lofted a ball from the center circle which just slipped past the far post.

Billerica managed a goal midway through the extra session, before LoCoco stole the ball at midfield and beat Winchester keeper Steve Mueller for a 4-2 lead. French scored on an indirect kick with two minutes left to account for the final score.

"It was one of those games where we didn't feel badly after the game," said Reeve. "We were one step up from last year (when Winchester lost in the semifinals)."

According to Reeve, Winchester's off-season goal will be to add a little more depth to the squad, concentrating specifically in the midfield.

"We're probably one year away from consistency," said Reeve, "but we hope to have a couple of old faces rejoin the team next season. That would free up a few players to move back to their normal position."

Reeve said the team, which received support from The Soccer Stop and Yankee Yogurt this season, hopes to officially join the Winchester Soccer Club before next season. Such a move would allow easier access to fields for both practices and games.

Winchester's 15-16 summer stars exit with class

JIM McKENZIE

Realistically, of course, they shouldn't have come this close.

There was no way the small town of Winchester could field a team of 15- and 16-year-old baseball players capable of making it to the championship game at the prestigious Tournament of Champions in the Lou Tompkins Baseball League.

Was there?

There was certainly no way the team could compete without several of its top players, who were out of state due to football camp or family vacations.

Was there?

But there was definitely no way this young Sachem squad, which had talented hitters but had survived on the strength of a tremendous pitching staff, could manage to play four games in six days without three of its top five hurlers.

Was there?

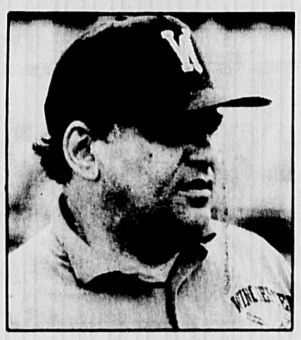

There was.

In a wonderful final week of the summer baseball season, Winchester coach Joe Doto was faced with a managerial nightmare. Six of his top position players were not available for the Tournament of Champions. Doto was left with roster of 10 players, some of whom would be seeing considerable playing time for the first time all summer.

But when what remained of his team showed up for the opening T of C game, wearing wildly striped stirrups of all different colors and chanting war songs while warming up, Doto looked to a group of parents nearby and said, "We can win this thing."

Winchester ultimately fell just short in its gold medal dream, dropping a heart-wrenching 2-1 decision to an outstanding Framingham squad on Sunday. But along the way, Doto found out a lot about this group of kids.

He found out that his roster was chock full of kids who could play. He found he had a group of players which would never, ever quit. But most of all, Doto discovered a group of kids who were gentlemen first. That, to Doto,

JOE DOTO
All-Stars coach

was the most important point.

He could amaze observers with the team's 15-7 final record, which it achieved despite suffering a five-game slide midway through the year. He could tell of the team's ridiculously low earned run average, or how the team had at least two qualified starters at each position.

But Doto chose to speak of the kids as men. Never once did a Winchester player get thrown out of a game for arguing with an ump. Never once did a player fire his bat in disgust at striking out. They came close, Doto admitted, but they did what the best ballplayers always do.

They let their bats and gloves do the talking.

Joe Doto found out a lot about his players. He found out that Jarrod Galante, who threw a one-hit, five-strikeout, no-earned run gem but lost 2-1 in the championship game, had the makings of a very good high school pitcher. He found that Mike Pacheco could come up in several big situations and get key hits time after time. When Justin Wright came up with a huge two-out, two-run single in a 9-2 win over Cambridge, he found that Wright not only was a steady infielder, but he had a sneaky bat as well.

He found out that Billy Shannon could fill in for Rodrigo Serrano, perhaps the team's best everyday player, and provide a strong glove at first base. He also found out that starters like Mike McGreenery, Matt Elio, Jamie Doto and Paul Wile could step into leadership roles and show the way to younger players.

Winchester may have lost the championship game, but Doto sincerely believes the players will be better for it.

"This team is going to pick up two or three wins a year on guts alone," said Doto. "Their togetherness and teamwork is really there. This team is young. Next year (at the varsity level), they will be a very good team. But in two years, they're going to be one heck of a club."

Doto said that in the long run, Winchester baseball could benefit from the fact that so many of its top players were away.

"This is the training and the learning experience for them," said Doto. "When you look at the overall experience with so many of out big guns out of action, we really did quite a job. Even with a tough loss, they're ready for next year."

Desmarteaux pair takes WTA tennis crown

SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Gloria and Lou Desmarteaux won the 1993 E. Whitney Gray Husband and Wife Tennis Tournament for the second time in the last three years with a 7-6, 6-2 victory over Brenda and Jim Rice at the Packer Courts Aug. 8. Using a variety of strokes, the Desmarteaux pair kept the Rices off balance and were able to break through in the tie-breaker, winning easily 7-1. In the second set the winners played very steady tennis and as a result won the tournament without losing a set.

In the quarterfinals the Desmarteaux duo beat Marianne Von Feldt and Andy Oxenhorn 7-6, 6-2. Judi and Gordon Nicholson defeated Abbie and Joe Culhane 6-2, 6-4. The Rices got by Bonnie and Mark Totman 7-5, 6-3 and Debbie and Dan Carson beat Pinky and Al Samoiloff 6-2, 6-3. In the semis the Desmarteaux team beat the Nicholsons 6-3, retired. The Rices pulled out a marathon three-setter over the Carsons in what may have been the best match of the tournament.

In the consolation bracket the semis found Donna and Scott Campbell taking out Kathy and Stu Koman 6-3, 6-4, while the team of Carolyn and Craig Potter beat Nancy and Ed Hintlian 6-0, 6-1. The Campbells won the final in an exciting three-set match, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

This year's event, well run by Paula and Joe Ferrone, had 38 teams. Started 23 years ago as a social event, it has evolved into a very competitive mixed doubles challenge.

The Winchester Tennis Association is once again having a very successful season and will be coordinating the upcoming Junior Tournament and Town Tennis Championships. The Association offered its thanks to President Bob Collins and his staff for their efforts.

Bambino teams grab 2 golds

NewPro, Rotary head to Tournament of Champions

The final Trophy Weekends took place in the Lou Tompkins Bambino Baseball League last weekend, and Winchester teams had great success. In the 12-year-old division, NewPro Windows captured the gold medal, assuring the No. 1 seed on the Tournament of Champions. The 10-year-old squad, the Rotary Club, also will be highly seeded in the T of C, as the team joined NewPro in winning a gold. Dugout Sports, Winchester's 11-year-old all-star team, was bounced out by Reading in the semifinals.

BAMBINO BASEBALL

NewPro had its hitting shoes on all weekend, as the local Nine thumped Westford 8-2 in the final after rolling past Bedford 13-1 in the semis. Matt McGowan got the starting nod for the all-important Gold Medal game. With two out in the Winchester first, Capone singled and Chad Carroll doubled, scoring Capone. Westford tied the game on a walk and a fielder's choice and a single. The tie would not last long, however, as in the second, the thunder roared.

McGowan led with a rocket single off the top of the fence. Matt Hurley sacrificed, Colin Barden walked, Jason Lanzillo singled, J.A. Koslowski reached on an error, Tom DiCarlo walked, and Carroll and Justin Barauskas singled for four runs and a 5-2 lead.

In the fourth, Capone relieved McGowan and retired Westford. In the bottom of the inning, Koslowski led with a single and was doubled off first on a Nakamoto line shot to shortstop. Westford seemed to perk up a bit after the great defensive play, but its excitement was short-lived, as Capone homered, Carroll doubled, and Barauskas homered for three more runs and an 8-1 lead. Westford got a homer in the sixth and the game ended 8-2.

Winchester's opponent for Saturday's semifinal in Natick was Bedford. Bedford had been a hot team for the second and third rounds and is coached by the venerable Lou Tompkins. On this day, however, they were no match for the Newpro team. Brian Curry tossed a complete-game victory for Winchester. Curry gave up just two hits while walking nobody. Winchester scored six times in the first inning on hits by Koslowski, DiCarlo, Capone, Carroll, and Barauskas to start the game. Curry reached on an error and Lanzillo added an RBI single.

In the second, Winchester added to its lead as Capone homered before Carroll, Higgins and Curry singled, giving NewPro a 9-0 lead. In the third, Koslowski and DiCarlo got back-to-back run-producing hits. Winchester ended the game in the fifth when Koslowski homered, DiCarlo walked, Capone hit his second homer, Carroll and Barauskas singled, Curry walked and Barden singled to make the score 13-1 and end the game in the fifth. Winchester pounded out 19 hits in less than five complete innings.

Winchester opens the T of C with Dracut on Tuesday night. Waltham and Framingham comprise the other teams in Winchester's brackett. Reading, Westford, Brookline, and Bedford round out the field for the A division championship tournament.

Rotary stars earn gold

The Winchester Rotary 10-year-old All-Star team captured the gold trophy by defeating Central Cambridge 9-2 at Winchester's West Side Field on Sunday, Aug. 15. Eric Axon was the Winchester starter, picking up the victory with three innings of shutout pitching. James Kearney earned the save with three impressive innings of relief. Combined, the Winchester pitchers held Central Cambridge to 2 hits.

David Notartomaso, Rugo Santini, Kearney and Mike Trakimas all delivered key hits for Winchester.

Trakimas also had the defensive play of the game as he alertly backed up first to pick off a misplayed ball and fired to catcher John Newhall to cut down the baserunner ending a Cambridge rally.

Winchester qualified for the final after whipping Belmont 17-2 Saturday in Winchester.

Winchester scored 11 runs in the top of the first inning on its way to the blowout. The game was ended by the mercy rule in the fourth inning. The Winchester victory was picked up by starter Luke Killion with relief help by Santini. Winchester pounded out 11 hits and took advantage of several Belmont errors to record its eighth consecutive victory. Killion, Kellen Baker and John Newhall all had two hits apiece and Trakimas delivered a clutch triple in the first inning for the hosts.

Winchester 10 Westford 0

Winchester tuned up for the Trophy Weekend by whipping the previously unbeaten Westford Nine 10-0 on August 9. Killion was the victorious pitcher, hurling three shutout innings. Eric Axon picked up the save, holding Westford hitless in his three-inning stint.

Winchester pounded out 14 hits including four by Killion and two hits each by Axon, Danny Nelson and Newhall. Killion and Newhall had solo home runs among their hits.

Winchester 13 Westford 1

The 10-year-old Stars hosted Westford on Aug. 11 and coasted to a 13-1 victory. Kearney started and held the visitors to one hit in his three innings on the mound.

Killion and David Notartomaso paced the Winchester attack with three hits each. Killion homered for the home team for the second straight game. Eric Axon, Kellen Baker and James Kearney all had two hits each for the victors.

Dugout bumped in semis

Winchester opened the Third Round Trophy Weekend against Reading. Reading's pitching and hitting was too tough for the Dugout to overcome. Robby Nagle pitched three solid innings, keeping Winchester within striking distance of Reading. The All-Stars' bats fell short, however, resulting in an 8-4 loss. Pete Dupuis' great defensive plays in the third inning helped keep Reading from breaking the game open. Winchester had just five hits, with two, including a double, coming from Paul Koslowski. The All-Stars got doubles from Billy Wolfe and Matt Malatesta and a single from Matt Spang.

Dracut 11 Winchester 10

The 11-year-old All-Stars were involved in an exciting, high-scoring regular season game played at West Side Field on Aug. 11. Dracut pounded out 11 hits including three home runs, en route to the win.

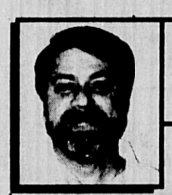

Winchester trailed 11-5 entering the sixth, but put together a huge rally which fell just short. The All-Stars sent 11 batters to the plate in the sixth. Malatesta reached on an error, Dupuis singled, Matt Kenney walked, and Spang, Brian Sullivan, and Wolfe followed with singles. Joe Bussichella and Malatesta then walked, bringing Winchester within one run. But with the bases loaded, two outs and a 3-2 count on the batter, Dracut got a fly ball to right to end the game.

The All-Stars got nine hits in the contest. Dupuis, Spang, Wolfe and Brian Sullivan each contributed two hits. Jon Corey had one hit.

Winchester 5 Dracut 4

The Dugout Stars traveled to Dracut on Aug. 4 to complete a two-game series. Winchester came away with a hard-fought 5-4 win, thanks to a wild double play turned in the bottom of the sixth inning.

The All Stars led throughout the game and had a 5-3 going into the last inning. Dracut loaded the bases with one out and down by two runs. The Dracut batter hit a sharp line drive single to left, where Pat Sullivan made a diving attempt to grab the liner. The ball popped loose from his glove and one run scored. Sullivan regrouped, however, and fired to Dave Lynch who tagged the runner at second and in turn fired home to Kenney to cut down the tying run with a game-ending double play. Koslowski pitched a solid game, scattering six hits. Brian Sullivan and Kenney had one hit a piece.

ANTI-INFLAMMATORY DRUGS

Whether you've recently injured your foot or are coping with a chronically painful condition, chances are your doctor has prescribed a pain-killer that also acts as an anti-inflammatory agent. Besides reducing pain, anti-inflammatory drugs can help tissues heal quicker by reducing chafing and pressure on affected areas. The most well-known of these drugs are aspirin and ibuprofen. They are often referred to as NSAIDS, or nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, to differentiate them from steroids, which also have anti-inflammatory effects. Corticosteroids such as cortisone are the most potent of the anti-inflammatory drugs and may be prescribed for joint pain.

It's hard to ignore foot pain, injuries and conditions, especially when every step places weight and pressure on the affected area. Don't wait for the pain and the problem to disappear. Most likely they won't and you'll be left with a worse condition. Whatever is causing your feet to hurt, we hope you'll turn to professional help from a foot care specialist. We welcome your call for full service medical, surgical, sports medicine, & routine care at 677 Massachusetts Ave., Arlington (641-0107). House call appointments available.

P.S. Acetaminophen is a pain killer, but it does not have any anti-inflammatory properties.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN YOUR AREA IN THE COMING WEEKS

NCNS offers toddler /parent program for fall

Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, located at 21 Church St., will be offering a parent-attended toddler program this fall from 9:30 to 11 a.m. on Friday mornings for eight weeks beginning Oct. 1. This program offers parents a unique opportunity to experience their child's delight in his/her growing social and creative-play skills and to share his/her first school experience. The cost of the course is $60. For more information call Jan DiPerna, director, at 729-8081.

The Arthur Griffin Center hosts wildlife exhibition

The International Wildlife Photographer of the Year Competition, organized by BBC Wildlife Magazine and The Natural History Museum, London, has selected The Arthur Griffin Center for Photographic Art, in Winchester, for its first tour in the United States. This exhibition will travel from the Houston Museum of Natural History to the National Audubon headquarters in Washington, D.C., to The Griffin Center, from June 24 through Aug. 29, and then on to the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

Wildlife Photographer of the Year, a exhibition for children and adults, boasts the best of contemporary wildlife photography. The touring exhibition, sponsored by British Gas, includes 81 award-winning photographs, chosen from more than 10,000 entries from 40 different countries, and 10 photographs from their junior division. This all-color, moving exhibition, carries the hope of all its participants that their photography will awaken the world to the need to protect the wildlife and wild places everywhere on earth.

Out of the 15 categories, the most popular was Animal Portraits, followed closely by Composition and Form, Wild Places, In Praise of Plants and Animal Behavior: Birds — each of which attracted more than 1,000 entries. Least subscribed to were Underwater World, Primates in Peril and Urban Wildlife. No prizes were awarded in this latter category, or for Humorous Views.

Hours for the exhibition are Thursday, Friday and Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m., and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Center member fee is $2, $3 for seniors, $4 for nonmembers, and children under 18 are admitted free. The center is wheelchair accessible.

Winchester class of 1953 to hold 40th reunion

The 1953 class of Winchester High is planning a class reunion, to take place Oct. 22 to 24. It is suggested that members register early. To make reservations contact Joan McNeill Bird, 8 Lawrence St., Winchester, 01890 at 729-2019.

Several members of the class are missing. If you have any information as to their whereabouts please contact McNeill. They are as follows:
Walter Barstow, Dave Burke, James Callahan Jr., Joseph Canty, Phyllis Chapman Eix, Robert "Smitty" Clark, Everett Combes, John Connolly, Diane Cooper, Charles DiSilva, Richard Drohan, George Fudge, Catherine Goss Newhouser, Anne Hammond White, Kenneth Hiscoe, Donald MacFeeley, Katherine McGoff, Jennifer Meigs Saunders, Louise Migliaccio, Mike Mitchell, Donald J. Murphy, John Notemeyer, Dorothy Pearce Bursey, Frank J. Procopio Jr., Norma Skaling, Clarence Swonger, Joyce Thomas Johnson, Dominick Tofuri, Gail Watson, Nancy Wilson Hussey, and Steve Yale.

The reunion committee looks forward to seeing all of the class members this coming October.

Arthur Griffin's photographic legacy: 1933 to 1993

Held from Sept. 12 through Nov. 14, a major exhibit of Arthur Griffin's photography redefines the work and reputation of one of New England's first photojournalists. Long known for his classic color landscapes, this exhibition of almost 100 images, reveals the breadth of Griffin's talent and work in black and white fine art and documentary photography. Among the most significant: a series of vintage bromoils, portraits and landscapes, each beautifully "painted" and finished by Griffin in the '30s. Boston's neighborhoods, people, culture, and history, in the '30s, '40s and '50s. New England sports heroes and teams (remember Jimmy Foxx?) artists (featuring Norman Rockwell) and visitors (Joe Lewis, Winston Churchill). Griffin's pioneering color work is also exhibited including a series of first color photographs ever taken (in '39) of Ted Williams; the first color photographs ever to appear in the Boston Globe; and early dye transfer photographs of the New England landscape.

Auditions for 'Our Town'

The Winchester Players will hold auditions for their November production of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play "Our Town" on Tuesday, Aug. 31, and Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church, 478 Main St. (corner of Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway).

"Our Town," one of the classics of the American stage, is directed by Karen Barton and produced by Robert Hallisey and Alice Connelly. Two copies of the script are on file with the reference librarian at the Winchester Public Library.

The cast will rehearse evenings on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Performances are the first two weekends in November. For more information about auditions, or about opportunities to work backstage, call Robert Hallisey at 729-1409.

Career transition

A career transition networking and support group meets every Thursday, except the second of each month, at St. Eulalia's Church, 50 Ridge St. The meetings are held 7 to 9 p.m. in the church's conference room and are open and free. For more information call 729-8220.

WHS Class of 1944 to hold reunion

Winchester High School Class of 1944 has begun plans for a 50th anniversary reunion to be held in the fall of 1994. Any member of the class, graduate or otherwise, who would like to be notified of final details but who may have reason to believe his or her current address is not on file with reunion organizers, is asked to send address information at this time to Joan Hanson Blake, 45 Pine Ridge Road, Reading, 01867.

Register now for fall at the Winchester Community Music School

The Winchester Community Music School is currently registering students for lessons and classes beginning next Sept. The school offers classical and popular music for all levels of experience and all ages, from pre-school to senior citizens.

Lessons are available in banjo, baritone, electric bass, bassoon, cello, clarinet, flute, french horn, guitar, electric keyboard, oboe, percussion, recorder, saxophone, special needs, trombone, trumpet, tuba, viola, violin, and voice.

WCMS offers classes in music and movement for ages 3-7, music theory, composition, and music appreciation. A new community education course, Guided Tour to Musical Masterpieces, is planned for fall. Small ensembles of similar or mixed instruments are also available, and WCMS maintains a list of adults interested in forming chamber music groups. For information and a 1993-94 brochure, call 721-2950.

Cooperative Theatre announces auditions for "Annie."

Winchester Senior Cooperative Theatre announces that its fall production will be "Annie" with music by Charles Strouse and lyrics by Martin Charnin. Auditions for students in grades 6, 7, and 8 will be held on Thursday, Sept. 9, and Friday, Sept. 10, at McCall Auditorium, 458 Main Street from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. There are many parts for both boys and girls and all students in grades 6, 7 and 8 are encouraged to audition. "Annie" will be performed at McCall Auditorium Nov. 19, 20 and 21. For more information call 729-0224.

Volunteer drivers needed to fight cancer

The American Cancer Society seeks volunteer drivers for its "Road to Recovery Program."

Many cancer patients have daily radiation or chemotherapy treatments, and their friends and family cannot provide transportation. Volunteers give anywhere from one hour a month to two days a week, as their schedules allow, and ensure that patients make it to their treatments.

For more information call the American Cancer Society office at 643-3010.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

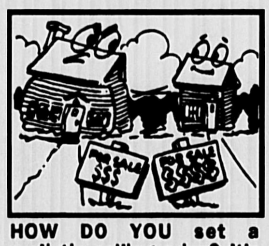

ANN BLACKHAM, CRB, CRS

WRONG PRICING LOGIC

QUESTION: Why do so many homeowners go wrong when they try to set a realistic selling price?

ANSWER: Most people base their price tags on these factors: Original price, cost of improvements, hoped-for profit and what they think similar homes are bringing. The original price, improvements, and hoped for profit only determine whether you gain or lose, but they have nothing to do with the right price to produce a sale. Prices of other homes? Most of the time you only hear of the asking price, not the selling price.

Solution: Consult a local Realtor whose business it is to KNOW how much property can and will bring.

HOW DO YOU set a realistic selling price? It's best to have professional help in this vital matter.

RECREATION NEWS

Space found for Tumblin'Tots classes

Contrary to the information appearing in last week's paper, the Recreation Department has been able to locate a facility for its popular Tumblin' Tots program. On Monday mornings beginning Sept. 20 there will be four classes taught by Jennifer McGrath for those ages 2 and 3. All classes will be at Gymnastics and More, 8 Micro Drive, Woburn, off Houlton St. near the Winchester town line. This new gymnastics facility boasts the latest in gymnastics equipment for both the tiny tot as well as the accomplished gymnast. Class times and fees will be available shortly at the Recreation Department. Call 721-7125 for further information.

New Wedge Pond Beach hours begin in August

As summer winds down and darkness comes earlier, the hours for Wedge Pond will be shortened. Beginning Aug. 22, the Wedge Pond Beach hours will be from noon to 6 p.m. The beach will close for the season on Monday, Sept. 6, Labor Day.

Fall brochure in the mail

The new fall activities brochure for Recreation and Community Education is in the mail to those who have previously taken classes with the department. Those who are new to the town or would like a brochure mailed to them may call the Recreation Department at 721-7125. Brochures are also available in the library, Purity Supreme, the town hall, and other locations in town. Registration begins immediately.

Free step Reebok demonstration

This demonstration is designed for new students of Focus on Fitness or the curious. The instructor will demonstrate the versatility of bench stepping and then invite the audience to join in. Class is on Thursday, Sept. 9, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Focus on Fitness classes begin the week of Sept. 13.

How we spent our summer

As the day camp staff and campers near the end of their program, they would like to take a brief look back on how they spent their summer.

Housed in the Lynch Elementary School for the second year, the Recreation Department Day Camp has programs for children ages 3 through 14. Some of the day-to-day activities that campers experience are swimming lessons, tennis lessons, arts and crafts, and various sports. With an average of more than 200 campers in camp every two-week session, the school is always a bustle of activity.

Camp director Connie Maney, who is just completing her fourth year with the program, commented on some of the out-of-camp field trips that occurred this season. "The campers really enjoy the idea of having a field trip on a bus with their fellow campers. Some of the trips this summer included bowling and roller-skating at Wal-Lex in Waltham, a boat trip around Boston Harbor and stopping for a picnic at George's Island, and a trip to batting cages in Woburn. We also had many wonderful, talented and unique performers come into camp to entertain the children. Singer Cheryl Pongratz, Mrs. Tomato and her puppets, storyteller Leeney Del Seamonds and science expert Ken Pauly were just a few of the interesting and diverse performers that we had brought to camp."

Assistant director Marjorie Paulson attributes much of the camp's continued success on its outstanding staff. "Year after year we are deluged with applications from college and high school students, many of whom were campers here themselves. The camp staff is made up of a special group of very capable, caring young people. I'd have to say that one of my favorite times in camp is the first day. I love to see the campers getting out of their cars and everyone is so excited to see each other. It's this continuity that makes our camp so special."

Counselor Amy Binding's favorite day was the trip to George's Island. "The campers, as well as myself, learned a great deal about the history of George's Island and got a feel for what it must have been like to be a child 100 years ago." Camper Olivia Reeve loved when Winchester's own "Kidstock Program" came in and performed their own version of "The Littlest Mermaid." Many of the theme days, including Halloween Day, Wear Your Pajamas Day, Hat Day, and Wear Your Clothes Backwards Day were days the campers looked forward to. Most campers and many counselors participated and it was always a real treat to see who would come dressed up in the wildest costume.

The camp staff enjoyed the summer and all those involved in the programs, and look forward to seeing the campers again next year.

Winchester Recreation junior tennis remains unbeaten

On Friday, July 30, the Winchester Recreation Tennis Team traveled to the Winchester Swim and Tennis Club to engage in what was sure to be a hotly contested battle. Winchester Recreation Team edged the Swim Club Team 54-46. The change from clay to hard-surfaced courts was no problem for the junior netters. The Recreation Juniors were forced to play more matches than their counterparts due to a handful of absences. The under-manned boys' team was led by Nate Tarin, Adam Storeygard, Taeho Lim, John Potter, Aaron Quaday and Mike Breen-McKay. The girls were led by Allie and Liz Borges, Leslie and Lindsay Santini, Caitlin Butler, Anna Dimos and Marybeth Dooley.

The next test for the Recreation Department Team. was on Aug. 6. They traveled to Reading High School for a rematch with Reading's Recreation Department Team. Winchester triumphed in a close 11-8 match. The boys' team was led by Tim Malcolm and Nate Tarin. Other key contributors were Fritz Von Mering, Aaron Quaday, Mike Breen-McKay, Brian Purchia, Taeho Lim, Andy Tirella and Jon Fador. The girls were led by Caitlin Butler, Grace Bloodwell, Leslie and Lindsay Santini, Allie and Liz Borges, Marybeth Dooley, Anna Dimos and Vanessa Soughley.

Winchester's final summer match was Friday, Aug. 13, against the Winchester Swim Club.

Join Christopher Whitney and learn to tap up at the free STEP classes being offered by the Recreation Department on Sept. 9 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the High School. Classes start the week of Sept. 13

Breastfeeding support group offered

La Leche League of Winchester, a support group for breast-feeding mothers, holds meetings on the third Tuesday of each month in the Michelson Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church.

Nursing mothers are welcome to attend with their babies. Pregnant women considering breastfeeding are welcome.

The Winchester meeting is open to mothers from any community. Local group leaders are available to answer questions and provide information both at the monthly meetings and by telephone.

La Leche League is an international nonprofit organization whose purpose is to offer help and mother-to-mother support to women wanting to breastfeed their babies. The local group meetings provide an opportunity for nursing mothers to meet informally and share their experiences.

A lending library of books on childbirth, breastfeeding and child care is also available to members. For more information call Nancy at 729-1163, or Sophia, at 396-7329.

Parent to Parent's first Friday forum

How do we help our children meet their responsibilities without ending up in an angry battle? What can we do when we are concerned about our child's or adolescent's friendships? What are some effective ways of dealing with sibling conflicts?

Parent to Parent's first Friday Forum is a series of brown bag lunch meetings for parents interested in discussing questions like these. The meeting will be from noon to 1:30 p.m. on Sept. 3. All meetings will be held in the Winchester Public Safety Building (Police Station).

This series is offered free of charge. Funding has been provided by the En Ka Society and the Parents' Associations.

Free summer fitness at The Energy Connection

Summer is the perfect time to start a healthy and fit lifestyle. With less structure and stress, anyone can begin to enjoy the benefits of exercise. This summer, The Energy Connection is helping new participants set up a realistic program of diet and exercise, and as a special summer offer, new students are invited to attend an unlimited number of classes for their first week absolutely free.

Step Reebok classes are Mondays and Fridays at 8:45 a.m., and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. Aerobic workouts are Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m., and Saturdays at 8:30 a.m. The very popular muscle conditioning class is offered Wednesdays at 8:45 a.m. All weekday morning classes have babysitting.

For more information on The Energy Connection programs, call Marie Dacey at 729-7268.

St. Jude, thank you for favors granted. JPB

St. Jude, for answering my prayers I thank you and continue to pray to you. J.J.M.

Thank You Virgin Mother, Holy Spirit and St. Jude for favors granted. Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can obtain my goal. You who give me the Devine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all my instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separate from you, and in spite of all material illusions, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. Say this prayer 3 consecutive days and the favor requested will be granted, even if it may appear to be difficult. Publish this prayer immediately after the request is granted without mentioning the favor. Only your initials should appear at the bottom. B. T.

Thank you St Jude for prayers answer. B.O.

PARTY ANIMALS

These popular animal figures will add color to your front or back yard even if you're not throwing a party...and they don't require any care or clean-up! The foursome includes a flamingo (29" tall), goose (18" x 11"), pig (21" x 9½"), and duck (15" x 10"), all made from ¾" exterior grade plywood. Just trace the full-size traceable patterns onto wood, cut out, sand, paint, and attach stakes to the figures so they can be displayed in your lawn.

Birchwood Adult Community is a planned housing project designed for Empty Nesters 55 years of age or older. Birchwood is located in the quaint rural community of Northboro, Massachusetts. Single family one story homes are built on lots that range in size from 7,000 to 12,000 square feet. Homes with garages will vary from two bedrooms and one or two baths to three bedrooms with two baths. Homes are stick built on site with amenities such as: vaulted and cathedral ceiling; fully appliances kitchens, front porches, decks and screened porches.

Homes are priced from $113,900 to $129,900 in Phase I. In Phase II prices range from $129,900 to $149,900. There are eight different home models to choose from.

A recreation building centrally located in the Birchwood Adult Community will provide residents with a meeting place, a private library for reading, a kitchen and a large function room for all types of gatherings.

A fitness trail from the recreation center to the Assawt River will provide a private area to walk and spend quiet time at the picnic area along the river. Residents at Birchwood own their homes and have 100% easement rights to the lot that their homes are built on. There is a $50 per month Association Fee which pays for snow plowing, street lights and insurance.

Playing it safe

Use caution when buying head lice products

By Charlotte Whiting
HARTE-HANKS CORRESPONDENT

Back to school — reading, writing, arithmetic and, unfortunately, head lice.

In the United States, these nasty, little creatures afflict over six million school children annually.

According to Deborah Z. Altschuler, director of the National Pediculosis Association, a non-profit group that promotes standardized treatment for head lice, Americans spent over $80 million on medications to treat the problem last year alone.

The most frequently prescribed treatment is Kwell, manufactured by Reed and Carnrick of Piscataway, N.J. Kwell is also sold as the generic one percent lindane lotion. In use since 1957, doctors prescribe lindane for lice and scabies. Medical experts advise parents there are potentially serious side effects for using the medications.

Dr. Nancy Rosselot, a pediatrician at the MetroWest Medical Center in Framingham said, "Kwell is known to (cause neurological damage.) For that reason, many people now recommend Nix, an over-the-counter product. If any pregnant woman has a child with head lice, I always use Nix."

To treat head lice, Fosselot advises washing clothing, bedding and headwear in hot, soapy water and then setting it aside for two weeks. Also use a fine tooth comb to remove nits or eggs. If children get lice in their eyelashes, apply Vaseline or petroleum jelly once a day, usually at bedtime for a two weeks.

If children get lice in their eyelashes, apply Vaseline or petroleum jelly once a day, usually at bedtime for a two weeks.

Altschuler, who has testified before the Food and Drug Administration many times, said that the NPA knows of at least eight children who have mental and physical disorders with a probable connection to the use of lindane.

Boston personal injury attorney Thomas Kiley won a lawsuit against Barre International, the Baltimore, Md.-based manufacturer of the lindane lotion, representing a Lawrence woman who alleged her child suffered seizures, mental retardation, cerebral palsy and brain damage after using the product.

According to the allegations, a doctor had prescribed Kwell, but a pharmacist gave the woman the generic, lindane, without specific instructions on how to use it. Kiley said the woman should have been told to use the medication only once, but without instructions she applied it several days in a row, finishing the bottle.

"The basis of our claim was that this manufacturer had an independent obligation to provide instructions and warnings for the person who was going to administer the drug. The woman should have been told to apply it only once, that it's a poison or a pesticide and can cause neurological or brain injury. And not to reapply it without consulting a physician," said Kiley.

Barre declined to comment on the lawsuit. However, a spokesman did comment on the product itself. "The FDA regulates the product and has deemed it to be safe and effective. If it were otherwise, it would be off the market," said the spokesman.

Basics with a twist

Denims, plaids, and solids with some '60s flair dominate back-to-school fashions

By Elizabeth Christopher
HARTE-HANKS CORRESPONDENT

Shorter days signal the beginning of another back-to-school season when beaches empty and people file into malls, filling their school bags with more than just pencils and books.

The biggest fashion impulse this season is in denim. But according to Robert Rutkauskas, fashion director at Filene's, items being selected aren't the same old blue jeans.

"It's how the denim is pulled together with colored velvet or plaid," he said.

"During economic hard times people go back to the basics," said Janet Frawely, the children's buyer for Calvert's in Needham. "Denim is 'big' in everything from basic blue jeans to jumpers and dresses for little girls, to jackets and a rainbow of colored jeans for all ages."

The grunge-look is still popular in boys wear, with plaid flannel sweatshirts and oversized denim work shirts among the biggest selling items.

For little girls (sizes 4-6x), Oshkosh B'Gosh has updated the denim look with plaid trim on its line of overalls and jumpers.

And according to Diane Roy, manager of The Children's Place at the Burlington Mall, plaids are definitely "in." Among the hottest items are pleated skirts in bright yellow and red plaid.

"They're like kilts without the pin," said Roy.

Flower power has also influenced this year's fashions for girls of all ages, and floral prints are everywhere from leggings to tops to the oh-so-feminine garter-back dresses.

Although the hippy style may be "in" for junior girls, it won't cause any flashbacks. Today's "hippy" is wearing refined prints and solid colors. Parents may recognize the crocheted vest, but the psychedelic colors of the '60s and '70s have been toned down to deeper greens and cranberries.

"Textured body-suits, with sweetheart collars are among this year's 'must-have' items," said Cheryl Luna, buyer for junior sportswear at Calverts in Needham.

The Poet Shirt, with a wide ruffled collar and ruffled cuffs, is another hot item for juniors — apparel that gets its influence from the Woodstock era.

But according to Frawely, the hippy rage hasn't infiltrated the girl's department (sizes 7-14).

"Stirrups and leggings are still big for the younger girls and pre-teen," she said. Calvert's offers a great buy with a rainbow selection of colored stirrup pants for only $7.99 a pair.

Younger girls will be mixing and

From the playground patrol to pre-teen, trendy kids demand colorful clothes sliced with street-wise style as a taste of the '60s cruises into back-to-school fashion.

Back-to-school tip

It's so easy to add a treat to packed lunches, but calories and fat go up and food value goes down with such items as candy bars, snack cakes or cookies. For dessert, substitute sweets with food value, such as a few dates stuffed with walnuts, low-fat graham crackers, fig bars (now Newtons are no-fat and have a variety of fruit fillings), angel food cake (un-iced) and a few whole strawberries.

Merchants pushing educational products as an alternative to television

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

Newton Minow called it a vast wasteland. Some senators are trying to link it to violent behavior in juveniles. And some parents regard television as a feared instrument of educational inertia.

Into this backlash has jumped any number of interlopers, including publishers of children's books and purveyors of educational toys.

"The actual dollar figures show there has been a tremendous growth in children's publishing," says Lorna Ruby, children's book buyer for Lauriat's Books stores. "It has been running higher than adult fiction. We've been saying that people will spend money on books for kids because there is this perceived value to them."

"We have people come in here who don't watch cable television. They don't even watch Channel 2," claims Harvey Chafitz, co-owner of the Learning Center in Framingham.

Is this enough to keep children from the television? Except for children of a few of the hardliners like Chafitz' visitors, probably not. But there are plenty of items on the market to compete for a youngster's attention, from "magic ink" pads to visually spectacular books published by Dorling Kindersley Inc.

Between books and toys, there is an effort to both bring the materials up to date while giving them educational relevance. The child's world doesn't end with Legos, Tonka trucks, Barbie dolls, and pop-up books anymore. There are scores of reference books, assorted educational toys, and, sooner than you may think, books on computers.

Macintosh unveiled its plans for Voyager at a special showing at Waterstone's Book Sellers in Boston on Aug. 4. Voyager is an electronic publishing enterprise designed for high school and college-aged students, which adds audio and visual parts to the process of reading.

"It is remarkable what they can do with this stuff," said Bert Wright, Waterstone's marketing director.

Between books and toys, there is an effort to both bring the materials up to date while giving them educational relevance. The child's world doesn't end with Legos, Tonka trucks, Barbie dolls, and pop-up books anymore. There are scores of reference books, assorted educational toys, and, sooner than you may think, books on computers.

"It's the wave of the future, and it is coming sooner than people think."

Macintosh has already introduced several best-selling books on CD-ROM. And its most recent project, "Who Built America," is being tried out by Staten Island College of the City University of New York. Right now the software is geared more toward adult readers. But if children's publishing continues to run strongly, it seems only a matter of time before Voyager ventures into the juvenile field.

The changes in children's book publishing owe something to the visual clarity that is the trademark of the Macintosh system. The shaky, cartoon-type sketches of old have been replaced with precision draftings, which are perfectly scaled and colored.

The leader of the pack in this new form for youngsters, according to Ruby is Dorling and Kindersley, whose cleanly produced "Visual Dictionaries" are available in most stores for about $15.

"The information leaps off the page," says Ruby.

Steve Biesty's "Incredible Cross-Sections" is another publication that uses precise drawings and color to show children how everything from a jet plane to a hotel is put together. Biesty's book also makes use of fold-outs.

"There are more (children's) books being published. The juvenile sections have to be larger; they have to break it down more," says Ruby.

Big-sellers among children's books seem to be divided down lines of subject matter as well. Dinosaurs and the rain forest are topics that sell, according to Ruby.

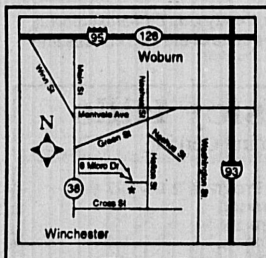

"I buy every rain forest book that I see," she said.

There are also more educational toys than ever on the market. The Learning Center in Framingham has a vast array of gadgets for children of all ages.

The Brio blocks are the latest in a line of building blocks. The Brain Quest cards — 300 questions and answers that help teach children about letters, words, patterns, shapes, math, social concepts, and logic — are another big seller.

Parents should take an active interest in their child's school work

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

Active participation in the educational process is what makes a good learner – and this includes parents.

"Parents are the great untapped resource in American education," says Kevin Ryan, a professor of education at Boston University and the director of the Center for the Advancement of Ethics and Character. "Schools need to play a more direct, aggressive role in transmitting fundamental values to students. And to do that, they need the strong cooperation of parents. Parents are the ones who have the greatest clout with the child."

In Ryan's opinion, parents, for the most part, aren't forceful enough about demanding their children to do homework.

"They don't say, 'I want you to spend two hours on homework and take time for serious work,' " said the BU professor. "They get anxious when they see a bad math grade. But their first thought is their child is not going to be able to get into Harvard Business School.

"Parents should create a good work environment for studying for their kids. Only in this country is there such a relaxed attitude toward school work," Ryan added. "The average child watches an overwhelming amount of television."

Ryan said it is particularly important that parents take an active interest in a child's homework and progress. There are times, he said, when parents' enthusiasm for taking part in the child's education ebbs as the child grows older and "a certain reality principal sets in.

"They start out thinking that the child is going to be president of the United States," says Ryan. "Then they lower their sights to secretary of state, then mayor. There is a sense of, 'OK, Junior isn't going to do anything special.' They kind of lose their enthusiasm."

"Parents are the great untapped resource in American education. Schools need to play a more direct, aggressive role in transmitting fundamental values to students."

KEVIN RYAN
PROFESSOR OF EDUCATION, BOSTON UNIVERSITY

It is this kind of indifference that can contribute to a child losing their enthusiasm for school. In addition, said Ryan, teachers need to take a more active part in the child's education.

The BU professor said that while parents and teachers should be natural allies, they have grown distant and even distrusting of one another, and this in turn hinders the child's education.

"The very core idea of schools got lost in the '60s, '70s, and '80s," he said. "Parents are quite removed from the schools. And these days, often both parents are gone all day in the workplace. There isn't a time for natural discourse between a parent and teacher."

According to Ryan, teachers need to be much more active in communicating with the students' parents. He advocates sending out newsletters that outline codes of behavior, homework policies, and how parents can help their children with homework.

"It is part of the teacher's job to draw parents back in," he said. "Teachers ought to know the telephone numbers of both parents during the day. If there is any sign of that a student is not learning, the teacher should go to the phone and tell the parents, 'We've got a problem. We need your help.'

"It is not what goes on. Somehow teachers don't use the phone that much. They think it is intrusive to call the parent," he added.

Framingham State College dean Dr. Philip Dooher says that it is "important that, as students go through junior high, they are thinking about what type of program they will be taking in high school."

"I think they have to set together a plan of what they want to take," he said. "As they approach high school, they have to be realistic if they are looking forward to attending a four-year college."

At the college level, Dooher says, it is important for the student to take charge of his or her education.

"The key," he said, "is being an active learner, working with advisers and being involved with the school community."

A good way to start those good habits is at home, with the parents showing an active interest in the child's education.

"It's a matter of breaking down the wall and enlisting the parents," said Ryan. "The teachers have to see them as important. That's the key."

HARTE-HANKS CORRESPONDENT

Fall is the time of year when parents meet their children's new teachers, and wonder, "Does this teacher like to hear from parents? Will he be helpful when I tell him about David's tendency to be bullied? I don't want to be a 'problem parent'...should I just keep my mouth shut about Jennie's learning problems?"

Any caring parent has such questions, but parents differ tremendously when it comes to taking action on their child's behalf. Some parents angrily storm in to see the teacher and make demands (which the teacher resents). Others just hope their child's problems will disappear without their having to risk "making the teacher mad" at them or their child by discussing the problem. While both have good intentions, these parents are behaving more like anxious schoolchildren than confident adults.

If you've found yourself doing battle with teachers, or if you consistently "chicken out" when you need to discuss your child's progress or adjustment, you're suffering too much emotional interference. Emotional interference blocks calm, rational thinking and negotiating.

"But how can I be unemotional about my child? That's crazy," you may be thinking. I don't expect you to be unemotional about your child. What I'm suggesting is that you try on a new role that will help you put your emotions aside just long enough to effectively advocate for your child.

Sound strange? Think how you'd feel if you employed a lawyer to represent your case to a judge. You'd certainly want your lawyer to like you and to believe you have a good case. However, you wouldn't feel at all appreciative if your lawyer became so emotional about you that he either started cursing and yelling because a witness said something bad about you, or tried to avoid "making the judge mad" by not saying much on your behalf! Emotional interference usually prevents us from getting the results we want.

To be most helpful to your child, and to avoid emotional interference, think of yourself as a consultant. In business, a consultant is an expert regarding one part (say, a computer system) of a much larger enterprise. The consultant is heard from only occasionally, when either the company or the consultant has noticed a "glitch" in the computer system that needs adjustment. When either of these come up, the consultant comes in to assist the company by offering her detailed knowledge of this system.

As a parent, you know more about your child than any teacher ever

The old college try

Students should ask themselves what they want out of school

By Elizabeth Christopher
HARTE-HANKS CORRESPONDENT

There are thousands of colleges and universities across the United States and nearly as many guidebooks, inches-thick, to help you find a school that's right for you.

The process can seem overwhelming for many students. But according to Michael Kalafatas, director of admissions at Brandeis University, students need to focus on their own needs before looking outside for answers.

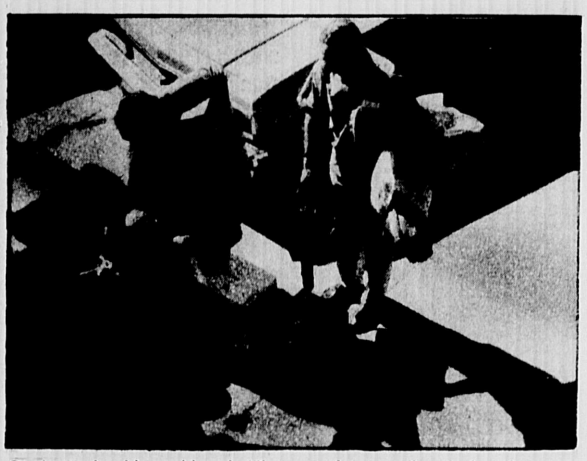

"I'm convinced that the college search is much more an inward journey than an outward journey," said Kalafatas. "It's a time for students to sit down with their parents and have an open discussion about what their aspirations are – what kind of environment they're comfortable in."

Kalafatas suggests students take personal inventory, and ask themselves what they require of a college. For example:

- Do you function best under close supervision or a relaxed environment?
- Do you like competition or do you like to work on your own?
- Do you want to be at a small college where you can join the newspaper or make the basketball team, or would you like a much larger place?

Miles Urich, director of admissions at Tufts University, said he believes seven and eighth grades are not too soon to start thinking about college.

"Curriculum choices made at that level impact the high school experience and the direction the student is going to head (in)," Urich said.

Students should consider what they want from a college before they even begin their search.

High school students should start their search by visiting colleges and universities in their area to get a general idea of what campus life is like. Kalafatas suggests visiting a variety of campuses.

"Visit a large urban school, a suburban and a rural school to develop a sense of what you are looking for in a college," he said.

After students complete basic research on schools, students should visit their choice campuses and go on interviews with admissions counselors.

Kalafatas said it is essential that students use their best consumer instincts when visiting a campus. In addition, Kalafatas urges students to ask critical questions of the colleges they are considering.

"Find out who is teaching the classes – professors or graduate students? How accessible is the faculty? How large are the classes?" he said.

Kalafatas also suggests talking to college students on campus and sitting in on lectures.

Janet Lavin, director of admissions at Wellesley College, stressed the importance of daily campus life on a college experience.

"(College-bound students) should ask basic questions such as, are all freshman housed together or with upper classmen? They should find out what life is like 24 hours a day at residential colleges," Lavin said.

Often, high school students feel pressured to make early decisions about which subject to study at the college level. However, many educators encourage students to be open minded about their major when selecting a college.

"Our largest major for entering freshman is 'undecided' and we want it that way," she said. "We hope that students will push back limits and push back preconceived notions about what different subjects entail ... and will discover a piece of curriculum that they haven't been exposed to yet."

Today's job market is another reason students should avoid narrowing their focus at the undergraduate level, according to Urich.

"I wouldn't suggest tailoring an undergraduate education to the job market," he says. "Students coming out of college should be flexible and able to move in different directions."

Kalafatas urges students to direct questions about financial aid packages to the institution they are interested in attending. "There is no question that today's economy raises sharp concerns about financing a college education," he said.

Lavin agrees that students need to ask as many questions as possible about financial aid options because every institution has its own policy.

"Wellesley is in a fortunate position of having a financial aid blind process and we meet 100 percent of the demonstrated need...meaning we admit students on academic credentials alone – we don't know who can pay and who can't pay."

"This is a major investment of time and money," said Lavin. "Students should not feel they need to do this totally independently – they should do this with their family."

"I wouldn't suggest tailoring an undergraduate education to the job market," he says. "Students coming out of college should be flexible and able to move in different directions."

A little preparation beforehand by both parents and children makes the transition from summer to school smooth — and has kids looking forward to hitting the books.

Smart start

Prior preparation makes adjustment easier

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

A little preparation beforehand by parent and child smoothes out the transition from summer to school for students of all ages.

This is a rule of thumb for all ages. Voncile White, dean of first-year students at Wellesley College, says she usually sends out a letter to parents of incoming freshmen, detailing steps they can take to make a little less overwhelming what is, in most cases, their son's or daughter's first experience of living on their own.

Among the suggestions White offers is to encourage incoming freshmen to take responsibility for their well-being, both academic and medical. She says parents should encourage their college-bound children to speak to their adviser or dean; to visit the infirmary when they are ill; and, to explore other courses not necessarily related to their major.

"In a lot of cases students just aren't prepared to deal with the tremendous amount of freedom they have," she said.

At the pre-school and secondary school level, children aren't facing the same sort of independence, but the first-day experience can be just as daunting.

At the pre-school and secondary school level, children aren't facing the same sort of independence as college-bound students, but the first-day experience can be just as daunting.

For pre-schoolers, both Dr. Irwin Blumer, superintendent of Newton schools, and Joan Robinson, head of Wellesley College's audio visual department, say reading is the single most important activity a parent can do to help prepare their child for school. Not only will it help the child with school work, says Blumer, but combined with steady encouragement, it will instill a sense of self-esteem in the child.

There are other simple suggestions for parents to help make a student's first day at school less daunting. Familiarity is the key. Just as reading makes learning in all areas more accessible, so knowing your way around school beforehand makes the opening day less of a bombardment of the senses.

First, make sure you and your child know how to get to and from school prior to the start of school. Some teachers suggest that parent and child walk the route to and from school together. If your child is to take a bus, visit the bus stop.

Another hint to avoid the confusion of opening day is to call the school principal and ask for an informal tour before the start of school.

Some teachers even suggest that parents begin getting children into the school-year routine — earlier bedtimes, less television, regular eating hours, etc. — several weeks before the start of school.

Another basic tool that students need, at least at home, is a dictionary. A hardcover version, new, will probably cost at least $30. A paperback dictionary can be had for less than $5.

Beyond the dictionary, most educators, even at the college level, suggest that students wait before seeking out companion books for courses.

"I would recommend a good collegiate dictionary, maybe a college-level thesaurus, and for science and math courses, maybe a decent calculator," said Dr. Philip Dooher, dean at Framingham State College. "Otherwise, given the price of textbooks — $400 to $500 is not an uncommon amount for books and supplies — it is probably a good idea to wait for the assigned textbooks. We have a fine library here. We're part of the Minuteman Library network."

The range in price for reference books runs the gamut, from $2.95 for Lagenscheidt's Lilliput German dictionary (576 pages that fits in the palm of your hand) to $96.50 for Essential Engineering Information and Data (a 1,000-page tome that might fit in the trunk of your car).

There are some general books, though, that may be of help to students.

The "World Almanac" ($8.95) is a good source of general information on history, geography, and statistics.

For physics students, "Basic Physics: A Self-teaching Guide" by Karl F. Kuhn ($14.95) is a good basic handbook, broken done into four parts — force and motion, waves and sound, lights and optics, relativity and the nucleus. And at the higher end, there is Barron's Concise Encyclopedia ($29.95) a colorful, directory of useful information.

Confronting teachers

will. You, as your child's "consultant," are an essential part of the larger enterprise (the school), and you know better than anyone what has worked best with your child in the past.

On the other hand, as a consultant you must maintain an open mind, knowing that other people may or may not be able to achieve the same results with your child by using your methods. In fact, teachers sometimes give parents ideas that never occurred to them before, based on their observation of the child away from home.

As a consultant, you'll want to relay any important information to the teacher that may be impacting on your child, such as separation, divorce, death in the family, even unemployment or problems with another sibling. These needn't be conveyed in any detail, but I've found that letting a teacher know what's probably on your child's mind is good preventive medicine.

If you find yourself obsessing about what the teacher will think if you say what's on your mind, just remind yourself that right now you need to put aside your emotions and behave as a professional consultant. The teacher needs your insights about your child, and you need his.

A few guidelines are in order. First, be timely. As Mary Susan Miller, Ph.D. writes in The School Book, you are concerned about one child, while the teacher must manage and teach many children. Don't hang around before and after class to discuss your child. Make an appointment and, once there, watch the clock and try to be concise. Teachers appreciate a parent who can communicate without demanding more than their fair share of time.

Second, bring your information in a notebook when you meet the teacher. Don't assume you'll remember examples that your child has told you about the teacher, other kids, or academic problems (a consultant always carries notes). Take a few notes if the teacher has any observations or comments for you, and date the page. This will be a handy reference later on.

Third, ask for a change from the teacher, or for some recommendation from him that you can do at home, when discussing a problem. Consultants aren't paid to "hash out issue"; they're paid to come up with a new plan of action when the existing plan isn't working. This is your goal as a parent when working with school staff of all kinds.

If you've tried discussing a problem with the teacher but he won't work with you on a solution, you can take your case to a higher authority, usually the principal. In order to be best prepared, I'd suggest you first ask other parents if they're having the same problem your child is having.

Don't hang around before and after class to discuss your child. Make an appointment and, once there, watch the clock and try to be concise. Teachers appreciate a parent who can communicate without demanding more than their fair share of time.

When my daughter was in the fourth grade in Tennessee, I was appalled to learn that the children weren't allowed to speak one word during their lunch period, and if anyone even whispered they were forced to get up and do jumping jacks until the end of lunch (the children cried through this exercise, which was both exhausting and humiliating). I started asking other parents if this weren't the craziest thing they'd ever heard of, and I found that they were all quite upset about it.

A couple of us spoke individually with the lunchroom "guard" (a sullen 20-year-old) who meted out these punishments, then we spoke to some teachers, but to no avail. Finally we all got together and scheduled a conference with the principal, wherein we made it clear that this practice was totally unacceptable. He finally agreed, but said the noise level was still a problem due to poor insulation. We parents brainstormed and came up with some ideas to lessen the noise level, and our children were again able to relax and talk during their one period of rest.

While I was furious when I learned about the terrorist lunch atmosphere, I knew that anger wouldn't get me what I wanted. We parents expressed our anger with each other, but when we met with the principal we were firm, not angry. As consultants, we put our emotions aside, presented a group consensus, and got the results we wanted.

Remember, a consultant doesn't worry endlessly about whether she's being too pushy or too wimpy when discussing problems: That's what she's supposed to do! As a consultant, it's your job to calmly relay and accept information about your child, in the spirit of working together with teachers to make this school year as enjoyable and successful as possible.

Tough talk

Parents must be straightforward when explaining AIDS

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

Discussing sexuality with children, an uncomfortable task for many parents to begin with, has become even more difficult with the spector of AIDS.

It is also imperative now that a child know the facts about the disease, and know them at an early age.

By the age of 12, a child should be made aware by his or her parents about the proper precautions to take to protect him/herself against AIDS. That, anyway, is the advice offered in "How to Talk to Your Children About AIDS," a 16-page pamphlet published by the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS).

Most parents find it tough to discuss AIDS and sexuality with their young children, according to Ellen Brodsky, project officer of the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts' Heart to Heart program. Heart to Heart is a five-session sexuality education program for high school students, their parents, and faculty offered to schools in the greater Boston and Worcester area. Brodsky suggests that, when the time for discussion approaches, parents should get together with other parents for help.

"Get support from other parents," she says. "It is not easy to do this. Some parents like to talk to kids in their car. That way they don't have to look them in the eye, and they can't go anywhere."

Both SIECUS and Planned Parenthood offer literature with general suggestions for parents of ways to approach the topic with children.

The SIECUS pamphlet breaks down by age the general sexual awareness of children and recommends steps parents can take to help educate the child.

The pamphlet suggests that children between the ages of five and eight are already "able to understand more complex issues about health, disease, and sexuality."

As a result, they may already have heard about AIDS. At this point, according to the pamphlet, it is important that the child be given basic answers to questions "based on concrete examples from their lives."

A good time to explain how germs get into the blood stream, suggests the SIECUS pamphlet, is after a child suffers a cut. It is also important for a young child who attends school with a child who is infected with HIV to know that they can not contract AIDS from playing with that child.

As for talking with pre-teens, SIECUS suggests children between the ages of nine and 12 are subject to "strong social pressures."

Because of these pressures, according to the pamphlet, "it is imperative that you talk (with your child) about AIDS, regardless of what you know about your children's sexual or drug experiences. As a concerned parent, you must make sure your children know about prevention now."

The SIECUS pamphlet recommends that parents be specific with preteens. "They need to know how HIV is transmitted," the pamphlet claims, "how it is not transmitted, and how to prevent transmission, including talking about condoms."

SIECUS says teenagers must know that abstinence from sexual intercourse is the best method of HIV prevention, sexually transmitted diseases, and pregnancy; that long-term monogamy with an uninfected partner is as effective in preventing HIV infection as abstinence; that teenagers who are going to engage in sexual intercourse must use condoms for each and every act of intercourse; that teenagers should avoid drugs and alcohol; and, that sharing needles of any kind puts people at risk of HIV — that includes intravenous drug use, skin-popping, steroids, ear piercing, and tattooing.

The Planned Parenthood Federation of America offers a series of helpful hints for parents in its pamphlet, "How to Talk to Your Child about Sexuality."

Among the suggestions are:

- Be aware of "teachable" moments. Use opportunities such as a newspaper article or a television show to introduce a subject.
- Don't be afraid of not being an expert. If you don't know the answer, admit you don't, and then find the answer.
- Answer younger children's questions with honest, simple, and brief explanations. Rely on facts.
- If your children don't come to you with questions, ask them if there is anything they want to know or talk about. Let them know that you are receptive to their questions.
- Share your values. Your children regard you as a role model. Your guidelines provide them with valuable guidelines for making choices.
- Get to know your children's world. Showing interest in their friends and activities will convey to your children that you want to be a part of their lives.

Playing it safe

HEAD LICE, FROM 2

Convulsions and central nervous system toxicity are listed in the Physicians Desk Reference as possible side effects for lindane. Infants are particularly susceptible to lindane because it is a neurotoxin.

"As a matter of fact, that's how it works on the mites and insects. It paralyzes them, causing them to have seizures and die," explained Kiley.

Lindane has been banned in agriculture for use as a pesticide.

Kiley added that after appearing on ABC's "Good Morning, America," hundreds of calls came from people who had some adverse reactions following the use of lindane.

Kiley said there are over-the-counter products that do not pose the health risks of lindane.

For information about treating head lice, call the 24-hour hot line of the National Pediculosis Association at 1-800-446-4NPA.

MAKING THE GRADE

Give your child a head start in school by reading out loud together

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

Children are impressionable. But even as they continue to fall more and more under the sway of television, movies, and video games, there is one constant influence: parents. And in this case, first impressions, so to speak, are lasting.

Most educators agree that parents are the most important influence in a child's educational development.

"It's really important to ask your child what he or she did in school each day," said Irwin Blumer, superintendent of schools in Newton. "(Parents) should ask the child what they have to do for homework, as well.

"They know their child far better than any teacher will. They need to enter into a collaborative effort (with the school)."

Blumer argues that there is a direct correlation between the interest of parents in the child's school work and the interest of the child in his or her school work.

Joan Robinson, director of audio/visual at Wellesley College and a media specialist for 20 years in the Andover public school system, says the role of a parent can't be overstated.

"Parents need to provide role models," Robinson said. "The students will mimic the parents. If the parents read regularly, the students will learn that as a viable alternative."

Both Blumer and Robinson said they believe reading is the most important skill a parent can teach a young pre-schooler.

"It is the singular most important thing a parent can do, to make sure that the child has learned language skills," said Blumer.

These are skills that are pertinent all the way through academic life, say the educators, no matter what field the student intends to major in.

"Some students don't expect that when they take science courses that they will be required to write essays, but they will," said Voncile White, dean of first-year students at Wellesley College.

"I have two nephews," said Robinson. "One wouldn't open a book to save his life....The other nephew always has a book under his arm. It shows up in school."

Where to begin instilling the vocabulary skills, of course, is at the pre-school level.

Blumberg says it is not necessary for parents to begin teaching preschoolers the basics of math and science.

"If a child enters school language-rich," he said, "everything else falls in place."

"Nothing will ever replace the written word," said Robinson. "Being a good reader is the foundation of everything else you do."

Nothing, Blumer and Robinson agree, can substitute for the practice of reading aloud to young children,

MAKING THE GRADE, PAGE 19

"Sometimes parents are hesitant to read from anything that doesn't have a vocabulary on the child's level. But the child needs something to help them make it to the next level. They should be encouraged to ask questions. Reasoning should be interactive."

FAKING IT

What your children are really saying when they're pretending to be sick

By Dr. Teresa Whitehurst
HARTE-HANKS CORRESPONDENT

It's 8:15 a.m. and your daughter hasn't even gotten out of bed yet.

"Hurry! You're going to be late!" you admonish. Ten minutes later, she shuffles into the kitchen complaining of a stomachache, but her forehead isn't at all warm. What to do?

These are the times that try parents' souls. You don't want to be too lenient by letting her stay home, but you shudder at the thought of forcing her to go to school if she's really sick.

Thankfully, there are some guidelines that you can use to make these tough decisions with the least risk of making a mistake:

1. Does she/he have a fever? If there's no fever, you still don't know for sure if she/he's sick (keep in mind your own fever-free headaches and tummyaches). If there is a fever, keep your child home.

2. Does she/he seem extremely tired and cranky? If your child is extremely irritable even after eating, she/he may be coming down with something or, at minimum, too exhausted to perform well at school.

Dr. T. Berry Brazelton has an interesting suggestion for kids who wake up feeling tired or draggy. He notes that many children wake up with low blood sugar levels that sink even lower if the child is anxious, and can contribute to stomachaches or headaches.

In his recent book "Touchpoints," he suggests leaving a glass of ginger ale or orange juice by your child's bedside: "She should drink it as soon as she wakes, before she gets out of bed to move around. If she feels better, she will eat a better breakfast and will then be able to handle the stress of school and separation from home." (Arrange a medical checkup if your child seems rundown frequently.)

3. If he seems to be in pain, keep him home and call his physician. Don't do what a neighbor of mine did: She made her daughter go to school because she didn't have a fever, even though she kept saying her tummy hurt. The poor child stuck it out through the school day, but by evening her appendix burst and she was rushed into intensive care. She survived, but barely. The girl's trust in her mother to believe and protect her was damaged greatly by that experience.

4. If he doesn't have a fever and doesn't seem to be in any pain, tell him he'll probably feel better once he gets to school and watch his reaction:

(a) If he just mumbles a bit and starts getting ready for school, you're probably safe to send him. A child who's neither sick nor emotionally distressed will usually make a face at this point that says, "Oh well, it was worth a try!"

(b) If he says something like, "But what if I don't feel any better, or start feeling worse?", tell him you'll give him a note for the nurse to send him home if that happens. A child who's feeling just a little bit crummy (nagging headaches or mild menstrual cramps are good examples) will usually feel reassured by this.

Once they get to school, kids sometimes do feel better. A child who goes through the hassle of seeing the nurse and calling you to come get him is probably in some genuine discomfort. (My only caution is this: A pattern of going to the nurse at the same time each day suggests a possible problem in the missed class, such as conflict with the teacher or failing grades.)

(c) If he starts crying or getting all worked up even when you offer a note for the nurse, and says, "But my head hurts so bad!" or something like that — and you just don't know what to do — let him stay home, but remind him he'll have to catch up tomorrow on all missed schoolwork. Some kids have dramatic recoveries when reminded about all the make-up work they'll have to do.

(d) If he's still very upset but isn't complaining about physical symptoms at this point, ask him if something is upsetting him at school. Be prepared to let him stay home that day if something is seriously wrong.

A friend of mine faced this very situation with her 13-year-old son Danny. He asked to stay home several days in a row, each day claiming a new illness. The first two days she let him stay home, but each day he seemed fine when she got home from work. On the third day she insisted that he go to school, and he became desperate, vomiting and developing a major asthma attack. (Keep in mind that some kids, especially boys, refuse to cry; the stress comes out in other, usually more debilitating, ways.)

After this crisis, which included an emergency medical visit, my friend and her husband realized they were going to have to look beneath the physical complaints to find out what was really going on. What they learned horrified them. Danny had become the victim of extortion. Every day before lunch, a group of tough boys pushed Danny against the wall and demanded money.

Danny's parents immediately went to the principal, and the situation was resolved. Even now, they shudder to think about Danny's continued victimization had they made him go to school because he wasn't physically ill.

4. Is there homework that hasn't been done? A common reason for faking sickness, this tells you your child needs help with managing his time, or may be over his head academically and need tutoring. Staying home to do homework isn't a good idea because it can become a habit of poor self-management.

I'm not, however, opposed to occasionally letting a child stay home to finish a large project, as long as he's been working on it faithfully and just ran out of time or hit a snag. Afterwards, discuss with him how his time management went awry, and how he'll avoid this problem next time. Nobody's perfect!

(5) Is this a case of school burnout? My mother, a teacher herself, told me I didn't have to fake sickness, because if I really needed a "mental health day," she'd trust me not to abuse the privilege. As a result, I never lied to my parents about sickness, and I didn't skip classes with my friends. They trusted my judgment, so I wanted to be trustworthy.

Mary Susan Miller, Ph.D. writes in The School Book, "The stress on schoolchildren is tremendous, and sometimes they need a break, as all of us do...Once or twice a year plan with him ahead of time a day that he can take off from school...Not every teacher sees eye to eye with me here, but I have learned that one day off can lead to many days' — and months' — benefit."

(6) Sometimes a child will throw a tantrum or become hysterical when you try to send him to school, yet when you investigate you can't find a single problem that would warrant this kind of fear and dread. If this happens frequently, consult a mental health professional. School phobias are scary, and kids need professional help to triumph over these powerful fears and start enjoying school.

The next time it's 8:15 a.m. and you hear that plea, "Can I stay home?" don't agonize. Use these guidelines and your own intuition, and make the best decision you can. Remember, nobody's perfect (including parents!).

Computers and television blaze their way into the classroom

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

The image of technology as a stifling threat to individuality and well-being is changing. Educators are starting to view it as an ally. Even television, a pariah to many, is being employed.

It was George Orwell, in "1984," who summed up the anxiety of a society more and more dependent on technology. "Big Brother is watching you" became the catch phrase for subsequent generations pushing against the onus of technology.

But with increasing regularity it is the very people targeted as defenders against a world of technology — educators and writers — who are rapidly becoming avid advocates of its powers.

"Personally, I don't see the technology, when it is used correctly, as being dangerous," said Joan Robinson, the director of the audio visual department at Wellesley College. "The role of the teacher may change. Instead of being the person who stands in front of the classroom the person may end up being more of a facilitator."

The image of technology as a stifling threat to individuality and well-being is changing. Educators are starting to view it as an ally. Even television, a pariah to many, is being employed.

Framingham Cablevision has made "Cable in the Classroom" available to Framingham High School since 1990. The school is offered a selection of cable programming from stations such as the Arts & Entertainment Network, CNBC, CNN, C-SPAN, The Discovery Channel, HBO, The Learning Channel, Mind Extension University, Nickelodeon and The Weather Channel among others. The cable stations offer commercial-free programming with liberal copyright clearance, allowing the schools to tape programs for future classroom use, according to Audrey Hall, the general manager of Framingham Cablevision. In addition, Framingham Cablevision has donated channel 15 for the use of the Framingham schools.

"Not everyone learns the same way," Hall explains. "Some people learn better with touch. Some people learn better with sound.

"Everyone has different needs. One will enhance the other....If you can give them an audio-visual demonstration of what you are presenting, I think they are going to learn better."

Hall argues that "Cable in the Classroom" also offers schools fiscal advantages.

"In a time," she says, "when budgets get tight and schools are having trouble paying for core material, we are talking about providing materials that teachers need at no cost."

"We have to recognize that we are part of this society. the visual is an every day part of our students' lives," said Framingham High School principal Bob Flaherty. "If we don't utilize this part of their lifestyle in their teaching, then we are not doing the job we should."

Flaherty says that the influx of technology into the educational market place has been so sudden that schools, for the moment, are still trying to come to terms with all the possibilities. They also have to come to terms with the fiscal realities.

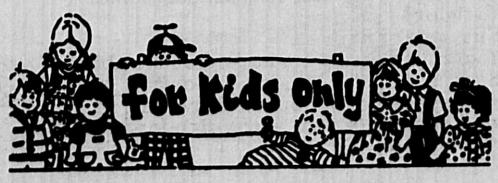

"They become political decisions," he said. "We will always put forward the best way to take the next step to take our kids where we think they should be for the 21st century. But it will always be done from the viewpoint of the fiscal realities of 1993."

Television is also far more prevalent on college campuses. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has used in-house broadcasts since 1975, principally for special events that draw large crowds.

"Sometimes we have no choice," said Randy Winchester, a facilities analyst in MIT's telecommunications department. "If Camille Paglia shows up, you have to expect at least 5,000 people. It's going to be first come, first serve as far as seating goes. And in that case, we would have a live broadcast internally."

Students, says Winchester, would be abie to watch the lecture in their dorm rooms, if they have televisions, in the student lounges if they don't.

At Wellesley College, they are using a satellite dish to bring something of a more advanced version of Cable in the Classroom to its students. With the new satellite dish, says Robinson, Wellesley College can bring in foreign language programs available on SCOLA, which transmits news broadcast from 20 countries.

Wellesley College also uses audio interactive teleconferences for the exchange of curricular ideas among faculties from different colleges.

Dr. Philip Dooher, the Dean of Framingham State College, took part in an admissions workshop in which students from eight different high schools were able to call in, via a teleconference set up, and direct admissions questions to deans from different colleges.

"Television is certainly not going to replace the interaction between the professor and the student," said Dooher. "You can use it as an assist."

Computers, of course, are as prevalent in the classrooms of American schools as pencils and paper. The e-mail function, an electronic message system, has increasing come into use.

Television is also far more prevalent on college campuses. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has used in-house broadcasts since 1975, principally for special events that draw large crowds.

Robinson recalled an instance when students across the country assisted scientists in a nationwide study of acid rain. The students measured the acidity of the water and relayed the information among themselves and the scientists. They communicated through e-mail.

It was during the time when Hurricane Hugo took place," Robinson recalls. "When it hit North Carolina, the kids where genuinely concerned because they had talked to kids there through e-mail. It wasn't just a place on the map anymore."

The same e-mail, says Robinson, is used by foreign language faculty at some schools to develop a modern pen pal set up. Students from different countries talk to one another through the computer.

"I think it is important that teachers be able to teach children about how technologies work and how the media manipulates them," said Robinson. "It is an important part of educating someone in the '90s."

Macintosh introduces electronic publishing

By Philip Maddocks
HARTE-HANKS STAFF WRITER

For Steve Brier the measure of success for "Who Built America," the latest entry in Macintosh's Voyager series, is simple.

"I will consider it a success when it is in the schools," he said.

Brier, the director of the Center for Media and Learning and the American Social History Project at Hunter College of the City College of New York, is one of three men involved in the development of the "Who Built America" on CD-ROM. Roy Rosenzweig, a professor of history at George Mason University, and Josh Brown, the art director and scriptwriter of American Social History Project, are the others.

The text, originally published as a two-volume set by Pantheon is the latest and most ambitious addition to the Voyager series.

Macintosh calls it an expanded book. Along with 215 pages of the original text, the CD-ROM contains 700 pictures, one hour of film, and four hours of recorded sound.

In addition, points out Brier, every page of text is annotated. The software package also has a sophisticated "find" feature that allows the user to group information by subject. For instance, the user could ask for all references to women in the text. A menu, then, is compiled, listing all references to women in the text and the page numbers of these references.

The software features some flashy features. It has a selection of movies, ones that are in the public domain now, such has Edwin Porter's 1903 classic "The Great Train Robbery," which appears on a window on the screen. The voyager "Who Built America" software also has the audio of famous speeches such as William Jennings Bryant's "Cross of Gold" speech. The audio is accompanied by the text on the screen.

But generally speaking, this software was designed as a scholarly tool.

"It was definitely designed as an educational tool," said Brier. "It exceeded all my expectations."

"Who Built America" is quite affordable, selling for $99.95. The price, says Rosenzweig, makes it a viable alternative for both individuals and schools.

The College of Staten Island of the City University of New York, is making the software part of its curriculum this year.

A CD-ROM version of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" is due out soon. The expanded book series already includes "Conduct Unbecoming: Gays and Lesbians in the Military" by Randy Shilts; "The Road Less Traveled" by M. Scott Peck; "Mostly Harmless" by Douglas Adams; "A Wrinkle in Time, with a Wind in the Door, A Swiftly Tilting Planet and Many Waters" by Madeline L'Engle.

Also, there is a Voyager version of "Jurassic Park" by Michael Crichton; "Backlash" by Susan Faludi; "Pleading Guilty" by Scott Turow; and "The Majic Bus" by Douglas Brinkley.

In addition, Macintosh offers an "Expanded Book Toolkit" that gives authors and publishers the ability to create expanded books.

As far as the next step goes, Rosenzweig says: "We'll just have to wait to hear what the people tell us, to find out what works and what doesn't work."

Both Brier and Rosenzweig feel that the voyager series is only in its early stages. Macintosh, they point out, has a t-shirt with the phrase: "Reading, the Next Frontier."

Back-to-school tip

It's so easy to add a treat to packed lunches, but calories and fat go up and food value goes down with such items as candy bars, snack cakes or cookies. For dessert, substitute sweets with food value, such as a few dates stuffed with walnuts, low-fat graham crackers, fig bars (now Newtons are no-fat and have a variety of fruit fillings), angel food cake (unIced) and a few whole strawberries.

Back-to-school tip

One way to make young children more comfortable about the first day of school is to connect it to their everyday experiences.

For example, when making store purchases, tell children they will learn to do math at school and will one day be able to make change themselves.

Try to link going to school with fun experiences. Making a shopping trip for "school clothes" a treat rather than a chore can increase a child's anticipation. To make this a fun event:

- Plan your shopping trip for a day when both you and your child are comfortable, cool and rested.
- Tell your child the items purchased are special because he or she is "so grown-up" and getting ready to go to school.
- If possible, let your child make some of the decisions, even if it is just choosing the color of a notebook.

PUT A DEGREE WITHIN YOUR CHILD'S REACH.

They just earned their college degrees. And their parents just got the bill.

Now, John Hancock has a better way. It's College Savings Plus. The most complete college savings plan available today.

You set a realistic goal and begin saving early. So when your child is ready for college, so are you.

matching this fall. Bright solid leggings and cotton tunic sweaters are a favorite for both parents and kids.

"Parent's like them because they're very easy to coordinate. Kids like them for the comfort," said Marie Molitor, manager of Talbot's for Kids at the Burlington Mall.

Trendy, bright-colored leggings can be found at nearly any retail clothing store. The average price: two for $25.

Flower power has also influenced this year's fashions for girls of all ages, and floral prints are everywhere from leggings to tops to the oh-so-feminine garter-back dresses.

Of course no back-to-school outfit is complete without coordinating accessories. Scrunchies, socks and hats are 'in' for girls of all ages. The French beret is bursting with bright reds and blues and the classic Madeline hat, fashioned after Ludwig Bemelmans' character, adds a touch of European style.

Girls are also searching out oversized blazers this fall, according to Molitor.

"Kids are trying to dress and are dressing just like adults," she added. "The Barn Jacket, for example, is big for adults and now the fashion designers are (making them) for kids."

Roy admits it's hard to find exciting boys' clothes, but said apparel for boys is no exception to this year's outbreak of color, with a garden-full of choices from deep eggplant and green to golden mustard.

The grunge-look is still popular in boys wear, with plaid flannel sweatshirts and oversized denim work shirts among the biggest selling items.

Parents may be buying the same footwear for both sons and daughters, with leather work boots at the top of fall footwear, as well as the popular Converse high-top sneaker. Converse sneakers come in an array of colors for coordinating with those back-to-school outfits.

For crisper days, the polo fleece is the pull-over of choice and will keep boys and girls of all ages wrapped in bright turquoise, purple and blue.

Whatever the season, Molitor agrees, durability is in.

"Kids clothes should be durable and mothers want to be sure their kids will get some wear out of it," Molitor said.

either.

"The most important thing a parent can do is introducing kids to books, both the kinds of books that are made for infants and the more sophisticated books with powerful vocabulary," said Blumer.

Reading should be interactive, said Blumer. Parents should pause and ask questions. Children's literature, he said, makes excellent use of photographs that can stimulate give-and-take between parent and child.

"Sometimes parents are hesitant to read from anything that doesn't have a vocabulary on the child's level," noted Blumer. "But the child needs something to help them make it to the next level. They should be encouraged to ask questions. Reasoning should be interactive."

Robinson suggests that reading out loud is not only the best way to educate pre-schoolers but it is a practice that is often stopped too early.

"No one is too old to be read to," she says. "It is my experience that 11- and 12-year-olds still enjoy being read to."

Like Blumer, she also tried to make reading an interactive exercise. One practice she likes to employ is have children read a book that a movie was based on and then, after viewing the movie, discuss the ways the movie differs from the book.

"It is amazing the discussions that 11- and 12-year-olds can get into," she said.

A final note is to control the amount of time children spend in front of the television.

"Feel real comfortable with shutting off the television," said Blumer. "Children watch too much as it is."

Added Robinson: "It is the adults who are in charge. Very often the parents are not supervising what the kids are watching. I was amazed at what the kids have seen. The parents have to play a more active role in what they should watch."

As with reading, it is never too early to start.

Preparing for the first day of school

By Dr. Ilisse Perlmutter
NYU SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Familiarity can help breed contentment for youngsters adjusting to their first day of school.

Children adjust better to new situations if they are at least partially familiar with them. So one basic way parents can help prepare their children for the first day of school is by talking about it with them.

Conversations about going to school should be frequent. And all mention of school should cast it in a positive light.

For example, parents can highlight the new and exciting things their child will be doing and learning. They can also tell their child how proud they are that he or she is so "grown-up" and able to go to school.

Using an older child as a model can be effective when talking about school. While the younger child is present, ask the older child about fun activities and how it feels to go to school.

Reinforce the idea of school as fun by mentioning how lucky the older child is to be able to participate in such enjoyable activities. Parents should remind younger children of these conversations at a later time, telling them that soon they, too, will be able to go to school.

As part of talking about school, parents can explain the events of the first day. Parents can remind children about the routine the night before school. They can also tell children they will be waiting for them when school is dismissed.

Giving children a chance to see the school building and its surroundings can also help make it more familiar. If possible, a visit to a classroom should be arranged before school begins.

When the first day of school finally arrives, some children may be reluctant to let their parents leave. In this situation, positive talk can help. Parents can repeat how proud they are that their children are so "grown- up" and able to go to school and learn new things.

If a child is extremely anxious, a parent may be permitted to stay in the classroom for a short time. But be truthful and tell the child that you must leave soon. Remind the child that you will be waiting for him or her when the school day is over.

er" books and the miniature artificial tree cost less than $2. The miniature tree is an intriguing device. By mixing a teaspoon of water and a powder that comes in the package and placing it in a saucer, you create the nutrients that makes the artificial tree grow into fruition in a matter of two hours (buds appear in 15 minutes).

Another attention-getter is "Flocomotion," a transparent frame with a glass ball, two steel ball bearings, an air bubble, and iridescent liquid. The device displays patterns against a steal gray background and in the process acts as a visual aid to understanding such phenomena as thermal convection and turbulence.

Chafitz agrees that a number of parents who want toys to be educational as well as enjoyable.

History: Peter Morris invested in Main Street Ford a small piece at a time, and after twenty years, Morris is now the sole owner of the dealership.

Built on its strong reputation for high grade used cars Morris says, "We stand behind what we sell. If there are any problems we are here."

Peter Morris sets Main Street Ford apart from other dealerships for their service.

"We are a hometown dealer. If you have a question you have someone to talk to. If you have a problem that means we don't know about it."

Service has been our business for 20 years, and it always will be says Morris.

Types of Cars Sold: Main Street Ford offers all makes and models of new cars, as well as a variety of used cars.

Hottest Sellers: Hottest sellers in new car lots are the Ford Taurus and Ford Explorer.

Best Deal on The Lot: The 1993 Taurus GL sedan at a cost of $239 a month with the 24-month red carpet lease.

Specialty: Main Street Ford and used car Manager Richard Svensson are known for their outstanding quality of used cars. Offering a full dealer service department for new and used cars, the used car service department and body shop specialize in "everything from A to Z" says Morris.

Incentives: F Series trucks and commercial rebates are going on now for a total rebate of up to $1500.

Philosophy: "The right street for the best buy."

Added refinements enhance last year's redesign

Ford Taurus adds a number of refinements for 1993 that further enhance the major redesign in 1992 of America's popular family car.

For the first time, an optional automatic transmission may be ordered on the high-performance Taurus SHO (Super High Output) model. Among the SHO's new appearance features is a functional decklid spoiler with an integrated light-emitting diode (LED) stop lamp.

The automatic transaxle is coupled with a 3.2-liter version of the double overhead camshaft (DOHC) 24-valve V-6 engine. The 3.0 liter DOHC engine with 5-speed manual transmission continues as the standard SHO engine.

For the first time, an optional automatic transmission may be ordered on the high-performance Taurus SHO (Super High Output) model.

The other Taurus series for 1993 are the GL and the LX, available in both sedans and wagons. Body-color bumpers and bodyside moldings – for a contemporary monochromatic color scheme –as well as all-new seat trim have been added to the GL.

On the LX, exterior color choices expand from six to 10 monochromatic colors, and a new floor-mounted console is added. Both the LX and GL sedans

Its 220 horsepower engine responds quickly to a heavy foot on the accelerator pedal.

The leather covered sport bucket seats force proper posture. They have plenty of lumbar support and the adjustable side bolsters held me firmly in place when cornering hard.

Unlike seats most other performance cars, the seats in the Taurus SHO offer easy entry and exiting.

These seats offer the driver numerous power adjustments as well as four-way adjustable head restraints.

The interior is a blend between rugged workhorse and laid-back elegance. The leather wrapped steering wheel offers the driver the feeling of a high-performance sports car.

The Taurus SHO has a sound system that plays both cassettes and compact discs.

It also features a keyless entry device. Simply press a button and the doors will lock or unlock.

Later in the model year, Taurus will offer an optional cellular phone system with a hands-free speaker and microphone.

Later in the model year, Taurus will offer an optional cellular phone system with a hands-free speaker and microphone, and a transceiver that routes the sound through the car's speakers. When ordered with Ford's new High-Level Audio/JBL system, the sound system's audio automatically goes silent when the phone is in use.

Taurus safety features include a standard driver-side air bag supplemental restraint system (SRS), an optional passenger-side air bag SRS and an optional antilock braking system.

1993 Chevrolet Lumina

APV makes for a smooth ride on long trips

KEANE ON WHEELS
By Tom Keane

This report on the 1993 Chevrolet Lumina APV is written with fear and trepidation. The reason: I'm relying on my memory to explain a new feature.

A few weeks ago, I drove some vehicles in Chevrolet's 1994 line up. I was intrigued by the electric sliding door; it is such a marvelous idea that I quickly became fond of it. The only problem is that the electric door isn't new – it's just new to me. The option has been available during the latter part of the '93 model year, but I wasn't aware of it. So I quickly scheduled a 1993 APV for a test-drive.

Unfortunately, the vehicle I received didn't have the electric door, but if memory serves me correctly this is what I saw on the '94 model. Incidentally, the initials APV will not be used this coming year; it will simply be called a Lumina minivan.

As I recall, the side door slides open or shut by merely pressing one of two buttons, one just inside the door, the other by the steering wheel. The vehicle has to be in Park and the sliding door must be in the unlocked position. The system has numerous safety devices built into it, so there is no reason to fear a child's fingers being pinched.

Sliding the side door shut on any mini van has always been annoying to me. If sittin in a mid-row seat, I usually fail to shut the door fully on the first try. From the uide, I usually slam the door too hard

Using an electric motor is an excellent idea. Thy didn't someone think of this years ago?

I had another reason for scheduling the Lumina APV. Fdmily and friends were going to ride with me to a distant city to attend a wedding. I wnted them to be comfortable. Enough said.

1993 Chevrolet Lumina

Vehicle offers a plethora of safety features

You can't beat the ride of an APV on the highway This seven passenger vehicle rolls along like a big limousine.

Mid-row passengers have their own air conditioning fan controls. The only complaint I heard was the lack. of arm rest.

Come to think of it, I recall another objection that came from the person seated in the rear:

"How do you get out of here?"

The center seat near the door has to be folded down and forward to make exiting possible

. Finding and moving the proper levers was more good luck than good management.

Storage for the all-purpose van is a bit limited – if all seven passengers have luggage. Access to the storage area is by raising a large, overhead rear door.

However, the APV can be used as a workhorse by removing the interior seats, which is easier said than done.

There was another reason I scheduled this $22,091 vehicle for the trip: safety.

This vehicle has anti-lock brakes, manual lap and shoulder safety belts for the outboard front and rear seat positions, and an energy absorbing steering column and instrument panel.

The Lumina APV has many safety features that went unnoticed because – fortunately – I didn't use them.

This vehicle has anti-lock brakes, manual lap and shoulder safety belts for the outboard front and rear seat positions, and an energy absorbing steering column and instrument panel. But it lacks airbags.

The body panels are made of a durable plastic, which not only reduces road noise, it resists dents, dings and scratches.

Although the APV is one of the most enjoyable riding vehicles in the country, but in the city it's not so hot.

It is too big to park. The front end, which gives the vehicle a unique appearance, is too long.

I had no idea of the location of front the bumper. Pulling into a straight forward parking space was sort of touch and go.

And for the life of me, I have no idea how to clean the inside of the front windshield.

In spite of these negative comments, I can't wait until the '94 model becomes available.

I'll make it a point to schedule it the next time I have to take a large number of passengers on a long trip.

SPARE PARTS

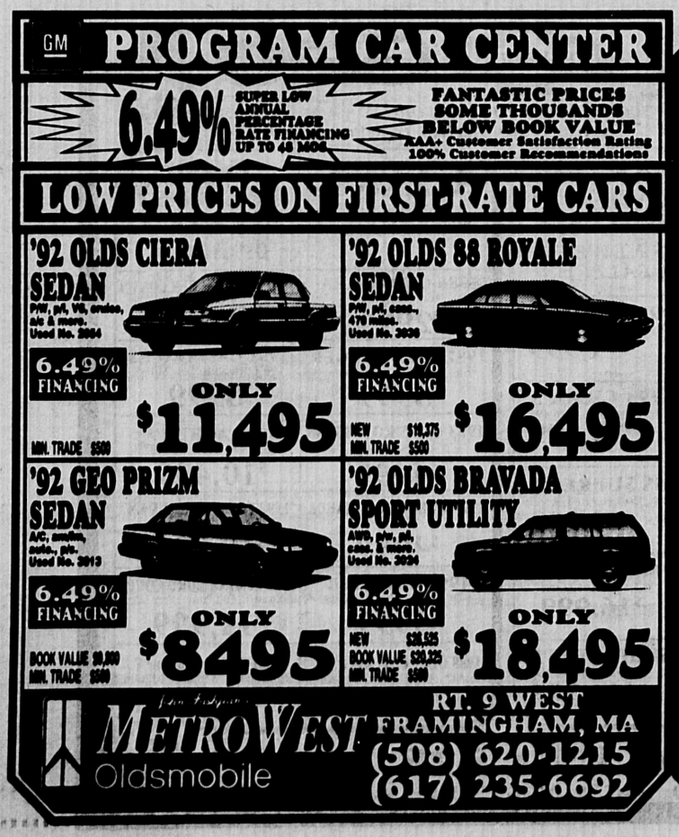

MILES PER DOLLAR: The cost of owning and operating a new car has gone up two cents since the end of March; it now averages 38.7 cents per mile. The American Automobile Association also reports that the $30 increase brings the total average yearly expenditure to $5,805, based on 15,000 miles of driving.

SIDE AIRBAGS: Mercedes-Benz engineers are researching the possible use of side airbags mounted in the front doors. Still in its pioneering stages, it requires an entirely new and complex technology for sensing side impact before it actually occurs. Because there is much less cushioning body structure available, there is less time for sensing and triggering a side airbag. Radar or infrared technology is being considered, possibility, but there is the complication of being triggered by such things as a passing bicycle.

DEADLY FIGURES: Statistics show that 5.4 million people are injured and 40,000 persons killed annually in motor vehicle accidents.

WORDS OF (CAR) WISDOM:

Wheelbase n. : the distance in inches between the front and rear axles of an automotive vehicle.

Schools open Sept. 8

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Students won't be the only ones preparing for their first day of school this fall – both teachers and school administrators will be among the new faces crowding the halls this year.

Sixteen new staff members will be joining the Winchester schools, five of whom are filling newly created positions at the elementary level.

For the bus schedule and school openings, see page 6A

One of those five new teachers is Katherine Scanlon, who will teach kindergarten at Lincoln School. She has been a substitute teacher in the district for two years, but becomes a permanent member in the Winchester district this year.

Scanlon, who has three children of her own in local schools, received her B.A. from Merrimack College and her M.A. in elementary school counseling from Framingham State. She started her career as a guidance counselor and has been a kindergarten teacher in Marlboro for six years.

"It's going to be a nice transition," Scanlon said, adding it has taken work

Relief effort still going strong

Total donations collected passes $4,500

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Food donations have come and gone from their resting place at the fire station, but cash keeps coming in for Winchester's Midwest flood relief effort.

The donations which had been building up at the fire station since the end of July were trucked away by Purity Aug. 21 to a loading station in Billerica. In a warehouse there, the food waits among approximately six truckloads of other non-perishable items destined for the Midwest.

"We've collected a phenomenal amount of food," said Paula Murray, a Purity public relations employee.

Purity is finished its collection drive and is now waiting to hear from Boston Foodbank, which is coordinating the area's relief efforts.

Meanwhile, the cash donations that totaled about $500 at the end of July have now reached approximately $4,700, according to Ed Goodwin, president of Winchester Co-operative Bank.

"It's growing every day," he said.

Goodwin said the donations are coming into the bank in smaller amounts, but the account is still growing every day. He speculated that by the holidays a sizable enough balance may be reached in the account to send a check to a relief organization in the Midwest, adding that the holidays would be an appropriate time of year to present the donation.

St. Vincent de Paul, an emergency aid group to which Goodwin said they've been leaning toward donating the money, made a point to say the need in the flood areas will go on for months.

The account uses the Town's tax ID number so that all donations may be deductible. Also, the use of the Town's number no longer requires the documentation of the donations to be submitted to the state and makes the Town Manager, Chadwick Maurer, the sole authority to withdraw the money.

Vellante joins Gables as director

By Deborah Trask
EDITOR

Beth Vellante says her workplace is a home away from home, but as the new director of a 125-unit retirement community, that's as it should be.

Her experience dealing with the special problems of the elderly population, Vellante says will help her in making the transition heading up the facility.

The Gables, an independent living facility for the area's elderly, is located on 14 acres off Cambridge Street and offers private apartments.

Specializing in assisting the elderly in keeping their independence, the staff says residents can then concentrate on pursuing other interests.

Gables Director Beth Vellante

Vellante joins the staff in Winchester from the parent company, AdvantageHEALTH Corporation where she worked at the Country Club Heights, in Woburn, for five years. Prior to that she was assistant director and then executive director at The Gables at Farmington (Ct.). She spent seven years on the staff at the Sherrill House in Boston. She has always worked with the elderly and says that's where her interest lies. Along with husband, John Vellante, a sports writer for The Boston Globe, she shares the responsibility of raising a three-year-old son, Gregory.

As the Gables fills Vellante said her focus will be less on marketing and more on outreach.

"We are here for the residents. I really respect these people," said Vellante in a recent interview in her office. When she joined the Winchester staff in May, Vellante moved the direc-

POLICE LOG

Sunday, August 22

9:22 a.m.
■ While on patrol, officer Philip Coss responded to a report of larceny at at a Town Way residence. At the scene, the officer spoke with an 80-year-old resident who stated that at around 10:30 p.m., Aug. 21, as she was getting ready for bed she noticed her driveway gate was open. Normally, the resident keep the gate closed, according to police reports, and didn't notice anything missing until the next morning. Reported stolen were a wrought iron settee and a round table.

Friday, August 20

11:37 p.m.
■ Officer Peter MacDonnell was dispatched to Washington and Mt. Vernon Street on a report of a man slumped over the wheel of his car. At the scene, the officer observed the man in the reported condition and while asking him if he was alright, smelled a strong odor of alcohol. The officer asked the man, a 33-year-old Billerica resident, to exit the vehicle and perform several sobriety tests. The man was then transported to the station and booked on charges of operating a vehicle under the influence, unregistered vehicle and attaching plates.

6:06 p.m.
■ While on patrol, officer Peter MacDonnell was dispatched to a Myrtle Street residence where he took a report of a motor vehicle accident involving a bicyclist which took place earlier in the day. At the scene, the officer spoke with a 44-year-old Winchester resident who stated, according to reports, that his son was riding his bike along Cambridge Street near the Boat Club when he was hit by a car. No injury occurred and the bike was not damaged, the man reported.

1:32 p.m.
■ Officer Arthur Houllahan was dispatched to a Swanton Street location on a report of a larceny from a car. At the scene, the officer spoke with a an employee at the location who stated sometime during the previous evening someone entered two of the company cars and stole a radio out of one of them. The officer checked the vehicles, but found no damage to the cars or signs of forced entry.

Thursday, August 19

4:57 p.m.
■ While on patrol, officer Peter MacDonnell responded to a report of a theft at a Washington Street address. At the scene, the officer spoke with an 81-year-old resident who stated that someone stole patio furniture from his yard. The resident had been away on vacation and was unable to say when the theft took place, according to police reports.

12:44 p.m.
■ Officer Carl Pasternack responded to a Main Street location on a report of a theft. At the scene, the officer spoke with a Winchester woman who stated that two intoxicated males entered her store and stole two hats. According to police reports, the woman stated one of the men took two Barney baseball caps while she was occupied selling a lottery ticket to the other man. The officer checked the area, but found no suspects.

10:20 a.m.
■ Officer Arthur Houllahan and officer Carl Pasternack responded to a report of a fight in front of the post office. At the scene, the officers spoke with a 26-year-old Arlington man who stated, according to reports, that while he was picking up mail he was confronted by a man carrying a baseball bat. The second man, a 25-year-old Stoneham resident, stated to police that he was being tail-gated by the other man who, when he parked in front of the post office to pick up mail, approached him in a threatening manner. A verbal confrontation took place but no blows were exchanged, according to police reports.

8:40 a.m.
■ While on patrol near Pond Street, officer Steven Fields observed a speeding black Ford Thunderbird. When the officer attempted to pull the stop the car, it sped off. A chase ensued until the driver of the speeding car eventually pulled over on Norfolk Road and exited the vehicle. The officer told the driver, a 48-year-old Arlington man, to get back in his car, but the man stated that the officer had no right to order him around, according to the police report. The driver would not give the officer his license and registration after being asked several times. He was placed under arrest, booked at the police station on charges of speeding and failing to produce license and registration, and transported to the Woburn district court.

8:11 a.m.
■ Officer Steven Fields responded to a Swnaton Street residence on a report of a theft. At the scene, the officer spoke with a Winchester resident who stated, according to police reports, that someone stole the bike cover off his motorcycle and his son's bicycle from the front porch of the house.

Tuesday, August 17

6:50 p.m.
■ Officer Kurt Ellis responded to a report of a larceny at a Lake Street residence. At the scene, the officer spoke with a 73-year-old man who stated he saw a man and a woman, approximately middle twenties, enter his garden. Upon putting his coat on and going to the garden, he stated he noticed numerous tomatoes missing. The officer checked the area but was unable to locate any suspects, according to police reports.

FIRE LOG

Saturday, August 21

10:02 p.m.
■ All apparatus responded to a Wedgemere Avenue location for an auto fire alarm. At the scene, firefighters found an alarm system malfunctioned and the owner was unable to contact the station in time to cancel. The system was reset. Returned to quarters at 10:12 p.m.

6:51 a.m.

Friday, August 20

10:36 a.m.
■ Engine 3 responded to a report of a residential lockout at a Horn Pond Brook Road location. At the scene, firefighters gained entry to the house by using a ladder to get to a first floor side window. No damage to the structure was necessary, according to reports. Returned to the station at 11:22 a.m.

Wednesday, August 18

8:21 p.m.
■ Engine 2 and the ambulance responded to a Ridge Street location for a medical aid. Firefighters assisted the ambulance crew in preparing a patient for transportation to the hospital. Engine 2 returned to the station at 8:37 p.m.

7:40 a.m.
■ Engine 3 and the ambulance responded to Cross Street and Holton Street on a report that a truck had struck the railroad bridge. By the time engines arrived at the scene, at 7:44 a.m., the accident vehicle was not observed in the area. Also, reports indicate firefighters observed no debris in the area. An M.W.R.A. employee who was at the scene stated to firefighters that the vehicle had left the scene. Engine 3 returned to the station at 7:48 a.m.

Tuesday, August 17

10:26 p.m.
■ Engine 3 was dispatched to Winford Way on a report of an explosion of a transformer. At the scene, firefighters found a power outage in the area. According to reports, a homeowner was at the scene to inform the firefighters investigating the situation that a nearby transformer pole had in fact exploded. No fire was detected in the area. Boston Edison was notified and Engine 3 returned to the station 10:44 p.m.

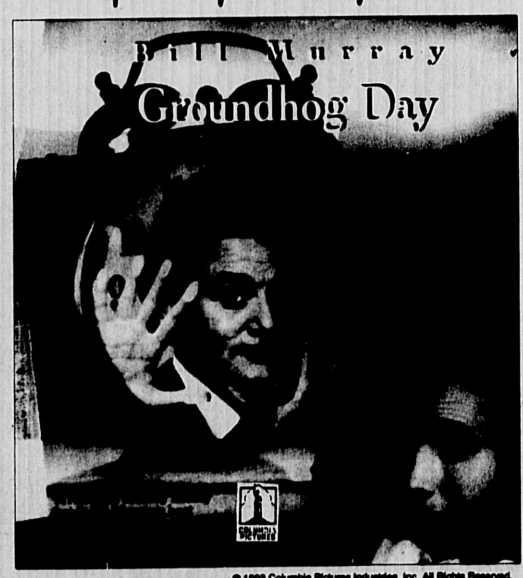

5:51 p.m.
■ When a fire alarm sounded at the Aberjona Nursing Home, all apparatus responded. Upon arrival at the scene, firefighters located a smoke detector on the third floor of the building in an alarm condition. The system had malfunctioned. Firefighters reset the alarm and returned to the station at 6:06 p.m.

Rash of bike thefts jump during summer

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Bikes may be made for riding, but if they aren't locked up at the proper time they get wheeled away into the sunset, or into the Aberjona River, according to police.

Four bikes were reportedly stolen in the last week, a number emerging as the average, according to police reports in recent months. There were seven bikes reported stolen in July, while the number has already reached seven so far in August.

Public Safety Officer Kevin Mawn said often times people who steal the bikes are just kids who want transportation from one place to another and see a bike as an easy way. They usually end up dumping the bikes in bushes or in the Aberjona, he said.

Three of the most recent thefts occurred sometime after 2:30 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 21, according to police reports.

While on patrol, officer Philip Coss responded to a report of a stolen bike at a Holland Street residence. At the scene, the officer spoke with a young man who stated he left his bike on the driveway at his residence around 6 p.m. Saturday and noticed it was missing the next morning.

Another officer responded to a similar call at a Lloyd Street residence, where a local resident told police that his friend's bike, valued at $500, was stolen from the front yard of his house sometime between 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 21.

On Aug. 22, a local resident reported at the police station that sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Aug. 21 someone stole his son's bike from the garage of his home.

A fourth bike was reported stolen Monday, Aug. 23. A Harvard Street resident reported to an officer at the station that sometime on Sunday, Aug. 22, a someone took her son's bike from the back porch of her residence.

Lt. James Pierce said the frequency in the number of bikes stolen is greater at times than others and although the local area has been hit in the past by a ring of bike thieves, the latest rash doesn't appear to be the same.

"There doesn't appear to be a pattern," Pierce said, adding that many times the bike thefts are a result of arguments between kids and are perpetrated in spite.

The ring exposed in the past was found to be interested in expensive racing bikes, he added.

Officer Mawn suggested people should register their bikes with the police and use locks when they're leaving their bike unattended in plain sight, including in their garage.

"You see most of the kids with chains around their seats but they don't lock the bikes," he said.

The police have a system for registering the bikes so they are able to notify the owner if the bike is reported stolen and then later recovered, Mawn said. The system is effective only for bikes that have been properly registered, he added.

Many times parents don't report the bikes stolen because, if the bike was insured, they are reimbursed by the insurance company and thus see no need to report the theft, Mawn said. That scenario, however, leads to the present situation at the police station of a roomful of recovered bikes which nobody has claimed.

Mawn said some of the bikes they've recovered have locks still on them which would have apparently prevented the theft in the first place. The Winchester police hold an auction at least every year to unload the bikes and the money goes into the town's general fund.

But no one profits from that since the town barely breaks even on the sales when compared to the personnel costs run up in the overtime it takes for them to hold the auction, Mawn added.

A panel of representatives from various housing and residential resources participated in the proceedings and described the uniqueness of their facilities. This presentation was planned and moderated by Brenda Pappas, the COA housing counselor located at the Center.

Promoting continence: strategies for success

Urinary incontinence, sometimes called our country's "last social taboo," is receiving increased public attention, according to AARP's National Eldercare Institute on Health Promotion. This health issue, which has been largely ignored and under-reported, affects an estimated 12 million Americans of all ages. "It is particularly common among the elderly, including approximately 15 to 30 percent of community dwelling older people and at least one-half of all nursing home patients. Prevalence rates are twice as high in women as in men, and are higher in older than in younger adults," according to the National Institutes of Health Consensus Development Conference statement. It is a primary reason for admission to nursing homes. Conservative estimates of the cost to society is upward of $10 billion annually.

Many Americans affected by incontinence withdraw from social life and are often reluctant to discuss their condition with their physician, family or friends. Other factors hamper successful treatment, including (1) the persistent belief that urinary incontinence is an inevitable part of aging, (2) failure of health care providers to acknowledge its significance, and (3) a lack of professional education and public awareness of the problem.

According to the Simon Foundation for Continence, there are some things individuals can do that can make a difference: Take charge:

1) Avoid denial — problems are always solved more effectively through awareness and action, as opposed to avoidance.

2) Become informed — you can find a health care professional who is interested and knowledgeable about incontinence to help you learn about the variety of treatments that exist, including drug therapy, surgery, and behavioral techniques.

3) See your doctor — incontinence is a symptom and may indicate an underlying medical disorder that needs attention. Your doctor can best diagnose and treat your condition. He or she can also review your medication to see if it is contributing to incontinence.

4) Watch your weight and diet — obesity and constipation can contribute to bladder control problems. Eat foods high in fiber and carbohydrates.

5) Drink plenty of water and avoid certain fluids — avoiding bladder irritants, such as caffeine (found in coffee, tea, and soda), spices and acidic juices may improve incontinence.

6) Learn Kegel exercises — these exercises involve tightening and relaxing key pelvic muscles. They are effective with women when sneezing or coughing and men who experience bladder control problems following prostate surgery.

WINCHESTER NEWS

Increased activity in disease-carrying ticks

By Will Morton
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Campers or hikers, planning to vacation in coastal areas might want to be aware of the tick that carries Lyme Disease, because summer is its active period.

Lyme Disease (LD) is transmitted to humans by a particular type of infected little tick no bigger than a poppy seed, normally found on deer and other animals. The ticks cling to vegetation and are found mostly in brushy, wooded habitats.

An infection usually begins with a characteristic rash that spreads in a circular pattern around the bite. In later stages of the disease problems may arise in a person's joints, nervous system, or heart.

In the past year, at least two cases have occurred in Winchester in residents who contracted the disease while away in Ipswich and Cape Cod, according to Brian D'Angona, an emergency medicine physician at Winchester Hospital.

"But not everyone who gets bit by a tick gets infected with Lyme Disease," he encouraged, citing the possibility for hysteria over bug bites.

D'Angona said there has been hysteria in recent years about LD because information about the disease is becoming more public. Years ago, he said, people wouldn't have thought much about a mosquito or a tick bite.

"They're more informed, and more scared," he said, adding that only about 30 percent of the people bitten actually remember it.

When treating patients who seem to show signs of the infection, D'Angona said the crucial information to obtain is their location at the time they may have been bitten by one of the ticks. In Massachusetts, the ticks are known to be prevalent on Cape Cod and other coastal areas.

"We certainly over-treat more often than we see the disease," he said.

Dr. Jonathan Adler, a Winchester infectious disease specialist, said he saw one case of LD this summer. He diagnosed a young girl, he said, whose roommate noticed she had a rash similar to the one exhibited in the early stage of the disease.

The young girl has been treated, he said, adding they discovered she had been bitten by the tick on Long Island, N.Y. only after narrowing down and comparing the places she had been where diseased ticks are known to occur.

You can have the disease and not know it, Adler said.

Treating people who are in the later stages of the disease can be frustrating, Adler said, because there is always a chance the symptoms are being caused by some other medical problem. When a patient exhibits symptoms involving the joints, the nervous system or the heart, as they tend to do in the later stages of the disease, it could be anything, he said.

"You don't know what you're looking for to begin with," he said. "One of the biggest problems we are facing in the medical world with this disease is treating people on the basis of symptoms that aren't from Lyme Disease," he added.

When LD is in fact diagnosed, however, there are several treatments available to the physician and the patient. One is the administering of a drug called doxycycline for up to three weeks, longer if necessary.

Notes from the Children's Room

Nearly 600 children, ages 3 to 11, took part in the Winchester Public Library's "Go For Books" Summer Reading Program this year, reading more than 3,000 books.

A popular part of this program was "The Putting Green," a miniature golf green constructed by David Strugnell. Using this "green," children were guided to different kinds of books, such as historical fiction, mysteries, or science fiction.

Younger children in the "Read To Me" club sampled cassettes, fiction, magazines, poetry, folklore, and nonfiction, as well as the usual picture books. The children who participated also took part in seven weeks of activities that were funded by the Friends of the Winchester Public Library. These included a program on the environment by Slim Goodbody's friend, Bill Strong; stories and music from The Emerald Isle, performed by Debbie O'Carroll; a demonstration of Irish step dancing by the students of Rita O'Shea; and a breakfast of Green Eggs and Ham served by the Children's Room "chefs."

The Pumpernickel Puppeteers, featuring Puppeteer John McDonough, presented the play, "The Frog Prince." Rebecca Emberley, author of City Sounds, Drawing With Numbers And Letters, Jungle Sounds, My House, and Taking a Walk, led two hands-on sessions; and volunteer, Nicole McCarthy, held two miniature garden workshops.

Several drop-in picnics and craft programs were presented by the Children's librarians. The "choose-your-own-adventure" game, Close Encounter With The Green Man, gave a challenge to youngsters.

The Summer Reading Program concluded with an "end of the summer" party on Manchester Field.

Participants in this year's program may pick up a reading log lily pad and frog before the end of August. Winners of the "Name The New Nameless Crayola Crayons," and "Witches Fingers" contests will he contacted this month.

This fall's story time sessions will be coming up soon. Registration will begin on Monday, Sept. 13.

For information on any of the Winchester Public Library's services for children, call the Children's Room at 721-7140.

EMERSON COLLEGE
MAKING COMMUNICATION WORK FOR YOU!

GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL

The Division of Continuing Education is pleased to bring Emerson College closer to you. We have received many requests for a satellite location in the Metro West area to accommodate the time and travel needs of those students who work full-time and find it difficult to commute to our Boston campus. Our new Metro West site offers an opportunity to the student who would like to get a head start on his or her graduate degree. A student may take up to 12 credits before matriculating into the graduate program. In addition, our Newton curriculum is specifically oriented to the professional who may not be looking to pursue a graduate degree but is interested in honing communication skills.

Schedule for the opening of schools

Elementary schools

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 8, 9 and 10, will be early release days for all elementary students. Students in grades 1 through 5 in the Vinson-Owen, Muraco and Lincoln Schools will report at 8:30 a.m. and will be dismissed at 11:35 a.m. Students in grades 1 through 5 in the Ambrose School and in grades 1 through 5 and K-1 at the Lynch School will report at 8:45 a.m. and will be dismissed at 11:50 a.m. This same time schedule will be observed on all elementary early release days. Beginning Monday, Sept. 13, dismissal of the Vinson-Owen, Muraco and Lincoln Schools will be at 2:25 p.m. Dismissal of students at the Ambrose and Lynch Schools will be at 2:50 p.m. Individual letters noting a time schedule and reporting date will be sent to parents of students entering kindergarten. The lunch program in the elementary schools will commence on Monday, September 13. A half-hour lunch period will be scheduled for elementary school students, except for those in kindergarten, and will be preceded by a 15-minute, teacher-supervised recess.

McCall Middle School

7:45 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.

Students in grade 6 will report to the McCall Middle School at 7:45 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 8, for a full day of school. Students in grades 7 and 8 will report at 7:45 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 9. Lunch will be served to middle school students starting Sept. 8. All classes will be in session of Friday, Sept. 10.

Winchester High School

7:45 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.

Students in grade 9 will report to Winchester High School at 7:45 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 8 for a full school day. Students in grades 10, 11 and 12 will report at 7:45 on Thursday, Sept. 9. Lunch will be served to high school students commencing Sept. 8. All classes will be in session on Friday, Sept. 10.

Bus transportation for School year 1993-94

As a result of recent changes in the laws of the Commonwealth regarding busing of students to and from school, only students who live more than two miles from school will be transported free of charge.

Again this year the Winchester School Department will offer bus transportation, for a fee, for those students who live less than two miles from school. Passes are $150 for one rider, $100 for the second rider and $50 for the third rider. A family with three or more riders will be charged a maximum of $300.

Bus routes will be essentially the same as last year. If, after reviewing the route and time schedule, you would like to purchase a bus pass you may do so by contacting Eileen Foley, transportation coordinator at 721-7001.

All passes are to be purchased by Friday, Sept. 3, and students will be required to present passes the first day of school, Sept. 8.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS
THE GREAT AMERICAN INVESTMENT

PUTTING THE PEDAL TO THE METAL CAN HAVE A WHOLE NEW MEANING.

The shock, the anguish, the damage — the results of a crash far outweigh the time you save by driving fast. It's a fact that your chances of hitting someone or something increase as you exceed the speed limit. A crash like this can happen in a heartbeat. And when it does, it will change your life forever.
SPEEDING. GETS YOU NOWHERE. FAST.

HOME BUYING PSYCHOLOGY
QUESTION: Just how important a factor is overpricing when selling a home?
ANSWER: Buyers buy homes by comparison. The average buyer is no slouch. He'll shop a particular neighborhood and home type. He'll rarely buy the first one he visits. It's too big an investment to be nonchalant. He will then compare prices against comparative value. He'll quickly throw out any obviously overpriced home.
If the buyer really likes an overpriced home, he may make a counter offer at a lower price – close to its true value. Historically, the buyer probably will make his offer for one properly valued. Overpricing will hurt a sale.

OVERPRICING will hurt a sale. Buyers compare prices. So you may lose some good prospects.

SOCIAL NEWS

Marion Brettner to wed Gregory Fields

Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Brettner of Auburn, N.Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Marion H., to Gregory F. Fields, son of Frank and Gaynor Fields of Winchester.

The future bride is a graduate of Hobart/William Smith Colleges where she received her bachelor of science degree in biology. She is a oncology/biotech representative in Boston for Schering Laboratories of New Jersey.

Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, where he received his bachelor of science in mechanical engineering. He earned his master's degree in business administration at Northeastern University. He is a graduate of Lexington High School, class of 1981, and is a product manager for GTECH Corporation of Rhode Island.

An October wedding is planned.

Gregory Fields and Marion Brettner

Eileen and Jonathan Kranz

Eileen Donovan is bride of Jonathan Kranz

Eileen Donovan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon J. Donovan of Winchester, was recently married to Jonathan Kranz, son of Marianne Kranz of Kendall Park, N.J. and Edward Kranz of Melrose, N.J.

The bride's uncle, David I. Donovan, S.J., performed the evening ceremony at St. Eulalia's Church in Winchester.

The bridal party included matron of honor and sister of the bride, Maureen Donovan Oliver. Bridesmaids were Kathleen Donovan Provenzano, Juleen Donovan Gantley, Jenny Lawler, and niece of the bride, Katie Oliver.

Ushers included Robert DeMartino cousin of the groom, David Donovan, Mark Donovan, and nephew of the bride, Jay Provenzano. Christopher Kranz, brother of the groom, served as best man. Nieces of the bride, Erin Oliver, Danielle Provenzano and Erica Gantley were flower girls.

The bride received her bachelor of arts degree in English from Boston College, her master of arts degree in English from Northeastern University and her master of fine arts degree in fiction writing from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. She teaches English at Boston College.

The groom received his bachelor of arts degree in fine arts from Rutgers University and is studying for his master of fine arts degree in fiction writing from Emerson College. He is employed by Conley and Hodge, Boston.

The couple honeymooned in Manhattan and will live in Somerville.

A new day

It seems appropriate as the start of a new school year approaches to take a moment to assess the progress of the School Committee over the past year.

First, as the committee gets under way with a full schedule of meetings, we can't help but encourage it to confront whatever obstacles lay in its path with a new sense of vigor following the success of the budget process that led into the summer months.

We think it may have been a world record for the passage of the school budget in front of Spring Town Meeting, but we're not sure.

Certainly there was lively debate prior to reaching a consensus. But, the fact remains a consensus was reached without prolonged acrimony; acrimony that has crippled the committee in the past.

Although the reconfigured committee worked with the Finance Committee long hours, work invisible to the Town Meeting floor, it paid off in harmonious discussion on the night it was put forth.

We congratulate the committee for its work and encourage that same harmony as a meaningful addition to the town's budget talks in the future.

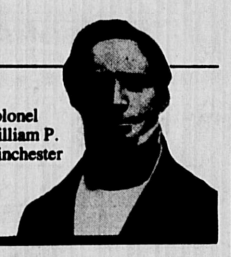

In addition, since we think the School Committee has a great deal of work ahead, we hope it brings a healthy dose of creative thinking for the new school year.

The winds of change promulgated by the Education Reform Act of 1993 are creating if not monumental change, at least some change in the status quo.

We hope the committee can steer a steady course over the next few months and keep working together. It could represent a new day for Winchester.

Changing Fortunes

By Dan Chene
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Prior to 1905 when Winchester's Episcopalians built a new and much larger church — way out on Church Street — all six religious faiths occupied buildings in the downtown area of Winchester.

It was a tie between Saint Mary's on Washington and the wooden Unitarian Church (which sat where the south wing of McCall Middle School has since been built) as to which was the farthest from the railroad crossing.

By the time the Episcopalians had removed to Church Street, the Unitarians had built a beautiful new stone church closer to town.

In the early 1920s the Methodists moved out of their Mount Vernon Street building to a new church building at the former Pattee Estate on Church Street.

The Baptists, however, held great affection for their original site at Washington and Mount Vernon Streets, and thus when the original building began bursting at the seams, they reluctantly tore it down in 1927 and built the present stately church/condominium on the same spot.

The original Methodist Church was a commodious wooden structure with an ornate corner belfry, and it stood on the now vacant land opposite Central Fire Station.

It was a typical New England church building of the last century — four square and featuring stained glass windows in "the Tiffany manner." Dominating the facade above the wooden fretwork of the portico was a circular rose window.

While the original Episcopal Church beside the river on the opposite side of the street became the First Church of Christ Scientist after being vacated by its original congregation, the Methodist Church was sold in 1920 and was deconsecrated.

Its new owner, the New England Laundries (which build and operated out of the present Mill Pond Building) spent a goodly sum remodeling it for more secular purposes.

At that time, much of the stained glass and all of the pews were donated to the newly established New Hope Baptist Church — the church of the local black community — on Cross Street.

The former Methodist Church building was used for recreation by employees of New England Laundries — and the Laundry Orchestra under the direction of T. Parker Clarke used to to perform there.

In the early 1940s Aberjona Post 3719, Veterans of Foreign Wars met there and the town also made an attempt to establish a youth center in the building.

Throughout the 1940s decade the former church rapidly deteriorated and much of the gray and buff paintwork had flaked off the warped clapboards of the once beautiful church beside Mill Pond.

In October, 1957 the angels turned their backs on the 80 year-old structure ad the wrecker's ball reduced proud ecclesiastical tradition to splinters.

Pets require careful nurturing

TERRY MAROTTA
COLUMNIST

Having a pet is like being in a marriage: it's comfortable, it keeps your feet warm nights, but it's work. Don't let anyone tell you different.

We tried having two cats for a long time — too long, as it turned out for the drapes. As the little one grew, she seemed to go webbed under the arms, and, like a bat, like a flying squirrel, began zooming through the air to land, talons extended, on the plush back of the older cat, who reacted with the alarm of a Club matron suddenly set upon by young people with eyebrow piercings and nose tattoos.

They fought, in short. I felt like Judge Wapner most of the time. Eventually, asking sky-high severance, the feisty one agreed to take her flying squirrel act someplace else.

Then we tried a lizard that kept crawling out of her little lizard condo to bask on a bookcase by an attic window — where one day we found her, hardened into a kind of brooch.

We tried fish, who turned themselves into chowder every weekend we went away. We'd leave 'em, Fridays, doing their dance-of-the-seven veils in crystal clear water, and return Sundays to find a thick cloudy broth, and the dancers changed into filleted bits that bobbed among the plastic plants and treasure chests.

We even tried a turtle, who would remind you of the joke where the drunk in a saloon surprises everyone by performing a never-been-done darts feat and is given as a prize the turtle from the bar's terrarium; comes back a month later, performs it again, and, when asked by the now-at-a-loss bartender, "What did we give you last time?" answers "Some roast beef on a hard roll."

This particular hard roll wouldn't eat. We kept bringing her back to the pet shop to see what was wrong. "That turtle?," they said scratching their heads. "That turtle's resting." In the end, she rested just enough make her break and head for the lake.

So we knew: except for the plush cat, who by now could double as a kind of ottoman, we had failed. We had wanted pets we could take for granted. And there ain't no such animal.

Our friend Ellen knows this. She got Dori 17 years ago, when she was still living at home and working as a lifeguard. The little dog was the last of a litter, said the kids who brought her to the pool that day; if Ellen didn't take her, she'd be destroyed.

So Ellen took Dori. And Dori took Ellen: to graduate school in New York, to that first job in Connecticut, and finally to Vermont where she lives today with her husband Don. Dori was a part of the family. She even signed all the cards the cards they sent, with a paw print over her name.

When you went to their house, she'd bark you in; then perch in front of you, gazing into your eyes and hoping for tidbits. She was there with Ellen as she made her wedding cake; stayed up with her the night before the Big Event as she finished making her gown; she even went along on the honeymoon.

And as time went on, she made her adjustments: to age, that muffled her hearing and put a hitch in her trot; to circumstances, that brought a little boy into their lives three years ago now. She adored her mistress: if Ellen had put a litter of hyperactive kittens in her bed, Dori would have made the best of it.

But this spring she'd really slowed down: went all a-tremble in her legs and made mistakes on the rug. One day she slipped out and didn't come back. Fearing the worst, they called the police. As a matter of fact, a deceased canine had just been reported.

Ellen went to the station and identified her friend. "Can I take her with me?" The policeman said yes.

The three-year-old was in his nap. Ellen dug a hole over by the oak. "How deep?," we asked later, knowing something about her condition. "By the time I was done I was standing in it," she said dismissively.

She laid Dori gently in a box; added some dog biscuits ("for the journey, like the Egyptians did"); covered her over; and 48 hours later gave birth to a second child, who will know Dori only in legend.

It's not easy having a pet, any more than it is being in a marriage. We're better off realizing from the start that it's not supposed to be.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Despite tragedy, greyhounds can make great pets

To the editor:

I write in response to your Greyhound news story of Aug. 12.

I am the owner of a 3-year-old retired greyhound and wish to express my sympathy to both families involved in the incident. Tragically, they both lost wonderful pets.

I would like to inform your readers that many greyhounds can and do live peacefully with cats and other pets. The adoption agency carefully screens potential owners prior to showing you any dogs. Dogs are evaluated for several weeks to determine their suitability as a pet. Every effort is made to make a good match.

Our dog, adopted through Greyhound Placement Service, has been a wonderful addition to our lives and I encourage continued efforts to save more greyhounds. The entire breed should not be branded for the actions and instincts shared by many other kinds of dogs.

Careful education of owners and proper matching of pets can reduce unfortunate situations as recently occurred in Winchester.

Sharon M. Stark

Sayre and SCATE thank reporter

To the editor:

I would like to extend my sincerest thanks to Jim McKenzie and the Winchester Star. Jim covered a two month long, nationwide event with which I was involved, with skills far superior to any which I have witnessed. Having been involved with approximately 50 journalists and close to 20 television news crews during the preparation and completion of our SCATE (Stop Cancer Across The Earth) project, I noticed both differing styles and abilities; those which Jim displayed are deserving of great recognition.

Although the SCATE project was billed as raising awareness and funds for cancer, its goals included one message perhaps more important then even the pursuit of defying cancer. We, as four college students, hoped to inspire others to put their own interests and abilities to good use for other people. Many people gave us far too much credit for merely making the physical trek across the country. In explaining to them that we skated across the country because it was fun and we thought we could help the fight against cancer by doing it, we tried to publicize our message.

It is very hard to publicize a message such as this. Jim McKenzie did more for the SCATE message than even we could; he showed the Star's readers that each and every person has abilities to lend to community service. His articles on SCATE were used early last fall to begin to solicit support and led to donations from such companies as Winnebago, Kodak, Ragu, and the Boston Bruins. During the spring and summer, he kept the entire community informed of our progress, and his articles inspired donations from many readers. Many local families have mentioned in the last few days, how much they enjoyed following along on the trip with us. The weeks prior to our arrival, Jim gained the support and the local television and news media, resulting in coverage by NBC, CBS, and Associated Press. We applaud him for all the work which he put into SCATE, and his personal contribution to the SCATE message.

The week before we arrived home, I asked Jim to skate from Winchester Common into Boston with us on our final leg. He was not able to do so (whether it was because he had had his skates stolen or had too much softball the past weekend I do not know), yet Jim McKenzie put his abilities to work for the SCATE project in an inspiring and model way. He accomplished, through his articles and commitment

ON THE RECORD

The Board of Health will hold a rabies clinic on Saturday, Sept. 25, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Department of Public Works. Residents are encouraged to bring in their cats and dogs for a vaccination against the disease. Every week this summer at least one or two sick raccoons have needed to be destroyed by police, indicating the rampant nature of the disease among the animals. Given that raccoon activity generally picks up in the fall, it might be a good idea to take the step of vaccinating your pet.

This week, 28 parcels of land are advertised as legal notices in the classifieds by the town's Collector of Taxes, Carol A. Thomas. The taxes due are from 1991. Considering what in some cases looks like a pittance owed on the parcel, it would be a shame for someone to not pay and thus face losing it all. If some of the language in the legal notices does not make sense, don't worry — that's legalese.

Testing of the water in Wedge Pond will continue, but the method the Board of Health uses won't be the same. During their investigation of what caused unusually high levels of bacteria in the water, so high that they had to close the beach, board members realized they were taking samples from the surface of the water where duck and geese material tends to float.

Board member Randall Swartz said he and Board of Health Director Joe Tabbi realized they had been submerging a water sampling bottle after taking the cap off the bottle, which led to more surface water in the bottle. Now, Swartz said, they are going to try submerging the bottle first and then take the cap off the bottle, thus getting a more accurate reading.

In light of that discovery, it would seem the real problem is not the method of sampling, but the geese and the ducks.

Common Cause, an organization interested in campaign finance reform, will hold a meeting Thursday, Aug. 26, at 7:30 p.m. at 13 Madison Ave., Winchester. Nathan Gibson, an executive director for Common Cause, will discuss the efforts being made across the state to diminish the influence of special interests. The organization is gearing up for a petition drive to get the 100,000 signatures necessary to put a campaign finance reform proposal on the ballot. They will be asking for local coordinators and signature gatherers. Put a stop, the group suggests, to the carousing in tropical surroundings between lobbyists and legislators.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 20 — Report No. 30
August 20, 1993

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. A very small percentage of the more than 8,000 bills filed for consideration in 1993 have actually been signed into law. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" updates legislative action and local legislators' votes on six key measures which have made it through the lengthy legislative process and been signed by Governor Weld or become law over his veto.

The House and Senate continue their summer recess and are meeting only in brief, informal sessions. Formal sessions are expected to reconvene after Labor Day. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

ECONOMIC STIMULUS (S 1517) — Approved by Senate 36-0, House 151-0 and signed by the governor was the economic stimulus package raising the investment tax credit from 1 percent to 3 percent. The package includes a "sunset" provision eliminating the increased tax credit after three years and a $15 million loan guarantee fund for small high technology businesses.

A Yes vote is for the bill. A No vote is against it. One senator voted No but her vote was "paired" under the Senate voting system and is not reflected in the 36-0 tally.

Rep. Paul Casey voted yes.
Sen. Charles Shannon voted yes.

BOSTON GARDEN (H 4639) — Approved by Senate 37-0, House 146-1 and signed by the governor was the final piece of the bill allowing construction of the new $160 million Boston Garden.

A Yes vote is for the bill. A No vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.
Shannon voted yes.

EDUCATION PACKAGE (H 1000) — Approved by Senate 31-8, House 108-46 and signed by the governor was the bill overhauling the state's public education system. The measure is estimated to cost $175 million in new school aid for fiscal 1994 and some $1.3 billion by the seventh year. It requires most communities to spend more of their local revenues on schools.

Other key provisions include abolition of teacher tenure and performance based testing for students.

A Yes vote is for the bill. A No vote is against it.
Casey voted no.
Shannon voted yes.

LOCKOUT (S 1523) — Senate 32-5, House 121-27 overrode Gov. Weld's veto of the bill giving unemployment benefits to workers locked out by employers during a labor dispute. The override means the bill becomes law.

A Yes vote is for the bill. A No vote is against it. Casey voted yes.
Shannon voted yes.

FISCAL 1994 BUDGET (H 5300) — Approved by House 142-11, Senate 36-1 was the $15.5 billion fiscal 1994 state budget. Gov. Weld signed the package after making several vetoes. Provisions include $175 million in new education aid; a $20 million increase in new general local aid; $30 million in water and sewer rate relief; and legalization of Keno gambling.

A Yes vote is for the budget. A No vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.
Shannon voted yes.

MASSPIRG (H 5200, S 1994) — Approved by Senate 20-19, House 93-56, was a budget amendment ending the system under which a fee for the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MassPIRG) is included on annual tuition bills at state colleges and universities. Currently the fee is eliminated only if students check a box declining to pay the fee. Under the amendment, the fee is not automatically assessed and students would have the option to contribute through the voluntary "positive checkoff" of a box.

The amendment was part of the budget package signed by Gov. Weld and it becomes effective on Oct. 18. MassPIRG is currently attempting to collect 46,868 signatures to suspend the new law and place the entire question on the 1994 ballot for voter consideration.

A Yes vote is for the voluntary "positive checkoff" system. A No vote is for the "negative checkoff" which assesses the fee unless a student declines to pay it.

Casey voted yes.

Shannon voted yes.
Walsh voted yes on the first vote and no on the second vote.

Legislators are backing recycling lottery

To the editor:

We are writing in support of Senate Bill 433, "An Act for Legislation to Provide for the Establishment of a Lottery Fund by the Deposits on Returned Beverage Containers."

The bill, which we sponsored with Joseph Mozzicato, Jr. of Winchester will establish a lottery system which, when combined with the deposit system we now have, will initiate a greater compliance with the present bottle bill providing a choice of cash or lottery to the consumer when returning beverage containers.

In addition, the environment will be an obvious winner in that less solid waste will be going into landfill. It is estimated that 425 million to 1.6 billion containers end up in landfills each year. Presently almost half of Massachusetts landfills have been closed.

Finally, this recyclable lottery system will generate funds to the state in both revenue collected in taxes from lottery winners, and also by the spending in consumable goods which will stimulate the Massachusetts economy as well as create jobs in the recycling industry.

Vellante joins Gables as director

tor's office from an alcove in a corner office to the center of the facility.

"I think I bring experience to the Gables, I've been working with senior citizens for 15 years," added Vellante. She said her primary objective is to get to know the residents, and then begin some community outreach to get residents of the Gables more involved in Winchester.

Vellante says people can sometimes carry the wrong impression of independent living facilities. "This is not just a hotel where people come to live," she said, adding that all of the staff is encouraged to be involved with the residents. "We need to be like an extended family," said Vellante.

She wants to change the perception that assisted living is a major part of what the Gables does. Some 78 percent of the population lives independently while the balance requires some assistance with basic living tasks, according to Vellante.

Relief effort strong

At their last meeting, when they approved the use of the Town's tax ID number, Board of Selectmen members noted the unusual nature of the request but approved it nonetheless, discussing later the possibility that Maurer go to the Midwest to present the money in person.

More local efforts for flood relief victims are being organized.

Carolyn O'Brien, who set up the cash donation account with Goodwin at the bank, is now trying to organize a benefit for Midwest flood relief in September to raise more money.

She said she has booked the Town Hall auditorium for Sept. 27 and is trying to get the cast members of either 'Forever Plaid' or 'Nunsense' to perform at the benefit. Several businesses in town have already donated their time to the benefit.

La Patisserie will donate cheese and crackers during intermission of the benefit, while another other local companies have donated gift certificates for a raffle scheduled to be held that night also. O'Brien said the performances by 'Forever Plaid' or 'Nunsense' seem more than tentative, but the companies have yet to be contracted.

O'Brien said in an interview last week that when she went on vacation, she got the impression when she got back that Winchester's Midwest flood relief effort had sort of "fizzled out."

"And that can't happen," she said, suggesting that given time, most people tend to forget the immediacy of the need of the flood victims.

Regan attends culinary arts program at Johnson & Wales

Carrie Regan of Winchester recently attended Johnson & Wales University's Career Explorations Weekend. She is the daughter of Mr. Bernard Regan of Taft Circle, and a student at Winchester High School.

Designed to help high school students with career decision-making, the summer Culinary Arts Career Explorations Program introduced students to career opportunities in basic culinary arts through hands-on experience and demonstrations. Laboratory experience included garde manger and the basic skills of sauteing, grilling and pastry.

Opened in 1973, the College of Culinary Arts at Johnson & Wales University offers two-year degree programs in culinary arts and baking and pastry arts. Students may continue their studies toward bachelor of science degrees in culinary arts, foodservice management and food marketing. More than 3,000 students are enrolled in culinary arts programs offered at the University's campuses in Providence, R.I., Charleston, S.C., Norfolk, Va., North Miami, Fla., and Vail, Colo.

Kolligan is graduate of Northeastern University

Gregory A. Kolligian Jr., the son of Rose Kolligian of Winchester and the late Gregory Archie Kolligian, graduated from Northeastern University in Boston on June 19. He majored in economics with a double minor in political science and history. While at Northeastern, he was very active in the Young Republicans' Committee.

Kolligian is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. John D. Avedisian of Cranston, R.I., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Mgrdich Kolligian of Winchester.

Sheehan is graduate of Northeastern

Maura (Leonard) Sheehan, daughter of Robert and Rita Leonard of Wildwood Street, Winchester, graduated in December from Northeastern University School of Law.

In February, she sat for the 1993 Massachusetts bar exam and was admitted to the bar in June. While attending Northeastern, Sheehan did co-ops with the Honorable Patti B. Saris, Thornton, Early & Naumes of Boston, The U.S. Attorney's Office — Major Crimes Division and Conservation Law Foundation.

Presently, Sheehan is an attorney at the law offices of Stephen J. Kiely & Associates in Boston, where she concentrates in breast implant litigation. Sheehan is also an instructor of criminal law at Bunker Hill Community College in Charlestown. She is the wife of USAF Captain Tim Sheehan, and the mother of Megan, age 11, and Timmy Sheehan, age 8.

Winchester nurse honored by VA

Laurie McNair, a licensed practical nurse at the Boston VA Medical Center, received the Secretary of Veterans Affairs Award for Excellence in Nursing. It is the highest honor a nurse can receive in the VA system.

McNair has consistently shown a concern and respect for the veteran patients and has provided quality nursing care while collaborating with all members of the health care team.

"Ms. McNair exhibits enthusiasm and enjoyment and has been an asset to this medical center," said Smith Jenkins Jr., medical center director.

McNair is a graduate of Silver Lake Regional High School in Pembroke and Quincy College, where she received her LPN degree. She is currently taking courses to obtain her registered nurse degree. A resident of Winchester, McNair has worked for the medical center for the past three years.

to get to a point of feeling that way.

A lot of her summer has been spent preparing for the coming year. She said she's collected literature and other material for the young students and has already been in to set up the classroom.

Joining Scanlon on the list of kindergarten teachers filling new positions is Kathleen MacDonald, who will be teaching at Ambrose School, and three first grade teachers: Rhonda Cohen at Lincoln, Elizabeth Johnson at Vinson Owen, and Suzanne Pittorino at Lynch.

The hiring of five new school staff members at the lower level was needed to compensate for enrollment increases, said Supt. Robert Fitzgerald in an interview last week.

Fitzgerald added that in the past the district found itself hiring more people at the higher level and making cuts in lower level staff, but trends in the student population have turned around. More students are enrolling in the lower schools as the students in higher level move through the system, he said.

The other new staff members in the district this fall include administrator Dr. Kathleen Buckley, principals Richard Burchill and Rosalie Tashjian, asst. principal Judith Kelly, clinical counselor Susan Leichtman, asst. football coach Jeffrey Russo and teachers Amy Fradkin, Ellen Beth Lebovitz, Michael Mayer, Michael Silberstein and Gale Town.

Assistant Superintendent Tom Budrewicz said the new staff members should feel proud to be with the district, considering, for instance, there were over 1,000 applications for the five elementary positions.

"All the people we've hired are great people," he said.

On top of getting to know the students, the facilities and their co-workers, the new staff will be faced with the challenge of making transitions under the mandates and requirements of the Education Reform Act of 1993, he said.

One of the mandates of the legislation states that by no later than 40 days after the beginning of school, councils be set up made up of members of the school faculty and parents.

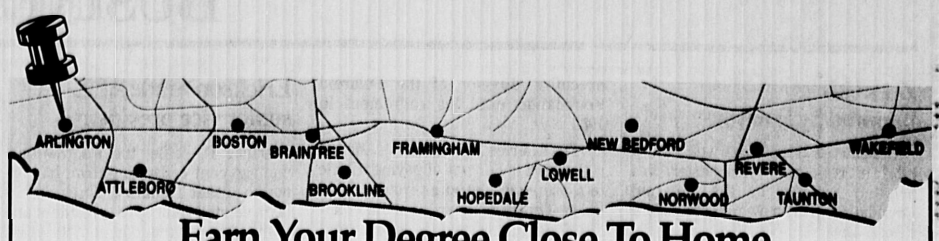

Budrewicz said the Winchester school district should be able to set up the councils with little trouble, since they've had similar councils set up in the district in the past when there was enough money in the budget to allow it.

Schools were being criticized for not being sensitive to the parents' and students wishes, Budrewicz said, adding the new councils should satisfy the problems suggested by that criticism.

"They'll have a voice, a legitimate vehicle for having their thoughts known," he said.

The new staff's job will be to understand what's happening in the building, to get to know the kids, their routine and the curriculum.

"They are in (place), anxious and ready to go," he said.

Zerwekh honored by Polaroid

The late Charles E. Zerwekh Jr., a longtime resident of Winchester, was honored recently by the Polaroid Foundation with an award established in his name.

The Charles E. Zerwekh Jr. Memorial Award is presented to an employee of Polaroid Corporation who, as a member of the Polaroid Foundation, brings exceptional innovation and creativity to the process of grantmaking. Zerwekh was a founding member and executive director of the Polaroid Foundation until his retirement in 1982.

"The Charles E. Zerwekh Jr. Memorial Award is our way of paying tribute to a man who played a pivotal role in helping to shape the spirit of the Polaroid Foundation," said Donna Furlong, Polaroid Foundation associate director.

Zerwekh lived in Winchester for many years with his wife Hilde and three children — Jay, Zoe and Kim. In 1991, the couple moved to Castle Creek, N.Y.

Erickson made ADL senior vice president

Arthur D. Little, the international management consulting firm, has announced that Tamara J. Erickson has been elected senior vice president and a member of the company's senior management group. Charles LaMantia, president and chief executive officer, made the announcement, adding that Erickson will also retain her position as the managing director of the firm's North American Management Consulting business, a position she has held since 1991.

As a member of the firm's senior leadership management team, she will participate in the formation of policy and in oversight of the worldwide operations.

Erickson, who joined Arthur D. Little in 1977, consults with clients on issues of strategy and organization. She is a leading authority on the management of research and development, including both the effective integration of technology into business strategy as well as the organizational issues associated with optimum technology development processes. Coddbarrett appoints dealer sales manager

R. Peter Reid Jr. of Hopkinton, formerly of Winchester, has joined Coddbarrett Associates, a developer of electronic prepress software and systems, as dealer sales manager.

Reid attended North Shore Community College and studied business management at Boston College. He was most recently employed by Alden Electronics, a manufacturer of weather information systems, located in Westboro. Reid's professional background includes experience in the graphic arts/prepress environment when he was employed as a senior technical sales representative by AGFA.

As a professional with more than 14 years experience in sales and management, Reid will manage Coddbarrett's worldwide dealer network for its TintPrep product line. "I look forward to the opportunity to further develop and expand Coddbarrett's dealer network and to continue the promotion of our innovative TintPrep prepress systems," stated Reid.

Coaches to play Bruins

Charity contest at Ginn Monday

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

The Winchester Men's Softball League has capped its playoff season, but the most important game of the season still remains. On Monday night at Ginn Field, the coaches from both the A and B leagues will challenge the Famous Faces Bruins Celebrity team. The game, which begins at 7 p.m., is a charity benefit game for the Winchester Recreation Summer Day Camp and the Friends of Jimmy Doherty, a player in the league beset with serious knee problems.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

The Famous Faces team includes current Bruin players as well as famous alumni and players from the 1980 and 1992 U.S. Olympic hockey teams. Among the current Bruins scheduled to play are Don Sweeney, Steve Heinze and Ted Donato.

In addition to the game itself, other entertainment will include a live Dixieland band, free players' autographs and a visit from the purple dinosaur.

Between innings, free autographed door prizes will be given away. Souvenir program guides and autograph sheets will also be distributed free of charge.

Tickets, which can be obtained for $10, are available the night of the game, although most tickets will be sold prior to the contest. For ticket information, call 938-5182. ...

Winchester's Matt Fuller is heading to Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., after a summer of championship play at several national tournaments. Fuller, the two-time Massachusetts boys individual tennis champion, finished the summer ranked among the top 60 players in the 18-and-under national rankings.

During the summer, Fuller compiled a 9-7 win-loss mark, which included an upset win against Jason Greene, the 40th-ranked player, and a three-set loss to Brian Simme, the 16th-ranked player.

He was one of Team New England's top players at the Team Intersectionals in Columbia, S.C., where he won three of four matches. ...

The Winchester Soccer Club will hold its 2nd Annual Soc Hop on Friday, Sept. 17 at the Knights of Columbus hall on Mt. Vernon Street. The $25-per-person ticket includes a tailgate dinner buffet and music by Leo Laurentano's "Flashbacks." Sporting attire (soccer garb) is required. For tickets or further information, contact Dot Butler at 729-8436. ...

Congratulations to 14-year-old Bob Roscillo, who was named to the 13-14-year-old all-star Babe Ruth Baseball team. ...

From the "Who Knew?" department: Who knew that Winchester is the home of a person with the highest lifetime batting average in the College World Series? Joe Armstrong, father of Joe (WHS Class of 1989) and Amanda ('93), was a member of the Holy Cross baseball team when the Crusaders traveled to Omaha, Neb., 30 years ago for the 1963 series.

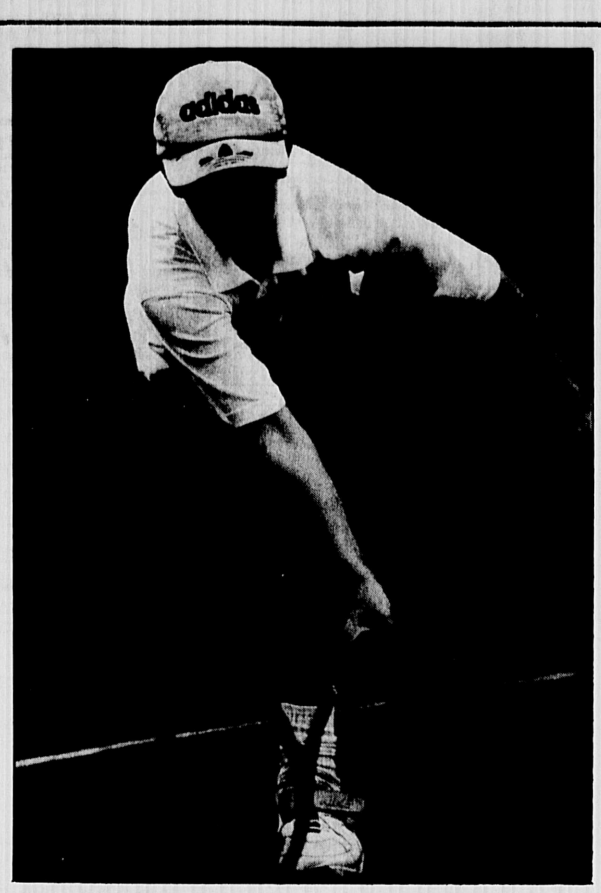

In his only plate appearance in three games, Armstrong batted for Hank Cutting — the current Brookline High football coach — and belted a double. Thus, his career College World Series batting average is 1.000.

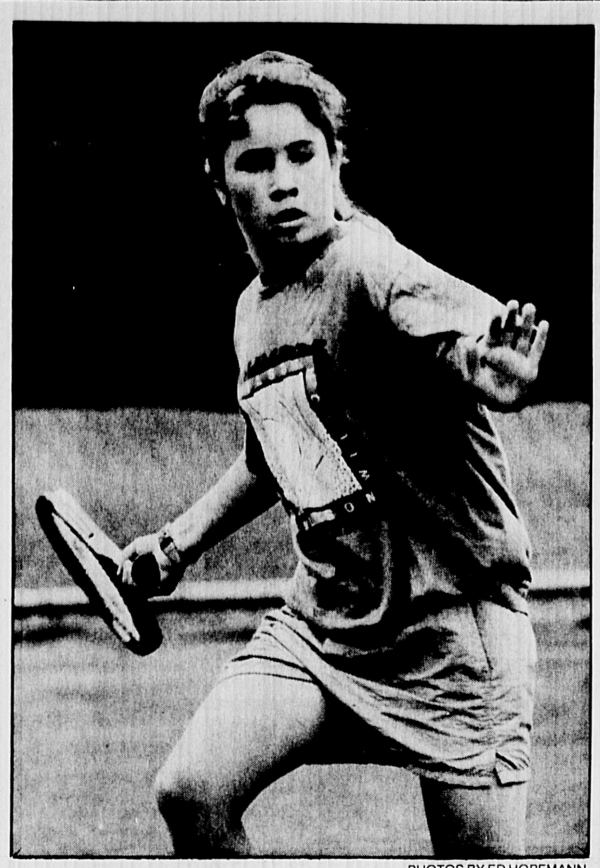

The Cross, which played a schedule of about 20 games, finished in the middle of the pack at the annual event, which featured several of the same teams that regularly make appearances at Rosenblatt Stadium these days. ...

Several former WHS athletes will be heading off to college, many for the first time, over the next few weeks. The Star wishes all the best of luck in new surroundings.

Physicals needed for fall sports

In order to participate in fall sports at Winchester High School, all students must have a physical examination by their own physician, dated no earlier than May 1, 1993. A record of the exam must be given to the coach on the first day of practice, Monday, Aug. 30.

The action was fast and furious at the annual Winchester Tennis Association Junior Tennis Tournament at the Packer Courts last week. Joe Lang (left) was crowned boys 15-and-under champion in both singles and doubles play, while Shannon Rowe (right) picked up titles in the 12-and-under girls singles and doubles draws. Over 150 players competed for 14 titles over a four-day period.

Rowes, Brams, Lang lead 150 players in battles for annual youth titles

By Alex Popp
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

The 1993 Winchester Junior Tennis Tournament was held last week at the Packer Courts, with 14 championships involving over 150 players being decided over a four-day span.

Meghan Rowe and Joey Lang swept through the 15-and-under competition, winning both the singles and doubles titles in the girls and boys divisions, respectively. Rowe, who will be a freshman at Winchester High in the fall, defeated Kim Bergin 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the girls final in a match which saw both players hitting out and going for their shots.

Rowe then teamed up with Bergin to win the doubles title over Megan Hurley and Alison Popp, 6-2, 6-4.

In the boys draw, the very improved Joey Lang dominated play, giving up only eight games in five matches, culminating with a 6-1, 6-2 win over Billy Bing in the final. Lang then won the doubles with partner Chris DeSimone. Lang and DeSimone defeated Doug Hintlian and Mark Rowe 6-4, 6-4.

In other championship play, Louis Desmarteaux captured the 10-and-under boys title with a 7-5, 6-1 win over Colin King, while Alex Popp and Joe Gerrein beat Colin King and Matt Krause 6-3, 6-2 in the 10-and-under doubles.

Becky Bram was victorious over Kendra Totman 6-0, 6-2 in the 10-and-under girls draw, then teamed with Stacy Proch-Wilson to claim a 6-2, 6-2 win over Consuelo Donohoe and Michelle Robbat in the doubles.

Chris French was the A division champion in 12-and-under boys, edging Jonathon Bram 6-2, 7-6 (10-8), while Matt Hurley captured the B title 2-1, (retired) over Dennis King. French and Bram defeated Pat Sullivan and Dennis King in the doubles final.

Shannon Rowe was the girls A champ, getting past Danielle Lentine 6-1, 6-1, while Rachel Criscitello beat sister Alison Criscitello 4-6, 7-6, 6-2 in a marathon final in the B division. Rowe and Alyson Bergin defeated Nicole Hintlian and Danielle Lentine 6-1, 6-1 in doubles.

The tournament, which was sponsored once again by The Cambridgeport Bank, was chaired by Joe Tozza. The organizers, including Packer Court pro Bob Cook and the Colozzi family, battled through rainstorms and various other sports commitments to schedule hundreds of matches.

Carroll Insurance starts title defense with win

Kingsmen Landscaping edges Casey's in semis, begins final with Game 1 victory

The Winchester Men's Softball League began its final round of playoffs Monday night, with Carroll Insurance in the A League and Kingsmen Landscaping in the B League jumping out to first-game wins.

MEN'S SOFTBALL

Carroll Insurance, which swept the Pirates in the quarterfinals and Noble Construction in the semis, beat Wilde Insurance, the regular season champion, 14-4 in Game 1 behind an 18-hit barrage and outstanding defensive play. Playing without all-star shortstop Scott Binding, the two-time defending champs put three runs on the board in the top of the first on a John McGonagle home run and never looked back.

Wilde scored three in the second on Jim McKenzie's two-run double and an RBI single by Eddie Maguire, but CIA pitcher Larry Stecchi wiggled out of a bases-loaded jam with no further damage.

Carroll kept up the attack in the fourth, scoring six runs to open a commanding 9-3 lead. T.J. Dellasala, Rob Collins, Fred Pizzi and McGonagle had run-scoring hits. Carroll capitalized on an infield error after three runs were in to open the floodgates.

Wilde got one back on a homer from Chris Morris in the bottom of the fifth, but the CIA answered with another big inning, scoring four more in the sixth to ice the contest. Collins, Pizzi and McGonagle again did the bulk of the damage, each stroking RBI hits.

The series was scheduled to continue all week, with Game 4 and 5, if necessary, scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 26, and Tuesday, Aug. 31, respectively, at Ginn.

Wilde earned its first trip to the final with a convincing three-game sweep of Dattilo Landscaping in the semis.

Pitcher Jim Doherty had an outstanding series, allowing just 14 runs over three games while his teammates were posting 30. After a 10-5 win in Game 1, Wilde won Game 2 10-3 as catcher John Pooler and McKenzie each had three-hit games. Dattilo's 1-2 hitters, Rich Goldberg and Tom Dattilo, had a pair of hits each, but the 3-11 spots in the lineup combined for just eight more hits.

Game 3 was the closest of the series, with Wilde holding on for a 10-9 win on the strength of a five-run second inning. Maguire, Morris, Doherty and leadoff hitter Jim Cassidy each had run-producing hits as Wilde built a 6-1 lead, but Dattilo climbed back with five in the third and three in the sixth to account for the final score.

Kingsmen get the jump on John's

In the B League, Kingsmen Landscaping slipped past John's Sewer and Pipe 11-9 in a wild, back-and-forth Game 1 at Ginn Monday.

John Maher's two-run wall double with one out in the top of the seventh inning gave the Kingsmen their only lead of the game. Maher, who had a monster game (5-5, two wall balls), capped a tremendous Kingsmen comeback which saw the team fall behind on four occasions, only to come back to tie the score each time.

Right fielder Ernie Drougas was 3 for 4, scoring three runs and knocking in a pair. Left fielder Brian Carroll had his typical 4-for-5 night, including a triple, while M.L. Carr had two RBI and made a fantastic tag for an out on a wide throw to first late in the game.

Casey's falls in 5-game semis

The Kingsmen got past Casey's Roughriders in a thrilling five-game series which ended Sunday night. Casey's, which tied for first with the Pipe at 17-5, won games 2 and 3, but the Kingsmen, behind the strong play of Carroll, shortstop Eddie Conley and pitcher Jim DiTulio, squared the series with a 7-5 win Thursday in Game 4, then bombed Casey's 17-7 in the series finale.

Casey's Roughriders and pitcher Ron Ossen dropped out of the B League playoffs when the Kingsmen won Game 5, 17-7, Sunday night at Ginn Field.

Capone leads locals to title

By Jim McKenzie
SPORTS WRITER

When the train that was the 12-year-old Bambino All-Star team got rolling, NewPro Windows manager Bob Nutile knew it was going to take a lot to slow it down.

BAMBINO BASEBALL

After losing three games shortly after seeing their chance to repeat as state champs go down the drain, the Bambino Stars ripped off 15 wins in their last 16 games, culminating with a gold medal at the Lou Tompkins Baseball League Tournament of Champions Sunday night in Westford.

Winchester defeated Reading 7-1 in the championship game behind a tremendous performance both on the mound and at the plate by Jeff Capone. Capone limited an outstanding Reading team — known for its power hitters — to just eight hits (3 over the final 3 innings) while collecting four himself as Winchester rolled to the title.

> '(Capone) always comes up big in the big games. I have a lot of faith in him.'
> BOB NUTILE
> NewPro manager

Capone limited Reading's free swingers to two balls off the fence in the first and a homer in the second. After that he pitched out of a few jams with well-placed two-strike pitches which frustrated the Reading batters.

"I just tried to nibble and not let them hit the ball out of the park," said Capone.

After Winchester took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the third inning, Reading tried to rally, but Jeremy Carroll and Jason Lanzillo came up with a major league play which seemed to take the air out of the Reading sails.

With two outs and speedy Jared Ranere on second base, leadoff hitter Chris Olsen laced a single toward the left-center gap. Carroll, patrolling center field, raced over, cut the ball off and unleashed a missile to home. The slight Lanzillo caught the ball a bit up the line, but dove to tag out a head-first-sliding Ranere to end the inning with Winchester still ahead.

"Obviously, Carroll and Lanzillo throwing that kid out was the play of the game," said Nutile. "I think that did it for them. That would have tied the game at 2."

The teams were scoreless until the fifth, when Justin Barauskas provided Capone with a bit of a cushion, hitting the first pitch off relief pitcher Olsen deep over the center field fence for a 3-1 NewPro lead. Jay Higgins then singled, and with one out, Colin Barden singled and Lanzillo, the No. 9 batter in the Winchester order, ripped a two-run single to open a 5-1 lead.

Winchester added two more runs on an error, a fielder's choice grounder and base hits from Capone and Carroll.

According to Nutile, Capone's showing was to be expected.

"He always comes up big in the big games," said Nutile. "I have a lot of faith in him."

Winchester qualified for the final by sweeping three games last week. In the first round, Barauskas and Carroll teamed up on the mound to tame Dracut 9-2. Capone and Tommy DiCarlo had three hits each, while Barauskas and DiCarlo homered.

In the second round, Winchester whipped Waltham 10-2, as Carroll hit a pair of prodigious homers, one of which carried approximately 300 feet. Matt McGowan and Capone split the pitching chores.

In the semifinal contest against Dracut, Carroll's three-run homer and Capone's grand slam highlighted an 11-run fourth inning as Winchester sent 17 batters to the plate. Capone also homered in the fifth in support of McGowan, who claimed his second win in a row.

WTA holds tiebreaker tourney

The Winchester Tennis Association held its first ever tiebreaker Tennis Tournament in June. Half of the matches were decided in the third tiebreaker. For example, in an early round of the century doubles (team's combined age of 100 years or more) Al Samoiloff and Janet Burke had to play 50 points to overcome Sue Bowen and Jim Phillips 6-8, 12-10, 8-6.

In the century double format, tournament organizer Leo Laurentano teamed with Don Ellis, the senior's finest. Ellis and Laurentano, after surviving a semifinals scare from Bob Collins and Gordon Nicholson 0-7, 7-4, 7-2, rolled over Phil Coonley and Larry Smith 7-5, 7-4 to become the town's reigning century champs.

Don Ellis also combined with Jim Phillips to win the men's doubles. This team's 130-plus years of experience proved too much for far younger teams. Ellis and Phillips defeated Jay Robinson and Bob Intravia in the final, 5-7, 7-3, 7-3.

Laurentano won the men's singles consolation round over Nick Julian and teamed up with Kathy Dunn in the mixed doubles. Lauretano and Dunn played a near-flawless semifinal, beating Nick Julian and Abby Culhane 7-2, 7-0. On the other side of the draw Judy Harrington and Phil Coonley squeaked out a 5-7, 7-5, 7-4 semifinal win over newcomer Chris Grassi and WTA president Bob Collins. In the finals, Dunn and Lauretano kept their momentum through the first tie-breaker, but then succumbed 5-7, 7-4, 7-3 to Harrington's crisp deep volleys and hard, low service returns.

Harrington and Dunn were also in the final of the women's doubles, as partners on one of the tournament's most formidable teams. Although they played a less experienced team in the duo of Thea Curtain and Chris Sarno, the challengers had enough raw talent and abandon to win it all, especially in the sudden-death tie-breaker format. Curtain and Sarno went for broke and took the women's doubles championship 5-7, 7-4, 7-3.

Youth prevailed in the men's singles, where 17 entrants battled. In the final, Steve Dionne's looping top-spins, especially from the backhand, just beat Craig Potter's balanced attack. Dionne took the title with a 9-7, 5-7, 7-4 victory.

Rotary drops semis heartbreaker

Dugout Sports also falls in extra-inning Bambino finale

It was an unfortunate way for the season to end, but the Rotary Club All-Stars did themselves proud in a semifinal loss to Dracut at the Lou Tompkins Tournament of Champions in Westford Saturday.

In the bottom of the eighth inning, with the score tied 4-4 against eventual champion Dracut, a pitch slipped past the Winchester catcher and took a wild hop off a board placed in front of a hole in the backstop. The ball bounded away, allowing the Dracut runner to score the game-winner from third base.

The loss put an end to Winchester's 11-game win streak, but Winchester coach Tom Killion was extremely pleased with the play of his 10-year-old stars.

"We lost a couple of close ones at the beginning of the season, but since then these guys have played outstanding baseball," said Killion. "To finish 15-5 against this level of competition is commendable."

In the semifinal, Winchester jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second inning on Luke Killion's home run, a Kellen Baker double and a pair of wild pitches. Killion matched pitches with the hard-throwing Dracut starter into the fourth inning, when Dracut pushed two unearned runs across to tie the game.

Dracut went ahead in the fifth, but Winchester rallied to score twice keyed by a well-placed bunt by Tim Armstrong. In a sacrifice situation, Armstrong laid down a perfect bunt. The pitcher threw wildly to first, allowing one run to score and putting the eventual go-ahead run at third.

In the bottom of the sixth, Dracut tied the score 4-4, but Winchester center fielder James Kearney forced extra innings when he gunned down the potential game-winning run at the plate. Catcher John Newhall made a tremendous block of home plate, and Kearney's bee-line throw from center was true.

Each team had chances to win in the seventh, but it wasn't until the bottom of the eighth when Dracut scored the game-winner.

"This was a great, great game," said Tom Killion. "Kearney and Newhall's play was as good as you'll ever see at this age."

To reach the semis, Winchester, the No. 6 seed, beat No. 3 Brookline and No. 2 Bedford. In the first round, Winchester pounded Brookline 15-2 behind a 12-hit barrage. Luke Killion started and posted his sixth win of the season with outstanding relief help from Andrew Marder. Baker and Newhall paced the Winchester attack with three hits each, while Killion, Eric Axon, Kearney and Mike Trakimas all added key base hits.

In the second round, Winchester beat Bedford 12-7. Winchester fell behind early but rallied to take a 9-7 lead in the fourth. The team added three more in the fifth then used the strong relief pitching of Kearney to squelch Bedford rallies in the fifth and sixth.

Danny Nelson and Rugo Santini had three hits apiece while Trakimas added two RBI. Axon picked up the win thanks to the Winchester comeback.

Dugout completes winning season

The Dugout Sports All-Stars completed a 16-12 season with a tough 6-5 loss to Arlington in extra innings on Aug. 19. Down 5-2 in the last inning, the All-Stars came up with three runs to force extras.

Brian Sullivan shut down Arlington in the home half of the sixth, striking out two batters with runners on second and third. Peter Dupuis retired the side in the seventh, before the game was called due to darkness. On Friday night, Arlington scored in the bottom of the eighth to win 6-5.

Paul Koslowski and Pat Sullivan had two hits apiece while Matt Malatesta, Brian Sullivan, Dupuis, and David Lynch had one each.

Winchester fell 12-8 to Reading on Aug. 17. The game was tied at 7 before Reading scored five times in the bottom of the fifth. The highlight of the game was Winchester's fifth, in which the Dugout sent 10 players to the plate and scored seven runs. Lynch led the offense with three hits while Matt Spang added a pair. Brian Sullivan, Malatesta and Koslowski chipped in with one hit each.

Winchester finished the season with two silver medals in Tournament of Champions play.

Arthur Griffin's photographic legacy: 1933 to 1993

Held from Sept. 12 through Nov. 14, a major exhibit of Arthur Griffin's photography redefines the work and reputation of one of New England's first photojournalists. Long known for his classic color landscapes, this exhibition of almost 100 images, reveals the breadth of Griffin's talent and work in black and white fine art and documentary photography. Among the most significant: a series of vintage bromoils, portraits and landscapes, each beautifully "painted" and finished by Griffin in the '30s. Boston's neighborhoods, people, culture, and history, in the '30s, '40s and '50s. New England sports heroes and teams (remember Jimmy Foxx?) artists (featuring Norman Rockwell) and visitors (Joe Lewis, Winston Churchill). Griffin's pioneering color work is also exhibited including a series of first color photographs ever taken (in '39) of Ted Williams; the first color photographs ever to appear in the Boston Globe; and early dye transfer photographs of the New England landscape.

A celebration of Arthur Griffin's 90th and the center's 1st birthdays

A celebration of Arthur Griffin's 90th and the Griffin Center's 1st birthdays will be held Sunday, Sept. 19 from 1 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to toast the occasion from 1 to 2 p.m., have a slice of birthday cake, and receive a Griffin print. Griffin will be on hand to meet old and new friends and to autograph his books and poster.

Aids Action seeks volunteers for Buddy Program

The Buddy Program of the AIDS Action Committee is looking for volunteers to provide emotional and practical support to clients on a one-to-one basis. Interested persons older than 24 are invited to attend an orientation to learn about the Buddy Program and how to apply.

Orientations are held monthly at 7:30 p.m., on the fourth Tuesday of each month on the fourth floor of the AIDS Action offices at 131 Clarendon St. For more information call 437-6200, Ext. 450.

Any member of the class, graduate or otherwise, who would like to be notified of final details but who may have reason to believe his or her current address is not on file with reunion organizers, is asked to send address information at this time to Joan Hanson Blake, 45 Pine Ridge Road, Reading, 01867.

Register now for fall at the Winchester Community Music School

The Winchester Community Music School is currently registering students for lessons and classes beginning next Sept. The school offers classical and popular music for all levels of experience and all ages, from pre-school to senior citizens.

Lessons are available in banjo, baritone, electric bass, bassoon, cello, clarinet, flute, french horn, guitar, electric keyboard, oboe, percussion, recorder, saxophone, special needs, trombone, trumpet, tuba, viola, violin, and voice.

WCMS offers classes in music and movement for ages 3-7, music theory, composition, and music appreciation. A new community education course, Guided Tour to Musical Masterpieces, is planned for fall. Small ensembles of similar or mixed instruments are also available, and WCMS maintains a list of adults interested in forming chamber music groups. For information and a 1993-94 brochure, call 721-2950.

Cooperative Theatre announces auditions for "Annie."

Winchester Senior Cooperative Theatre announces that its fall production will be "Annie" with music by Charles Strouse and lyrics by Martin Charnin. Auditions for students in grades 6, 7, and 8 will be held on Thursday, Sept. 9, and Friday, Sept. 10, at McCall Auditorium, 458 Main Street from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. There are many parts for both boys and girls and all students in grades 6, 7 and 8 are encouraged to audition. "Annie" will be performed at McCall Auditorium Nov. 19, 20 and 21. For more information call 729-0224.

Auditions for Winchester Players production of 'Our Town'

The Winchester Players are looking for local talent. Open auditions will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 31, and Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall of the Winchester Unitarian Church for the Players Fall Production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

"Our Town" has been entertaining and moving audiences since it won the Pulitzer Prize for Drama in 1938. It depicts birth, life, love and death in a small New England town of Grovers Corners at the turn of the century. It focuses on Emily Webb and George Gibbs and their families. The story is related by the stage manager, who speaks directly to the audience, as well as to some of the characters.

Emily, a young woman in her late teens to early 20s and George, a young man of about the same age, fall in love and marry in the play. Doctor and Mrs. Gibbs and town newspaper editor, Joe Webb and his wife give their love and lend their guidance to the young couple. The town is peopled by other wonderful characters, who give the audience great insight to the small town New England. They include: paper boy Joe Crowell, local historian Professor Willard, milkman Howie Newsome, church choir director Simon Stimson and town gossip Louella Soames, just to name a few.

Auditions will consist of "cold readings" from the script and everyone is welcome to audition.

Copies of the script will be available at the Winchester Public Library. The production will be directed by Karen Barton.

Performances will be given at the Unitarian Church on Nov. 5, 6, 7, 12 and 13; and rehearsals are on Sundays from 7 to 10 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall of the Winchester Unitarian Church, 478 Main St.

For information call co-production manager, Robert Hallisey at 729-1409.

Breastfeeding support group offered

La Leche League of Winchester, a support group for breast-feeding mothers, holds meetings on the third Tuesday of each month in the Michelson Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church.

Nursing mothers are welcome to attend with their babies. Pregnant women considering breastfeeding are welcome.

The Winchester meeting is open to mothers from any community. Local group leaders are available to answer questions and provide information both at the monthly meetings and by telephone.

La Leche League is an international nonprofit organization whose purpose is to offer help and mother-to-mother support to women wanting to breastfeed their babies. The local group meetings provide an opportunity for nursing mothers to meet informally and share their experiences.

A lending library of books on childbirth, breastfeeding and child care is also available to members. For more information call Nancy at 729-1163, or Sophia, at 396-7329.

Volunteer drivers needed to fight cancer

The American Cancer Society seeks volunteer drivers for its "Road to Recovery Program."

Many cancer patients have daily radiation or chemotherapy treatments, and their friends and family cannot provide transportation. Volunteers give anywhere from one hour a month to two days a week, as their schedules allow, and ensure that patients make it to their treatments.

For more information call the American Cancer Society office at 643-3010.

Parent to Parent's first Friday forum

How do we help our children meet their responsibilities without ending up in an angry battle? What can we do when we are concerned about our child's or adolescent's friendships? What are some effective ways of dealing with sibling conflicts?

Parent to Parent's first Friday Forum is a series of brown bag lunch meetings for parents interested in discussing questions like these. The meeting will be from noon to 1:30 p.m. on Sept. 3. All meetings will be held in the Winchester Public Safety Building (Police Station).

This series is offered free of charge. Funding has been provided by the En Ka Society and the Parents' Associations.

Free summer fitness at The Energy Connection

Summer is the perfect time to start a healthy and fit lifestyle. With less structure and stress, anyone can begin to enjoy the benefits of exercise. This summer, The Energy Connection is helping new participants set up a realistic program of diet and exercise, and as a special summer offer, new students are invited to attend an unlimited number of classes for their first week absolutely free.

A variety of programs are available, including step Reebok, muscle conditioning, and Jacki Sorensen's Aerobic Workout. This gives everyone the chance to cross-train or pick their favorite kind of exercise.

Step Reebok classes are Mondays and Fridays at 8:45 a.m., and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. Aerobic workouts are Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m., and Saturdays at 8:30 a.m. The very popular muscle conditioning class is offered Wednesdays at 8:45 a.m. All weekday morning classes have babysitting.

For more information on The Energy Connection programs, call Marie Dacey at 729-7268.

High School Class of 1983 to hold reunion

The Winchester High School Class of 1983 will hold its ten year reunion on Nov. 27 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in downtown Winchester.

The advance mailing has already been sent out; if you are a member of the class and have not received it, or know of a classmate who did not receive it, call Jo-Ann Spera at 721-4405. A second mailing with more details will be sent out in September.

The Reunion Committee is also organizing a class directory featuring updates on former classmates. The directory will contain current addresses, careers, and favorite reminiscences of the Class of 1983. Mail your updates to Jo-Ann Spera at 5 Middlesex St., as soon as possible.

Soccer Association hosts 2nd Annual Hop

The Winchester Soccer Association will hold its 2nd Annual Soc Hop on Friday, Sept. 17 at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Main Street. The $25 per person ticket includes a tailgate dinner buffet and music by Leo Laurentano's "Flashbacks." Sporting attire (soccer garb) is required. For tickets or further information, contact Dot Butler at 729-8436.

A chance to see if STEP is the workout for you. This demonstration is tailored to meet the athletic needs of men and women of all ages. Come and watch the instructor demonstrate the versatility of bench stepping — then give it a try your self, while everyone STEPS-up. This class is perfect for new students of Focus on Fitness, or the curious. It's the hottest fitness workout, it's fun, and it's on us, for this time only. Bring sneakers and a floor mat and join the demonstration on Thursday, Sept. 9 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Focus on Fitness classes begin the week of Sept. 13.

How to end your summer right

Here we are, right smack in the middle of those dreaded "Dog Days of Summer". The days when there's "nothing to do", and one day can seem to be as long as a week if it's not filled with interesting activities to help pass the time. Here are a few suggestions to help in celebrating the last days of summer right here in Winchester. Make plans to do any and all of the following ideas.

1. Visit the Griffin Museum.
2. Take a stroll and watch the sunset.
3. Tennis anyone? Besides the clay courts on Palmer Street, there are hard surface courts at Leonard and McDonald fields.
4. Go for a swim at Wedge Pond. New hours for August through Labor Day are noon to 6 p.m.
5. Go for a picnic on the common.
6. Read to a friend. The library has great books.
7. Go fishing. Children under 18 do not need a license. Adults do and they're available at the Town Hall.
8. Try to fly a kite.
9. Take a bike ride along the bicentennial bike path.
10. Take the kids out in the evening dressed in their pajamas for an ice cream or frozen yogurt.
11. Go star gazing. A field away from lights is best. Pack some snacks and your favorite beach chair.
12. Find the Middlesex Canal marker and read it.
13. Plant a flower in your yard to enjoy next year.
14. Make a "funniest home video."
15. Attend summer theater. We have a choice of KIDSTOCK or Cooperative Theatre right here in town.
16. Try some of the new local establishments in town.

DO-IT-YOURSELF IDEAS
A READER SERVICE OF THIS NEWSPAPER

UTTER-LY ADORABLE
Put a cow to pasture in your very own yard this year with our trendy cow planter. This cow doesn't attract flies, requires no care, and won't "milk" you dry in hay and feeding expenses. Just fill her with some potted plants or flowers and join the thousands that are decorating their yards and homes with the cow theme. Made from pine and measuring 37" long x 20½" high x 14" wide, simply trace the full-size parts onto wood, cut out, assemble and paint!

Birchwood Adult Community is a planned housing project designed for Empty Nesters 55 years of age or older. Birchwood is located in the quaint rural community of Northboro, Massachusetts. Single family one story homes are built on lots that range in size from 7,000 to 12,000 square feet. Homes with garages will vary from two bedrooms and one or two baths to three bedrooms with two baths. Homes are stick built on site with amenities such as: vaulted and cathedral ceiling; fully appliances kitchens, front porches, decks and screened porches.

Homes are priced from $113,900 to $129,900 in Phase I. In Phase II prices range from $129,900 to $149,900. There are eight different home models to choose from.

A recreation building centrally located in the Birchwood Adult Community will provide residents with a meeting place, a private library for reading, a kitchen and a large function room for all types of gatherings.

A fitness trail from the recreation center to the Assawt River will provide a private area to walk and spend quiet time at the picnic area along the river. Residents at Birchwood own their homes and have 100% easement rights to the lot that their homes are built on. There is a $50 per month Association Fee which pays for snow plowing, street lights and insurance.

Editor's Impressions...

September already!

Patti Smith and I find it hard to believe that our first summer with A-PLUS is winding to a close. We look with eagerness toward our first autumn.

In this September issue, readers will find our READERSHIP SURVEY. We are anxious to include your input in our publication, and so we encourage you to respond. Help us serve you! Plus, those readers responding by September 13 will be eligible to win a pair of tickets to New England Interior Design Show at Bayside Exposition Center, October 1-3. Fifty names will be drawn from all survey respondents on September 15.

As September is the month during which Commonwealth of Massachusetts joins to celebrate the Year of the American Craft, A-PLUS COVER STORY highlights one significant development responsible for breaking down many of the barriers between art and craft — the studio furniture movement. (See page 3.)

We also present some thoughts from ARTISTS and ARTISANS around the region, who share with readers their approach to working within their own medium. (See "Perspectives," page 11.)

In his ANTIQUES feature, Brian Cullity discusses folk art and the rise of the utilitarian object of yesterday to art object of today. (See page 7.)

Lisa Goodwin keeps an eye on AMBIANCE for us. This issue she presents the most practical information in "How Much Does Good Design Cost These Days?" (See page 8.)

Still on the subject of price, but moving into the realm of fine ART paintings, A-PLUS looks at some late 19th century, early 20th century women artists whose works have somehow slipped into obscurity. The exciting news is that there is a vast body of work out there just waiting to be rediscovered. (See page 12.)

Once again, auction correspondent Faye Andrashko reports on the AUCTION scene. (See page 17.)

And merging the VISUAL ARTS with the PERFORMING ARTS, A-PLUS looks at the ultimate temporary art installation — the set design. At The Cape Playhouse in Dennis, it all happens in one week! A-PLUS follows the process from beginning to end as set designers Helen Pond and Herb Senn orchestrate the recent set for Dancing at Lughnasa. (See page 13.)

Turn to UP AND COMING (see page 19) to guide you to artist receptions, arts & crafts shows, antiques fairs and festivals in the region. If you would like your happening listed, send us the information. Space permitting, we'll do our level best!

In the meanwhile, enjoy!

We do when we're putting A-PLUS together. Patti Smith pays particular attention to the advertisers...

Ket Ferguson loves design...James Burrows concerns himself with ad production challenges.

We value each our readers and advertisers and invite comments and suggestions. For editorial or advertising information, do call (508) 362-1440.

Sincerely,

Karen Aude

"It (The Furniture-as-Art Movement) challenges the rigid distinctions of contemporary aesthetics; it teases the pompous self-importance of its proponents; it offers the possibility of a rapprochement between the functional, the beautiful and the meaningful in ways that could revitalize the often sterile and self-referential products of modern art."

Dr. Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi, professor and former chairman of the Department of Psychology at the University of Chicago, in his catalog essay for an exhibition of works by Massachusetts artist Alphonse Mattia at Peter Joseph Gallery New York.

Love That Furniture!

By Karen Aude

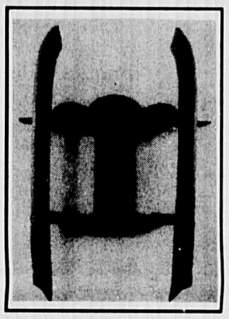

Cast aside all notions of correctness. Take pause from traditional ways of seeing. Now look once again at works by contemporary studio furniture makers — fresh, spirited, elegant, witty work by artists with the courage to create and the impertinence to use traditional materials in such a way as to challenge universally held assumptions of acceptability.

As we celebrate "The Year of the American Craft," it is fitting to salute these artist/craftspeople who have chosen wood, not canvas, as their means of artistic expression. Their efforts paved the way for the gradual breakdown between art and craft.

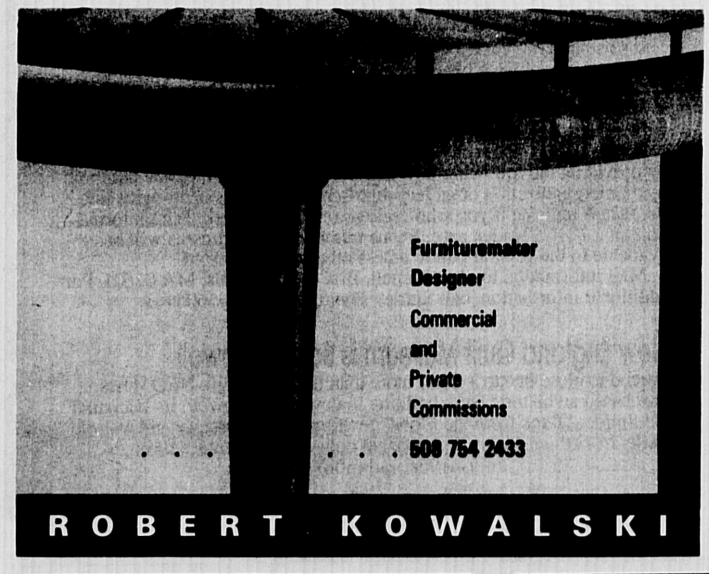

It is difficult, however, to speak of the second wave of contemporary studio furniture makers without making reference to the first. In spite of a more orthodox background, these early innovators pushed natural wood to another level. Although an emphasis on function and a deeply rooted reverence for the inherent qualities of wood inhibited this first generation of studio furniture makers from taking too many liberties with their materials, they were the first to re-examine furniture's status in the home.

It was in the 1960s and 70s that the second generation of studio furniture makers began to seek eloquent alternatives. Having mastered technique, they explored design. Having explored design, they pursued content. A network of furniture makers emerged —Jere Osgood, Tommy Simpson, Tage Frid, Ed Zucca, Alphonse Mattia, Dan Jackson, Wendy Maruyama, Garry Knox Bennett.

"Approaching the 21st Century," Sandwich

Cape Cod Antique Dealers Association sponsors a one-day seminar at Theatre in the Round Barn, Heritage Plantation of Sandwich. The keynote speaker, 1:45 pm, is Charles Derby, collector of Native American and Tribal Arts. Panel discussions in the morning include Marilyn Strauss of Salt & Chestnut Antiques on "Weathervanes;" Ernest Rohdenburg, dealer and collector, on "American Painting;" Bud Marchant of Lil-Bud Antiques, on "Early American Pattern Glass;" and Patti Smith, antiques dealer and co-publisher of A-PLUS on "Decorative Stoneware." Cost for CCADA members is $18; non-members $25. For information, call 362-9540.

"Encountering Antiques" Seminar, Waltham

Sponsored by Massachusetts Antiques Cooperative in Waltham, a six-week seminar taught by antiques expert/author George Michael takes place September 8, 15, 22, 29 and October 6, 13 from 7-9 pm at Brandeis University. This is an opportunity to learn more about antique furniture, glass, ceramics and paintings. Fee is $95; space is limited. Call (617) 893-8893 for details.

New Prints Available on Cape Cod

Yarmouth Port artist Marieluise Hutchinson announces the release of two new prints: "When Evening Comes," a Yarmouth Port scene; and "Sea Treasure," a still life of basket and sea lavender, conch shell and sea urchin. Partial proceeds from the sale of these prints will be donated to Hospice of Cape Cod. Hutchinson is represented by Cummaquid Fine Arts in Cummaquid.

Artists began to share ideas, to nudge the limits of acceptability. The art world responded. Museums mounted exhibitions; galleries began, slowly at first, to show work by these pioneers. The results were, and remain, electrifying.

Westport's Alphonse Mattia, whose work is reproduced on the cover of A-PLUS, was associated from the beginnings with the spirited Program In Artistry (PIA) at Boston University. PIA, founded in 1975, launched studio furniture making into the artistic arena. It was the trend setter with respect to prompting the art establishment as well as educational institutions to acknowledge studio furniture making as a viable art form. Mattia is acknowledged as one of the movement's most dynamic and provocative figures.

Until the formal introduction of this program, craftspeople learned woodworking techniques only in so far as the skill was applied to work in other medium. In the mid-70s, mixed media was OK; furniture-as-art was, at best, suspect. On this, the art world and craft world seemed to agree, preferring to deal with wood in a more packageable aesthetic. PIA changed this. When the program was discontinued in 1986, students and teachers moved to Swain School in New Bedford and, more recently, to University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth.

Alphonse Mattia now teaches at Rhode Island School of Design (RISD). He influences a new generation of furniture makers while continuing to push his own work beyond convention. His work is dynamic; it is clearly humorous, though astute viewers will not miss the subtle nuances inherent in each piece. His is a completely integrated approach. In our cover piece, "Why the Long Face, Sebastian?" content and artistic intent merge; function, though conspicuous, is clearly secondary to the artist's cheeky bid for response. If asked, he will tell of a childhood of mixed messages on the religious front — his mother who lived in fear, his father who mocked the seriousness of it all. Mattia's piece is a narrative, grounded in myth and elevated to unselfconscious imagery.

"Raccoon Bench," by Alphonse Mattia invites a smile. In a humorous way, the artist simply suggests that viewers rethink that which they might otherwise take for granted.

While this more formalized movement was afoot, several artists worked in an intuitively parallel vein, though unaware of the ever growing network of furniture makers. West Barnstable artist Stephen Whittlesey is one who reports stumbling upon furniture making quite innocently. These artists, untutored in a more formal aesthetic, explored possibilities with abandon. Whittlesey's background is in painting and sculpture. He began to "sculpt" furniture from recycled bits and pieces of wood from old houses, and his efforts knew no bounds. "I was free to experiment without breaking any rules," because, at the time, he says, he was not aware any rules existed.

From the beginning, Whittlesey balanced function and art with great skill and wit. Though he applies paint freely, his work is "spiritually elemented rather than decorative." It is expressive, and recent work has less to do with function than with Whittlesey's interest in "exploding the idea of furniture. I'm interested in making furniture in multiples or groups, rearranging pieces, upsetting the apple cart in terms of how to live with objects."

In time, Whittlesey caught up with the studio furniture movement, or vise versa, and he is now one of the acknowledged masters. He teaches at UMass, Dartmouth, and was recently nominated by National Endowment for the Arts to attend a three-month Artist Residency Program at Chateau La Napoule in France. He follows in the footsteps of a contemporary, Wendy Maruyama, an innovator in her own right, who was also nominated and subsequently completed the program.

Maruyama's place in the history of the studio furniture movement is secure. One of the first and still few women to make her mark in the field. Maruyama also uses paint freely, with its application integral to each piece, never an afterthought. There's a curious fantasy-like quality to Maruyama's work which is fluid and could almost be described as painterly, as if each element were a brushstroke solidified.

As time progressed, the network mushroomed; more museums mounted more shows. Regionally in New England, galleries and museums have remained on the cutting edge of the movement. In 1989, Museum of Fine Arts Boston opened its "New American Furniture:

Pops by the Sea

It's an annual tradition — the eighth in fact! Pops by the Sea on the Village Green in Hyannis attracts thousands of people to its annual concert by the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra. It's one of the highlights of the summer season on Cape Cod, and begins the evening before with a "mocktail" party under the tent. It's a see-and-be-seen kind of affair that's lots of fun for all.

Spoon in hand, chef Julia Child conducts the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra during the 8th annual Pops by the Sea concert on the Village Green in Hyannis.

In a touching moment, Arts Foundation of Cape Cod President Lynne Poyant presents departing president Ted Nelson with a commemorative plaque, thanking Ted for years of contributions.

Pops honorary chairs, Chuck and Doreen Bilezikian, owners of The Christmas Tree Shops, greet the "mocktail" party-goers.

Hyannis Chamber Executive Director Wendy Northcross mingles.

In honor of guest conductor, chef Julia Child, 10,000 concert goers don chef hats in a gesture of warm welcome.

Folk Art? Says Who?

What qualities transform an object into a thing of beauty? Why do collectors, dealers and museums avidly seek and often pay large sums of money for objects which were originally made for utilitarian purposes? How does the transformation from function to folk art occur? Is it simply a marketing ploy or do some utilitarian objects actually have a hidden inner beauty which needs to be spotlighted before it can be recognized and appreciated?

This eel spear was a product of a 19th century blacksmith. It was not conceived as a work of art, rather the design was one that had been found to be successful in harvesting eels. However, the blacksmith also designed a piece which, in addition to fulfilling its function, has great visual appeal. A collection of these spears on display at Heritage Plantation in Sandwich shows the tremendous variety and creative approaches used by the smithies of the last century.

By Brian Cullity

Serving primarily for utility rather than beauty" — Webster defines utilitarian. Yet today, it is not uncommon to see erstwhile utilitarian decoys, trade signs or baskets displayed as examples of folk art. Why?

An examination of three seemingly disparate objects — an eel spear, a ceramic jar and a woodworking plane — can help to answer our question.

These three items share several common traits. First, all are utilitarian, handcrafted articles from the 19th century. The maker of each had a specific function in mind when the piece was crafted. Secondly, all three have been relegated to "folk art" status, and have been sold and bartered as such in the antiques world. And finally, all three have been displayed in a local museum as "objects of art." Somewhere along the line from the 19th century to the present day, a transformation of perception of these pieces has occurred.

Basically there are two standards for designating a utilitarian object as a work of folk art. The first is the innate beauty the object may hold for the viewer. Form, symmetry, color and balance all contribute to the degree of artistic quality incorporated into the piece. An object can have great form but lack color. This does not necessarily detract from the aesthetic success of the object. After all, a blacksmith can only work with form; his color palette is limited to black. Ceramicists, on the other hand, can work with both form and color. The potter could achieve success in either area. However, the greatest masterpieces were achieved by the successful combination of all the ingredients.

The second standard which is often used to define folk art is the manner in which an object was utilized. The lore surrounding an object often contributes to the aesthetic appreciation of a given piece. Many decoy collectors, for instance, cite the gunning history in which these carvings originated and how they were used as contributing significantly to the appeal of these "floating sculptures."

An assessment of an object in relation to its creation and use is certainly a valid approach to gauging the aesthetic quality it confers to an individual. It should be kept in mind, however, that the creator of the object did not bestow this quality (lore) into the object. Rather, it is placed there by the observer. A more demanding analysis would use a phenomenological approach which would judge only those qualities which affect the five senses.

The metamorphosis of objects from utilitarian to folk art has been and continues to be a gradual process achieved by collec-

The Cost of Good Design

By Lisa Goodwin

Architectural Digest, House Beautiful, Country Home — who among us hasn't flipped through the pages and wished our own homes were as comfortable and tasteful as the designs featured. If you are planning to redecorate, renovate, move or build you might ask — how much does good design cost these days?

There are many different ways to charge. The most common remuneration methods are: retail; cost plus hourly; a flat rate design fee or a combination of these methods. Paying a percentage of construction cost or a dollar amount per square foot are formats used almost exclusively in commercial or architectural work.

First you must determine what kind of design services you think you may require. This is called the "scope of service." The education and experience required to select a fabric for re-upholstering your sofa is very different from the skills required to design plans for your master bathroom renovation, select finishes and materials, obtain bids from qualified sub-contractors and supervise their work.

Will you purchase a lot of furniture, fabrics and accessories? Will your project require a lot of drawings and detailed specifications? If you are building or remodeling, would you rather work with one full scope of service interior designer who will handle everything, or would you prefer to hire someone for each area of specialty?

Where is your project located? Designers in urban areas and affluent suburbs usually command higher fees. Also on the high end of the fee scale are interior designers who have had extensive schooling and experience, won design awards, had their work published,are specialized or multi-disciplined,who have a great reputation. If you do not need to work directly with the principal, many designers have talented associates whose work they oversee, and whose billable rates may be considerably lower.

Clara Hayes Barrett of Hingham and Nantucket, has been in the business for 20 years. Barrett believes that "today in decorating, more than ever before, you get what you pay for." She does not charge for meeting with a client for the first time, but do not rush to the phone to call her unless your budget is at least $50,000. Barrett admits that this "scares people off at first, but many call back when they realize that with good carpets, artwork etc. you cannot get a lot for under $50,000." She agrees that "the designer and the client must get along and trust each other" because she philosophizes, "nothing harmonious can come from disharmony." All purchases are sold at retail and her consultation fee for construction and historic renovation is $100 per hour.

From the suburb of Wellesley, Susan Ley Dearborn will meet with a new client for $75. Besides going over her portfolio and contract, Dearborn says "I help them formulate a master plan with parameters and priorities. I try to discuss enough problems and solutions so they feel comfortable with me." Afterward, Dearborn earns her fee by the difference in her wholesale cost and the manufacturer's retail price which she charges the client. Any of her time not directly related to selecting something for purchase, she considers to be consulting time and charges a fee of $75 per hour. These charges are deducted from a $750 retainer which she receives at the signing of the contract. For larger budget jobs or where there is a lot of remodeling and heavy consulting, Dearborn charges a flat rate fee of $5000 and sells merchandise at her cost plus 20 percent, plus freight and sales tax.

Susan Maier, from Trail-Maier Designs in Sudbury, also charges a flat rate fee for an initial meeting. If there is a "personality match," which Maier says is very important since you spend a lot of time together, a contract is signed stating that the clients agree to purchase everything through the designer at the designer's wholesale cost plus 25 percent, plus freight and sales tax. Maier will shop with clients at the Boston Design Center and other places around the Boston area. There is no additional cost to do floor plans and no minimum dollar amount the client has to spend. If clients prefer to do their own purchasing, they can consult with Maier for $75 an hour.

Osterville Designer Susan Crocker charges a flat fee of $100 to meet with potential clients to assess their needs. Crocker confesses she "hangs kind of loose" when it comes to set fees and does not use a contract. "I try to work fairly," she says.

In the Design Services Department at the Ethan Allen Galleries in Natick, Burlington and Norwood, designers work on an "Up System" basis and are assigned on a rotating basis to customers as they come in. Jean White, interior designer/manager for the stores says, "Our designers will draw up a simple floor plan and a lighting overlay for a customer. Then they select furniture, fabrics, draperies, carpets and accessories from the store." All employees go through a two-week training period, and there after attend in-store training seminars. Booklets and videos keep employees up-to-date on new products.

For those that want a new look, but cannot entertain the thought or cost of replacing everything, some designers specialize in re-arranging what you already have to create a more attractive and functional room. Mona Reposa, owner of Visual Impact in Falmouth, is one such designer. Reposa will meet you at your home and give you a free estimate to re-arrange, re-hang, re-work and re-accessorize your existing belongings. A 14' X 20' living room, without heavy moving, like pianos, averages about $250-$300. If you break down and decide a few new things might add the perfect finishing touch, Reposa will take you shopping for $25 an hour!

Lisa A. Goodwin, IDS, Allied Asid, is the owner of Timeless Interiors of Osterville, full scope-of-service interior design firm. Ms. Goodwin also teaches at Cape Cod Community College and frequently lectures and writes about the field of interior design.

Folk Art?

tors, dealers and folklorists throughout the 20th century. Many of the greatest collections formed in the early years of this period were renowned for their groundbreaking approach to these utilitarian objects. Witness the great collections at Shelburne Museum, Williamsburg and Wintherthur Museum, to name just a few.

An interesting sidelight to this discussion is the craftsman who became the artist. A few gifted individuals became so widely known for their talent during their lifetime that the products they were turning out became secondary to the original function. They were no longer making utilitarian pieces, rather they were creating art.

Perhaps the most widely recognized example of this phenomena is Elmer Crowell of East Harwich. His talent at making decoys was recognized very early in his career as a market gunner and guide. He consequently became the most widely hailed and arguably the best decorative carver of his time.

It must be remembered that the desire to embellish even the simplest of objects is not unique to our culture. Indeed, these very embellishments often serve to identify specific groups and have added considerably to our appreciation of our cultural heritage. ▲

This coopers plane was most likely made on board a whaling vessel. The handle is made from whalebone. Admittedly, the form is quite graceful and somewhat unusual. However, it is the fact that the plane was made by a sailor and is considered scrimshaw that holds the greatest appeal to collectors. Here the legend and lore of the whale man serves as the primary rational for the designation of "folk art."

Redware jars were turned out by the thousands during the 18th and 19th centuries. They were used by all households and came in endless forms, sizes and colors. They were cheap, plentiful and expendable. Yet here we have an example which literally takes our breath away with its beauty. The urn form is almost classical in shape and the rainbow of colors is stunning, ranging from orange to green to peach. it has ceased its original function as a container and is now regarded as a work of art.

The Second Generation of Studio Furniture makers." Earlier this year, Newton Arts Center presented "Newton Collects/ Contemporary Furniture," and showcased work by some of the rising and risen stars — Dale Broholm, Charles Crowley, Tom Loeser, Rick Wrigley, Ed Zucca, Jere Osgood, Kristina Madsen, among others. I Included in the exhibition is work by faculty member Stephen Whittlesey. Gallery Naga in Boston, in collaboration with Clark Gallery, Lincoln, regularly present exhibitions by contemporary studio furniture makers. In October their latest effort will feature "Kristina Madsen and Rick Wrigley: New Furniture." The Society of Arts & crafts in Boston maintains a furniture slide registry available for viewing by appointment.

Lorry Parks Dudley, director of Peter Joseph Gallery in New York which represents both Mattia and Maruyama, sums up some of the appeal of studio furniture. "The very nature of furniture is its human scale," she says. "Artists play on that. That's why (studio furniture) is different from sculpture...in that it relates to the human body...how the body works. There's always that intimate relationship."

Alphonse Mattia, for one, would probably agree. He would probably just as soon the owner of his valet piece, "Why the Long Face, Sebastian?" smile and greet the Good Sister as fling a blouse across her bib.▲

1993: THE YEAR OF THE AMERICAN CRAFT

...through the art of the American Craft we are able to preserve the multicultural heritage of our nation and our Commonwealth, and we pay tribute to the many and diverse artistic traditions that exist." -In his proclamation, Massachusetts Governor Weld joins the nation in celebrating The Year of American Craft

"TO MAKE GLORIOUS", University Art Gallery, Dartmouth. "To Make Glorious:The Artisanry Faculty Celebrates Americana" opens September 26 (reception, 3-5 pm) and continues through October 23. The exhibition features eight faculty members' works juxtaposed with Americana pieces which serve as inspiration. Curated by Lasse Antonsen, gallery director, the show celebrates artisanry, artistic influences and learning.

"FURNITURE: ADORNED & UNADORNED", Cahoon Museum, Cotuit. "Furniture Adorned and Unadorned: From the studio of Doug Amidon," opens September 3, 5-7 pm, and continues through October 31 at Cahoon Museum of American Art in Cotuit. Amidon credits the wealth of old New England-made country furniture for his inspiration. His work echoes their uncomplicated lines, sturdy craftsmanship and clever utilitarian features.

"THE DOMESTIC OBJECT", Fuller Museum of Art, Brockton. "The Domestic Object: Articles for Everyday Living opens September 18 at Fuller Museum of Art in Brockton. (through January 9, 1994). Following the Fuller's tradition of exhibiting contemporary American craft, "The Domestic Object" features the finest in ceramics, glass, metalwork, furniture and fiber arts.

SPIRIT OF MASS. IN FORM & FUNCTION, Signature; Mashpee, Boston, Chestnut Hill. As a tribute to The Year of the American Craft," Signature presents "The Spirit of Massachusetts in Form and Function," through October. The show runs simultaneously in all three galleries. Work included in this exhibition clearly states that the line between craft and art has changed, illustrating the craftsperson's growing dedication to individual experimentation, artistic integrity and technical excellence as well as awareness of cultural diversity.

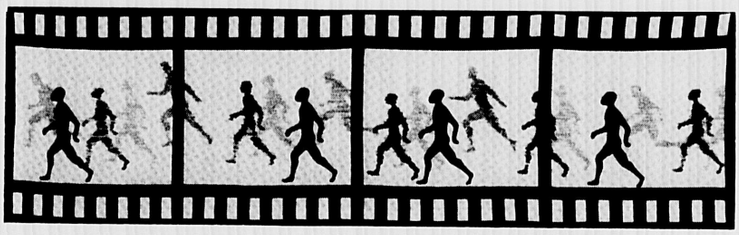

"VESSELS AND VISIONS", Art Complex Museum, Duxbury. "Vessels and Visions," featuring vessels of wood crafted by Robert A. St. Pierre of Duxbury, ceramic vessels by the noted artist Brother Thomas and colorful wood constructions by Nick Edmonds continues through October 2

"NATIONAL INVITATIONAL BEAD SHOW", Artful Hand: Orleans, Chatham, Boston. Artful Hand Galleries presents a show of unique bead assemblages and one-of-a-kind beads fabricated in blown glass, precious metals, porcelain and a wide range of other materials. Over 50 artists will exhibit. The public is invited to an open house at the Orleans gallery on October 9. For details, call (508) 255-2969, (617) 262-9601.

On American Craft

1993 is The Year of the American Craft. September is the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' month to celebrate as per earlier proclamation by Governor Weld. And though worthy craft exhibitions have marked the months preceding and several wonderful shows will follow, the spotlight is definitely on September. A-PLUS salutes the many craftspeople, artists and artisans whose innovations have helped to erode the boundaries between art and craft, and to elevate craft to its current and worthy place in history. "Perspectives: Part I On American Craft" invites artists/craftspeople from around the region to talk of their approach to working within their chosen media.

"Runner Series" by Gretchen Romey-Tanzer;

GRETCHEN ROMEY-TANZER STUDIO IN ORLEANS

"I am primarily a weaver of smooth flat fabrics that are meant for the wall as hangings or for the table as runners. I use mostly mercerized cotton thread, as it comes in a wide range of colors and is suitable for the dyes and silk screen processes I use. The woven structure that I most often employ is double weave. It is a structure that allows me to weave two layers simultaneously, giving me the option for more color and pattern changes.

"Once the pattern for the cloth is decided, then the image or abstraction on the surface is worked out in the sketch book and during the weaving process. I paint and silkscreen on the warp before and after the fabric is woven. Sometimes the image is recognizable, such as in my "Runners" series and sometimes the color is used in the abstract way to evoke a feeling or memory.

"All my fabrics are finished with a smooth edge (no fringe). They are easy to service: hand-washable in warm water with mild soap, line dry and steam iron flat (they will not shrink). The colors of yarn and dyes are light fast. My aim is to produce work that is sound and will remain so."

Waiting for Persephone
the myth assures

the hungry
winter loves her daughter

"To quell the fear of the uncontrollable forces of nature, we have assigned responsibility to the gods. Whether nature is explained through a myth or scientific discovery, we are driven to understand and name it. This is the merge of mind and earth. The concept of finding the balance between our belief systems and our physical existence is central to my work.

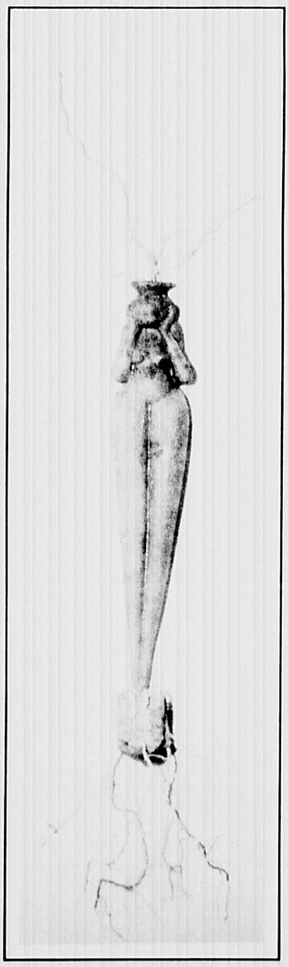

"When I'm addressing the notion of balance, I don't simply think of physical symmetry, but rather the equity between two separate elements. My work also incorporates the balance and integration of animals and architecture, motion and stillness, the organic and inanimate.

"In my wall piece, 'Glass Ceres,' the copper roots are metaphors for our physical dependence on the earth both past and present. The branches jutting from her head represent our ideas, spirituality, motivation...our future. The figure stands between the two because their integration creates both the self and the collective whole.

"The myth of Ceres (aka Demeter) caught my interest because she is a goddess of both great and disabling power; yet to whom there have been no bloody sacrifices. Instead, she has been celebrated with simple rituals of baking bread and bringing the harvest to the hearth. It was believed that the six harsh months of fall and winter were a result of Ceres' grieving over the loss of her daughter, Persephone, to the underworld. Upon Persephone's return, Ceres, the goddess of the corn, can once again allow other living things to flourish. The cycle's balance is complete — nature is explained and named.

Up From Obscurity

Consider, say the experts, work by many of the female contemporaries of the popular male artists from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. They are every bit as good as — and in some cases superior to — their male counterparts. Yet, somewhere along the line, fine works by these talented women have slipped into obscurity.

By Karen Aude

We're closing in on the 21st century. We consider ourselves advanced, intelligent, fair minded folk. Intuitive, esthetically aware. When it come to collecting fine art, we've developed a rather sophisticated collector consciousness which has seen us through the various 'isms over the years.

When prices for works by the great masters of Impressionism skyrocketed out of our price range, we turned fearlessly toward collecting works by modern artists; when prices for these works nudged the stratosphere, we searched for affordable alternatives. Late 19th and early 20th century landscapes and portraits took our fancy.

Soon, however, these, too, escalated in price. Ten years ago, savvy collectors might have picked up a wonderful landscape by William Merritt Chase, for $35,000. Now, that same work might top $800,000.

Now what?

Well, according to several of our region's foremost dealers in early American art, one body of work has escaped notice and waits only for rediscovery. Oddly enough, these paintings have been in our grasp all along. We've simply overlooked them. Consider, say the experts, work by many of the female contemporaries of the popular male artists from the late 19th and early 20th centuries. They are, they say, every bit as good as — and in some cases superior to — their male counterparts. Yet, somewhere along the line, fine works by these talented women have slipped into obscurity.

On the surface, it is no wonder. We simply never learned about these women. Case in point: a popular reference book, "300 Years of American Art," a 1022-page history of American art featuring the biographies of roughly 750 artists, includes approximately 42 women. This is the norm. With the exception of Mary Cassatt, work by female artists of this era has been largely ignored. And though it is impossible to track private sales, public auction records are clear — works by women of the late 19th, early 20th centuries are under-represented in the public arena and certainly undervalued.

The good news is — there's an opportunity for collectors who, in the absence of detailed historical reference points, need only the eye to identify good art when they see it, and the courage to act on their convictions.

This is not to say that research is passe. Cambridge auctioneer James R. Bakker champions these overlooked paintings and prints, relying largely on his eye, but following up his "finds" with substantial research. Bakker opened the James R. Bakker Gallery in Provincetown this season. This fall he will present a body of work by a virtually unknown artist — Isabelle Ferry — whom Bakker believes was one of the major artists of the turn of the century. She studied with William Merritt Chase, traveled with Robert Henri and was, herself a teacher in Western Massachusetts.

Bakker says, "Ferry was every bit as good as her teacher Robert Henri," yet auction records show Henri's portraits of the same size and quality of Ferry's attain upwards of $50,000. If Ferry's work comes up at all, Bakker says the figure might be somewhere around $500. Even paintings by Ferry's pupil, William Chadwick, a competent artist of the Old Lyme School have sold for upwards of $27,000.

Studying the work of teachers in relation to their pupils is an interesting vantage point. Bakker cites work by Charles H. Woodbury, teacher of Margaret J. Patterson. The work is comparable in technique and content, yet Woodbury's paintings can bring up to $85,000 whereas Patterson's top price to date is around $3,000. Or, says Bakker, consider Dorothy Wyman, student of George Elmer Brown. "They painted side-by-side," says Bakker. "It is the clearest relation of painting style." Yet, Wyman's work sells for in the $500 range, where similar work by Brown might bring over $5,000.

Studying paintings by husbands and their wives is another fascinating approach. Bakker cites William Kaula and his wife Lee Lufkin Kaula, whose paintings he believes are of comparable quality. Even though Lee's work has reached an impressive $32,000 at auction, William's work has sold for almost double.

Orleans dealer and collector Frank Hogan collects women artists of this period and feels emphatically that "they are often better than their husbands. One of the most interesting gals in my view." says Hogan, "was the wife of Charles Hawthorne — Marion Campbell Hawthorne. "She's wonderful," he says, adding bluntly, "As far as I'm concerned, she's better." Whereas, several years ago, a small pastel by Marion

AND ON THE EVENING OF THE SEVENTH DAY —

They Opened.

By Karen Aude

OK. Rome wasn't built in a day. Even master set designers Helen Pond and Herbert Senn would need six. But, with Pond and Senn at the fore at The Cape Playhouse in Dennis, carpenters would willingly oblige. If it's Rome you want — consider it done.

Designing and constructing sets for summer stock theater is the ultimate temporary art installation. Its successful completion depends not only on the talents of the set designers, but also on a skilled collaboration between carpenters and technical crew; its final triumph is interactive — actors, actresses and, lastly and perhaps most importantly, the audience will judge the fait accomplis.

The Cape Playhouse — a picture-postcard theater, set in picture-postcard grounds on Route 6A in Dennis — is the oldest summer stock theatre in America. Helen Pond and Herbert Senn have been designing sets for The Playhouse for over 35 years. — Long enough and well enough that at each performance, the set receives the first applause.

In the 11 weeks of this 1993 season, a band of three carpenters under the direction of master carpenter Ian Carnathan and all under the guidance of Pond and Senn will create a total of eight distinctly different environments, a mighty challenge by anyone's standards. There was a living room to make any family proud for The Decorator; the steamy, seamy underground caves and caverns for Phantom; a gymnasium for Nunsense II.

A-PLUS visited The Cape Playhouse scene shop and theater from time to time over the course of the week during which Pond and Senn and Company created the set for Dancing at Lughnasa.

TUESDAY, 4:30 PM

It all begins quite genteel enough at a tea held at John and Eve Carey's Dennis home on Tuesday afternoon. There, each week, the advance director meets casually with Pond and Senn and others associated with The Playhouse. A more formal meeting follows. Details are discussed; potential problems ironed out in advance. The reality is that as a summer stock play moves from theater to theater, the advance director must adjust his or her needs based on various considerations as basic as the size of each stage.

WEDNESDAY

In the morning, A-PLUS finds Senn in his office sketching for his final blueprint. By that afternoon, the crew is hard at work, building, in the case of Dancing at Lughnasa, an authentic Irish cottage kitchen and garden, overlooking golden wheat fields.

We first encounter carpenter Christopher Adams crafting leaves from bits of canvas. From Centerville, this is Adams' first summer with The Playhouse. When the season ends, he'll continue his work in freelance video and theatrical production on Cape. Scott Isbrandt, from Scituate, and Emmett Aiello, from West Barnstable, are found in an open-air workshop behind the scene shop; they are busy hammering and drilling, as yet unrecognizable elements. This is Isbrandt's first year also; he returns to Ithaca College this fall to continue his studies in film. Aiello will peruse his Masters in set design at Brandeis.

THURSDAY

The scene shop is an illusion of permanence in process, though the untrained eye worries. Nothing, it seems has recognizable shape. Master Carpenter Carnathan, who also returns to Ithaca in the fall, directs the crew with humor.

From conception to final completion, Master Set Designers Helen Pond and Herbert Senn require a mere seven days — and that includes sketching, building, painting, installing and propping the set, as well as time for a technical rehearsal and dress rehearsal. This series of photographs only hints at the intense concentration and level of activity which is maintained by Pond and Senn and Company during the week-long process.

Props arrive.

It's been a relatively easy week for Propmaster Tom Swift, as unlike other plays where Swift must gather bits from hither and yon, props for Lughnasa travel with the show. Many are the original props which were used on Broadway, most having been imported from Ireland and all adding to the authenticity of the illusion.

While Swift unwraps his treasures, the crew begins to assemble the heretofore unspecified bits and pieces. In a very short amount of time, a period Irish cottage kitchen begins to emerge.

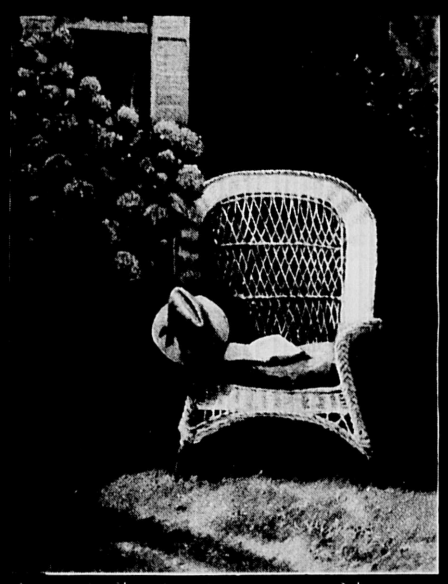

Enter Lighting Master Joanna Zaharis with her assistant Daniel Meeker. Having previously conferred with Lughnasa's advance director to learn the nuances of desired lighting, Zaharis chooses filters for the stage lights.

Working around Zaharis and Meeker, Swift and his assistant Nick Vietor complete propping the set. And, we are told, Wardrobe Supervisor Kelly Reed with assistant Carol Lynn Berens are working behind the scenes to ready the costumes, important detailing which completes the illusion.

Sound Technician David Chessman, merge to complete the authenticity of the temporary installation. Key to the successful implementation of the overall plan is Stage Manager Paul Peabody who orchestrates the entire behind the scenes activity.

Cue to cue, Zaharis performs her magic, an artist with her palette although, rather than oils or pastels, Zaharis manipulates beams of light which she mixes and merges to establish mood. Up a degree, down a point — dawn, or sunset, or romance emerge. Meeker responds to Zaharis' directions, working the lighting board off stage.

Simultaneously, Chessman and Peabody working with the advance director, Jim Semmelman pull the pieces together. Seamlessly, the scene is set.

MONDAY, 2:30 PM

Dress rehearsal. Set, crew, actors and actresses converge for the first time. The run through ends around 5:30, after three intense hours of fine-tuning the various elements.

MONDAY, 8:30 PM

Dancing at Lughnasa opens. The audience gasps appreciatively, and for the next 2 1/2 hours remains transformed as the Industrial Revolution catches up with the occupants of this small Irish cottage family.

It is impossible to believe that seven days hence, this same audience will return to a high school gymnasium and Nunsense II.

Auction News

By Faye Andrashko

From the looks of recent auction results, consumer confidence must have rebounded. Auction-goers this summer are nearly screaming to spend money on unusual quality pieces. Not to mention that buyers seem to be crazy about the auction process itself — maybe it's the competition for a piece, the mystery of whether one can hold up under the bidding pressure, or spare that much dough. Something is propelling the fever.

GONE BY

At the July 27 Antique Auction at The Bay Auction Company in Buzzards Bay, the din of the audience was so great through the auction that one could hardly hear auctioneer Russell Johnson's colorful commentary. One Cape dealer was overheard to remark, "Every gunfighter in town is out here tonight." The auction had a very wide offering of merchandise — something for everyone, truly. Prices for better lots were strong on the whole, as the big guns fought it out. One buyer stood stupefied after purchasing a quilt for more than she wanted to pay. "I just got caught up in it and couldn't stop," she gasped. We've all done it.

Pair of decoys from Mainsail Auction's July 20 Americana sale brought $33,000.

Robert C. Eldred's annual Marine Art Auction of July 30 set attendance and sales records for a marine auction for them, according to Robert Eldred, president. The crowds spilled over the grounds from under the tent, and phone lines were tied up all day with bidders from afar. Two phone bidders from the West Coast battled it out for the dollar highlight of the day, lot #379, a reverse painting on glass of the fleet of Lord Nelson, by W. Weiden, 1812, the originator, the "granddaddy" of reverse painting of ship portraits. Apparently, the detail and placement of the ships in "more than a straightforward profile" are rare in reverse paintings. So is finding a painting by Weiden in this condition. The final bidder, a private collector, paid $46,200 to make this piece his own, though the work carried a pre-sale estimate of $6000/$8000.

Tom Bourne at Mainsail Auction Company called their July 20 auction of Americana the "best so far, as a new business." Certainly contributing to that success was lot #80, an extraordinary pair of merganser decoys by an unknown Massachusetts maker, which rang up a resounding $33,000 tab. Apparently the ducks were purchased from an antiques dealer by the consignor's mother in 1940 for $3 and had been in the family to this point. Their exceptional detail, the fine quality carving and beautiful form, and their condition, rendered them a treasure.

Willis Henry and The Nantucket Bay Auction also called their last July auctions extremely successful. A Hawaiian quilt in the Willis Henry July 31 Americana brought in $9625 with premium, just one of the many strong items. The Nantucket Bay Auction noted that its August 8 sale was their "best ever so far" also.

COMING UP

Skinner, Boston, will hold its auction of Fine Oriental Rugs and Carpets at the new Boston gallery, September 11, 2 pm. Against a backdrop of the spacious contemporary gallery, they are offering over 30 room-sized rugs, including a palace-sized Bidjar, and a good variety of rugs from different weaving areas: Soumak bags, rare Melas and Kazak bagfaces, a mid-19th century Star Kazak rug, an 18th century Anatolian Ushak. Additionally, they and The New Boston Rug Society are sponsoring a complimentary lecture on Wednesday, September 8, the day before the first preview. Dr. John Sommer of California Bay Area Rug Society will speak. For more info on the lecture or for reservations, call Anne Lower at (617) 350-5400.

For anyone planning to attend the Stephen Snow Auction of August 28, note NEW LOCATION! Due to last minute technical difficulties, and after ads had been published, the auction had to be relocated to the Hyannis Holiday Inn, next to the Cape Cod Mall. The sale will feature a good variety of items drawn from several estates and starts at 11 am.

Merlyn Auction, whose Saturday weeklies are an institution, is offering a special Antiques and Collectibles auction the same night, August 28. With a preview from 1:30 to 6:30 and sale at 7 pm, there's a way to catch them both, maybe even with a brief stop in at Eldred's last day of their week-long Oriental Arts auctions!

Note that Sandwich Auction does its autumn switch in nights after Labor Day, moving back to Saturday nights.

...Lots of diversity on tap for September, with James R. Bakker planning American and European Paintings, Prints and Sculptures for September 19 in Byfield, MA. Grogan and Company has a three-day event, "The September Auction," set for 21-23 when they'll auction rugs, fine arts, silver jjewelry furniture and decorative arts.

Coming for October: Sandwich Auction is readying for another successful Doll Auction. And The Bay Auction Company has set October 5 for an Art/Paper sale featuring 17th, 18th, 19th century paper items. Watch for details!

WIPE AWAY TARNISH IN SECONDS TO A BRILLIANT MIRROR SHINE WITH CAPE COD POLISHING CLOTHS

SILVER•GOLD•PEWTER•JEWELRY

BRASS•COPPER•STAINLESS STEEL

"... We used to laugh at dad..."

When my brother Jared and I were growing up here on the Cape, we used to laugh at our dad in the basement, night after night, mixing, testing... and cursing; trying to perfect his formula for use in CAPE COD METAL POLISHING CLOTHS. Well, now Jared is twenty-four, I'm twenty-two and we're not laughing at him anymore. My father has perfected his formula and we are all partners in a company that is growing with each passing month. We make a product that people love to use because of the superb and long lasting shine it produces on silver, brass and other fine metals.

"The easiest and best polish we have ever used! And to our delight, we polish less often because the shine lasts longer!"

Obscurity

Campbell Hawthorne would bring anywhere from $1,200 to $2,200, Charles' work brings many times that amount.

Another husband and wife mentioned by Hogan are two artists associated with Provincetown, Mae Claus and her husband, William Claus. This is, however, the exception that proves the rule. Whereas William's work might sell for around $500-$700, Hogan recently purchased a small oil of a recognizable place in Provincetown by Mae, for $1,600.

Julie Heller of Julie Heller Gallery in Provincetown sells late 19th early 20th century American paintings with a focus on Provincetown artists. She cites Milton Avery and his wife Sally Michel (Avery) as two examples of the market gone askew. Indeed, anyone who has ever studied these works, side-by-side with signatures obscured, might have a difficult time assigning its author as either Milton or Sally. However, Milton's work ranges from $60,000-$120,000 whereas a painting by Sally can be found for around the $5,000 mark.

Heller, however, has a story of an artist who "bucked the trend," as far as obscurity is concerned. "Marguerite William Zorach is an exceptional artist; she was totally involved and on the cutting edge even during her lifetime," says Heller. Prints by Marguerite Zorach reach around $6000.

When Provincetown artists are mentioned, printmaker Blanche Lazzell is often cited as an example of a women on the rise. Bakker set the first Lazzell record at his Cambridge auction in 1988 when a print sold for $12,100.Two years later, her work sold for $15,400. Today, it's not uncommon for a Lazzell to brings over $20,000. Hogan mentions prints by Lazzell's cousin, printmaker Grace Martin Taylor, who is 98, as "sleepers. I've seen maybe 10 come up for sale," says Hogan.

Heller feels that there's a great wealth of beautiful works by the early Provincetown whiteline print makers, almost all of whom were women — Lazzell, Ethel Mars, Agnes Weinreich, etc. "A color woodblock print is modestly priced, maybe in the $600-$700 range," reports Heller.

Bakker adds other names to watch for: Bertha Ried, Mary Frack, Laura Hills. Hogan reemphasizes the value of research. "Go to the library... read books...go to galleries... look at art..I've been in the business for 26 years, this has always been my process, and it's worked for me."▲

Cochituate Motors

Location: 57 Main Street, Jct. Route 27 & 30, Cochituate, MA

History: Jerry Couture purchased Cochituate Motors in 1983 from Howard Philips who established the dealership in 1938. Couture began his career at Cochituate Motors in sales for Philips, and was then later promoted to General Manager until his purchase in 1983.

A family operation, Jerry Couture and his son Dave, along with 30 employees trained through the General Motor Company, offer high quality professional service to their customers evident through a high customer satisfaction ranking (35% repeat business per month).

After 53 years of business, Cochituate Motors still takes personal interest in pleasing their customers.

Types of Cars Sold: All makes and models of Chevy, and Geo, as well as a variety of used Cars.

Hottest Sellers: Cavalier, S10 Blazers, and Geo Prizms are the hottest sellers at this time.

Best Deals: The Geo Metro XFI can be purchased for as little as $6,500 with manufacturer rebates.

Specialties: The Service Department at Cochituate Motors, with Service Manager Matthew Borusso, specializes in transmissions as well as all and any service problems. Cochituate Motors offers the only full Chevy dealer service department in the area. This department has grown in the past few years to include a parts and service department, along with an expanded body shop, and a spray booth to provide complete car painting or minor repairs.

Incentives: GM National rebates and low finance rates (7.9% financing for up to 60 months), are now available on all product lines.

Philosophy: "We're here to serve the customer, we'll go out of the way to satisfy customers", says Dave Couture, VP and General Manager. "We will meet or beat any offer on a new car or truck."

Chevrolet Caprice

New design freshens the 1993 model's look

The Chevrolet Caprice dropped its controversial rear-styling for 1993 and added a more powerful standard engine for the Caprice Classic LTZ.

The new rear appearance entails opening the wheel wells, widening the body-side moldings and rear axle, and adding a chrome trunk-lid molding along with new tail lights with chrome detailing.

The styling treatment freshens the appearance of all three Caprice sedans - the Classic, the uplevel Classic LS, and the Classic LTZ option package. The Classic wagon's styling is unchanged from 1992.

The new LTZ V-8 engine produces 300 pounds-foot of torque. That puts it in a class of its own. It has plenty of horsepower, too. The engine can tow 5,000 pounds.

The Classic LTZ's 180-horse power, 5.7 liter, V-8 engine replaces the 5.0-liter, V-8 on the 1992 model as standard equipment.

The new LTZ V-8 engine produces 300 pounds-foot of torque. That puts it in a class of its own.

It has plenty of horsepower, too. Six people could put their luggage in the trunk, hitch a trailer to the rear and take off for the mountains. The engine can tow 5,000 pounds, which has an above average towing capability.

The instrument panel and hood are unusually large. The same thing applies to the front seat. The 6040 bench seat e allows plenty of room for a third person in the front seat. In the event that there is not a third traveler, a center arm rest pulls down to add to the driving comfort. Even the arm rest is exceptionally large.

The rear seat also has a pull-down center arm rest, and everyone has plenty of head and leg room — even the sixth passenger seated in the front. The LTZ also offers the choice of leather seats, an option that gives the interior a wealthy appearance. Interior reading lamps also add a touch of class.

There are storage areas on the doors and the LTZ has a cup and coin holder. The Caprice LTZ is also loaded with power equipment.

The windows, seats, mirrors and door locks are moved with a touch of a button. Even the key ring has a remote lock control.

There is plenty of available trunk space, too. There is ample room to store the luggage of six passengers, even with the spare tire.

The trunk lid has the low lift-over design, which is helpful when loading packages.

The base price for a Caprice LS is $19,995, which has the standard 5-liter engine. The LTZ package has the 5.7-liter engine plus a sport suspension and a heavier frame, bigger brakes and tires. This package costs $1,075. The power equipment is part of another package, and the sound equipment is extra, bringing the cost to about $24,434.

The LTZ also offers the choice of leather seats, an option that gives the interior a wealthy appearance.

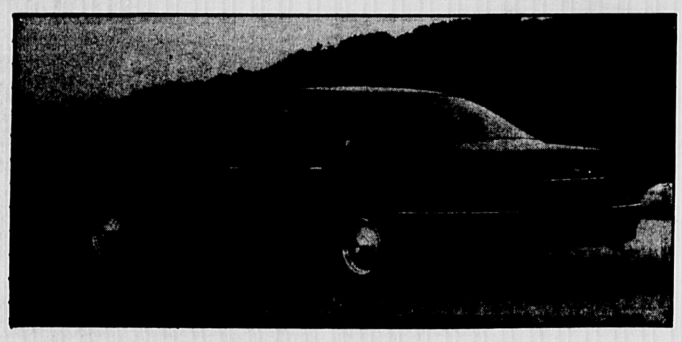

The Caprice has taxi and police packages, too.

The sticker price for the Caprice MRSP begins at $17,995.

All the 1993 Caprice sedans have airbags and anti-lock brakes as standard equipment. The design of the seat-belt clasp makes it exceptionally easy to buckle up.

All the 1993 Chevrolet Caprice models come with additional acoustical insulation to further reduce engine, wind and road noise. The 1993 models also feature new interior fabrics and trim.

Impulsive, wealthy Russians are buying American

If you're the kind of car buyer who walks into the auto dealership, picks out a vehicle and buys it all in one motion then you'd fit right into the Moscow (yes Russia) scheme of things.

That's how most cars are purchased in the erstwhile Evil Empire, according to representatives of capitalist tools like General Motors Corp.

"The impulse buyer helps write our paychecks here in the United States, however the impulse buyer is more prevalent in Russia," says James Lyle, chairman of the March Group that manages three Russian dealerships. Also in the cooperative venture with the March Group is the Russian-owned Trinity Group, the West Group (a British concern) and GM.

"Russia is a nation of "nouveau riche" – people who have just acquired wealth. Because of inflation, they are looking for investments and they try to buy as many things as possible. Buying a home is still difficult, but buying a car is no," Lyle says.

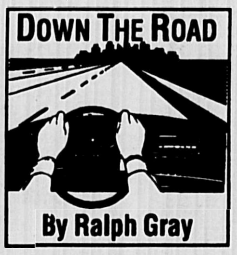

Many of the new princes of commerce started out in the old black market of communist days. "They've taken their street smarts and moved into the legitimate market. That's an expanding marketplace and more wealth and car buyers are created as more and more entrepreneurs are created every week," Lyle says.

But one thing remains the same whether the customer is a newborn Russian capitalist or an American buyer. "You have to take care of the customer. You have to treat the customer with courtesy and respect and follow through on sales and service. When you promise something, you keep that promise," Lyle says.

And as in the U.S., car buyers like imports – in this case U.S.-built cars. "One of the pluses we have is that today the Russian population really likes U.S. products," says Louis Sandy, GM director of new business development for the former Soviet Union.

"They feel the U.S. product is a prestige product while Japanese products are not as well accepted," Sandy says.

"One of the main things we in GM recognized was the issue of service is paramount. When we establish a dealer network, the primary consideration is: can the dealer provide a service facility that will meet all of the customers needs? It's a more difficult job in Russia to provide the service capability. We have to do a lot of training. Their technicians have never seen electronic fuel injection but they are quick learners. Service is the key to marketing in Russia," Sandy says.

Unlike the U.S., sales depend strictly on what inventory the dealer has. "We sell from 25 to 65 cars a month depending on the inventory. We would sell more but customs encumbrances have lowered our sales.

"Customs charges increased 80 percent recently. Buyers got sticker shock, Russian style. But sales are beginning to pick up again," Lyle says.

GM's best seller is the Chevrolet Caprice, an also-ran in the U.S. but a star in Russia. "Its price-quality tradeoff is very strong with a lot of perceived value on the part of Russians. It's like having a baby Zil." Lyle says. Zil was the Russian luxury car used largely by party leaders.

The Trinity showroom in Moscow (is) right there on Pushkin Square near the McDonald's restaurant. It's a former bookstore and.....has even left some of the books on bookshelves.

The full-size Caprice sedan comes with a leather interior, V-8 engine, automatic transmission and power windows. "Why buy a Mercedes-Benz when you can get a Caprice?" asks Lyle. "A Caprice looks to be more luxurious. 'More is More' with U.S. cars," he says.

The Caprice used to sell for $27,000 before the customs hike. Now it's $34,000 in U.S. dollars.

Other good sellers include the new Chevrolet full-size Blazer sports utility and the Pontiac Trans Sport. "They like the radical styling of the Trans Sport. It separates it from others in a cluttered European market," Lyle says. It's been a good seller for GM in Europe and in Russia.

All GM vehicles have one thing in common. They operate on leaded gasoline. Leaded gas is virtually unavailable in the U.S. for pollution reasons. There isn't much unleaded gasoline in Russia. "So our engines accept leaded fuel and we take off the catalytic converter and our normal exhaust system," says Sandy. GM also sends the cars out with heavy-duty suspensions to cope with bad roads and European frequency tuners on the radios.

The Trinity showroom in Moscow looks like a showroom anywhere, the executives say. It's right there on Pushkin Square near the McDonald's restaurant.

It's a former bookstore and Trinity, under manager Jim Walker, has even left some of the books on bookshelves. The volumes aren't for sale. Just the cars.
